HEISMAN MATERIAL?

This picture has nothing to do with the fact that Shawn Jones just might be a Heisman Trophy candidate, but the Georgia Tech Sports Information staff poses around the statue of John Heisman that sits outside Bobby Dodd Stadium. PRESS CREDENTIALS

Press Box credentials will be issued to members of the working media only. Working space in the Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field Press Box is limited. Children and other non-workers are not allowed in the Press Box. Requests for credentials should be made in writing on letterhead stationary to Mike Finn, Associate Athletic Director for Communications, well in advance of each game. These requests are accepted from Sports Editors and Directors only, and are carefully screened to insure good working conditions. If time permits, we will mail your passes. If not, they will be held at the Will Call booth, located in the Heisman Gym on Bobby Dodd Way (formerly Third Street) outside the north end of Grant Field, next to the Arthur B. Edge Athletic Center.

PHOTO CREDENTIALS

The NCAA has established a sideline control policy to keep those areas free from congestion. Only photographers on assignment are given sideline passes along with working members of the television media. To obtain admission to the sidelines at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field, a press credential and an arm band must be displayed. Photographers must present their credential in the Press Box to receive an armband. All sideline photographers are reminded to stay behind the dotted restraining line that surrounds the playing field and to remain out of the team bench areas.

TELEPHONES

The Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field Press Box is equipped with seven telephones located on the press working tables. These phones require collect calls or a credit card for billing. Writers desiring their own phones should make the request to the Southern Bell office (404/451-1800) using Mike Finn as their local contact for phone placement. Please inform the Sports Information Office if you have ordered your own phone line.

FAX MACHINE SERVICE

Fax machine service is available in the Press Box. Qualified student assistants in the Tech SID office are on hand to send your copy. There is no charge for this service.

SATELLITE INTERVIEW PACKAGE

Georgia Tech will again provide an interview and highlight package featuring a TV interview with head coach Bobby Ross, two Tech players and action highlights of the previous week's game. The interviews will be oriented to the upcoming game each week and will air on Westar 5 satellite beginning at 3 p.m. each Wednesday, with one exception. The package will begin on Wednesday, Aug. 7, make its second appearance on Monday, Aug. 26, and then start its weekly Wednesday routine on Sept. 11 for the rest of the season.

ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE SATELLITE INTERVIEW PACKAGE

Beginning on Wednesday, Sept. 4 and continuing for 12 consecutive weeks during the football season through Nov. 20, the Atlantic Coast Conference, through the auspices of Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions, will produce a satellite feed from 9 to 10 a.m. featuring interviews and highlights from each of the league's nine schools. Each school will have a six minute segment. The ACC Satellite Feed may be obtained by tuning to Westar 5, Transponder 4 (audio 6.2 and 6.8), with the exception of Sept. 18, when the coordinates are Westar 5, Transponder 24.

ACC WEEKLY TELEPHONE PRESS CONFERENCE

Beginning on Sept. 4 and ending on Nov. 13, the Atlantic Coast Conference will offer a weekly telephone press conference each Wednesday featuring all nine of the ACC's head football coaches. Each of the coaches will be available to the media for a 10-minute period beginning at 11 a.m. The coaches will appear in alphabetical order by school, with Tech's Bobby Ross on the line from 11:30-11:40 a.m. Darome Phone Services of Washington, D.C., will handle the conference call hookup. More information may be obtained by contacting Tom Mickle, who is the head of the ACC Service Bureau, at the ACC office (919/854-8787).

The order of ACC Coaches:

11:00—Ken Hatfield, Clemson
11:10—Barry Wilson, Duke
11:20—Bobby Bowden, Florida State
11:30—Bobby Ross, Georgia Tech
11:50—Joe Krivak, Maryland
Noon—Mack Brown, North Carolina
12:10—Dick Sheridan, N. C. State
12:20—George Welsh, Virginia
12:30—Bill Dooley, Wake Forest

THE PRESS BOX

The Georgia Tech Press Box is for working members of the media only. No cheerleading will be allowed. The Press Box is located underneath the upper deck in the West Stands and is accessible by the Press Box Elevator. Also located on the press level are the photo deck, radio booths, public address announcer and stadium operations/security. Admission to the Press Box is by credential only.

PRESS BOX SERVICES

Complete team and individual statistics, running play-by-play, and post-game coaches quotes will be provided in the Press Box. An inside public address announcer keeps the media abreast of play-by-play, records and game notes. A pre-game meal is provided approximately an hour and a half before kickoff with refreshments available throughout the game.

PARKING

Press Box parking at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field is available on an extremely limited basis. Requests for parking passes should be made well in advance to Mike Finn. The Press Parking is located in the Peters Parking Deck across Bobby Dodd Way from the Heisman Gym.

POST-GAME INTERVIEWS

Coach Bobby Ross and a minimum of six Tech football players will meet the press after each home game in the Goldin Football Lounge, located on the ground floor of the Arthur Edge Building just outside of the football locker room. The visitor's locker room is located on the Field Level of the Wardlaw Building in the South End Zone of the Stadium. Admittance to all post-game press conferences is by credential only. The Press Box Elevator will leave the Press Level at approximately the four-minute mark of the fourth quarter for anyone desiring to go to the locker room.

IN-SEASON INTERVIEW POLICY

All of Georgia Tech's players and coaches will be available to the media throughout the season. All interview requests, however, must be made through the Sports Information Office: (404) 894-5445. To insure availability, please allow us 24-hour notice prior to your need for an interview.

IN-SEASON INTERVIEW POLICY AT FOOTBALL PRACTICE

Georgia Tech football players and coaches are available just prior to the start of football practice, although for media other than radio and television, this is discouraged. To interview Tech players and coaches prior to practice, arrangements must be made 24 hours in advance of the interview.

GEORGIA TECH UNIVERSITY?

There are 46 Division I-A institutions that begin with "University of." Twenty-five are better known as "State University" and 28 end with "University." Just six institutions do not use the word "University" at all. They are: Air Force, Army, Navy, Virginia Tech, Boston College and Georgia Tech.

The Georgia Institute of Technology is the official title, but Georgia Tech will work fine, or just Tech (unless you're in Virginia or Texas). We would appreciate it if you would use our name in those ways. Thanks.

WEEKLY PRESS LUNCHEON

A weekly press luncheon will be held at the Arthur B. Edge Center each Tuesday during the football season beginning on Sept. 10 at 11:30 a.m. Members of the media are urged to attend. Coach Bobby Ross and two players will be in attendance. Although Coach Ross and his players are available at selected times during the week, this is the best time to interview them.

GEORGIA TECH HOTLINE

Coach Bobby Ross will make daily comments regarding his team's progress and will record them on tape for use by the media. The taped message, generally recorded at the end of practice each day, will be of broadcast quality and approximately two minutes in length. The Hotline will be available starting Friday, August 2. The Hotline number is (404) 894-5507.

CALLING COACH ROSS

The best time to reach Coach Ross, other than his weekly press conference, is in his office from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Please call his office directly at (404) 894-5420. His administrative assistant is A. C. Mayo.

KICKOFF CLASSIC

Rambling Wreck Meets Penn State in 1991 Kickoff Classic

A new page in Georgia Tech's rich college football tradition will be written this August 28 when the Rambling Wreck meets Penn State in the 1991 Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in the New Jersey Meadowlands.

It will mark the first appearance in the Kickoff Classic for Tech, the defending National Champion. The Jackets have appeared in 24 post-season bowl games and are one of only four teams in the nation to have appeared in each of the four major Bowl games--the Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange. Tech now becomes one of only three teams, along with Notre Dame and Alabama, to have participated in all four major bowls and the Kickoff Classic.

This year's Kickoff Classic will be nationally-televised by Raycom Sports and broadcast by Mutual Radio Network with a 9 p.m. kickoff.

"We are very pleased and proud to be selected for this year's Kickoff Classic," said Tech Director of Athletics Homer Rice. "It is a measure of the respect our football program has achieved. This is a tribute to the efforts of our coaches and players. It is also exciting to be playing one of the nation's great football programs in Penn State. Joe Paterno and his program have been an example of excellence on the field and integrity off of it."

Tech, coached by Bobby Ross, the consensus National Coach of the Year, finished the 1990 season as the nation's only unbeaten team with an 11-0-1 record. The Yellow Jackets were named National Champions by United Press International, The Sporting News and The Scripps Howard News Service after an impressive 45-21 victory in the Florida Citrus Bowl over nationally-ranked Nebraska.

"We're very excited to have a chance to play in this year's Kickoff Classic," said Ross. "It's an honor to have this opportunity. I'm also excited about the chance to compete against Penn State. They are truly one of America's premier football programs. I competed against Coach Paterno when I was at Maryland, and his teams are always extremely talented and well-coached. It will be a great challenge for our team."

Penn State will be making its second appearance in the Kickoff Classic. The Nittany Lions dropped a 44-6 decision to Nebraska in the inaugural Classic in 1983.

Penn State returns 40 lettermen and 15 starters from last year's team which finished the season with a 9-3 record and was ranked 10th in the final UPI poll and 11th by the Associated Press.

The game will be the seventh meeting between the two schools in football, but the first since the 1966 season when Tech, coached by the late Bobby Dodd, took a 21-0 decision in Atlanta. The two teams have split the previous six meetings in the series which began in 1921.

Tech will be carrying the nation's longest unbeaten string into the Kickoff Classic, having gone undefeated in 16 straight games dating back to Oct. 28, 1989. ■

ALL NEWS 680 AM

The Georgia Tech Radio Network carries every game, plus pre-game and post-game programs, to more than 90 stations and cable systems throughout Georgia, North Carolina, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee from flagship station, 50,000 watt WCNN "All News 680" in Atlanta. WCNN has extended the networking contract to the year 2000.

For the 38th season, Al Ciraldo's familiar "toe meets leather" will begin the play-by-play commentary of Georgia Tech football. As the "Voice of the Rambling Wreck," Ciraldo returns to the broadcast booth he has occupied since the years of the legendary Bobby Dodd.

Sharing the network broadcast duties, former Tech quarterback and Hall of Famer Kim King provides the color analysis. King, now in his 17th season on the radio team, draws upon his experience and insight from more than 20 years of involvement with the Georgia Tech program to keep his commentary on target.

In addition to the Yellow Jacket games, WCNN "All News 680" airs the Ramblin' Wreck Tailgate Show prior to the kickoff with host WCNN Sports Director Bob McCann and former Yellow Jacket quarterback John Dewberry. That is followed by Quarterback's Corner with Homer Rice and Kim King comparing the competing teams, and then The Bobby Ross Show with Al Ciraldo.

Following the game, The Locker Room Show features comments from Georgia Tech coaches and players. Then, WCNN sports anchor Dave Cohen provides final scores and updates from games across the country on The Fifth Quarter Show.

WCNN "All News 680" begins its seventh season as the flagship station for Georgia Tech sports, and will continue in this capacity until the year 2000. Stations interested in joining the network should contact WCNN "All News 680," 209 CNN Center, Atlanta, Ga. 30303-2705. ■

The Bobby Ross Show Provides In-Depth Look at Rambling Wreck Football

For an in-depth review and highlights of each Georgia Tech football game, fans are invited to tune into the Bobby Ross Television Show, which is an inside look at the Rambling Wreck program with Tech head coach Bobby Ross.

Beginning Sept. 8, the 30-minute program is shown Sunday at 12 noon on WXIA-TV (Channel 11) in Atlanta, and is televised on a network that covers Georgia and has affiliates in nearly 20 states. It is also available nationally on satellite. Each Ross TV Show is uplinked every Sunday from 11:30-12 Noon on Westar 5, Transponder 24.

The show, produced by Larry Wood Productions of Atlanta, airs for 13 weeks during the football season. Ross is joined by co-host Art Eckman. Jack Thompson is the executive producer of the program, and Mike Finn is the associate producer.

The following is a list of outlets for the Bobby Ross TV Show, which will be broadcast at 12 noon on Sundays except where otherwise noted. ■

Focus On SHAWN JONES

"The bigger the game, the better I play. I put a lot of pressure on myself, because I expect to make the big play when we need it. I love challenges. The tougher the better."

If head coach Bobby Ross was the architect of Georgia Tech's improbable national championship in 1990, the engineer of the Rambling Wreck's rise to No. 1 was quarterback Shawn Jones.

"He's the major reason why we're undefeated," said strong safety Thomas Balkcom after Tech's victory over Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

"We put a lot of pressure on him to make the big play, and he always seems to come through."

With his performance in 1990, the 6-1, 200-pound signal caller from Thomasville, Ga., established himself as a bona fide big-play performer and one of the top quarterbacks in the nation. Ironically, it was others' reluctance to allow him to play the position that had brought Jones to Georgia Tech.

"A lot of schools recruiting me said I could do anything. They talked about me being a receiver one week, a defensive back the next," recalled Jones.

"When Coach Ross said I'd have the opportunity to play quarterback, I said 'When do you want me?'"

Jones could not have arrived on the Flats soon enough, for he stepped in and won the starting role as a redshirt freshman and promptly led Tech to a 7-4 season in 1989, its first winning campaign in four autumns.

He earned Atlantic Coast Conference "Rookie of the Year" honors while showing signs of things to come as he was almost personally responsible for Tech's last-minute victories over North Carolina and Boston College. Against the Tar Heels, he scampered 30 yards on a busted play for the winning touchdown with just 51 seconds left, while against the Eagles, he directed a 56-yard drive that set up the game-winning field goal.

Perhaps no game better illustrates what Jones means to the Rambling Wreck than the historic 41-38 triumph over No. 1-ranked Virginia on Nov. 3, 1990.

Jones' numbers on the day were impressive but not gaudy: 17-for-27 passes for 257 yards and two touchdowns, along with 52 yards rushing and another score. But he rallied the Jackets from deficits of 13-0, 21-7 and 28-14, and then he orchestrated the final 56-yard drive that set up Scott Sisson for the game-winning field goal with seven seconds left.

After the game, Georgia Tech radio analyst Kim King, himself a Tech quarterbacking legend, said of Jones, "Given the circumstances, Shawn Jones played the best game against Virginia a Georgia Tech quarterback has ever played, and I've seen all of them since 1962 and a lot of them before that date."

But his performance against the Cavaliers was the norm, not the exception. Throughout the season, Jones was at his best in the big games. In four games against Clemson, Virginia, Georgia and Nebraska, he completed 65 percent of his passes for 10 touchdowns and only three interceptions, while running for two more scores.

With Tech facing Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl for a shot at the national championship, Jones was 16-23 for a career-high 277 yards, accounting for two touchdowns through the air and another by land, claiming Most Valuable Player honors.

"The bigger the game, the better I play," said Jones. "I put a lot of pressure on myself, because I expect to make the big play when we need it. I love challenges. The tougher the better."

Ross reiterated the sentiment, remarking after the Citrus Bowl, "I can always count on that son-of-a-gun to rise to the occasion. He made it work for us today. But he's done that all season. He's more than a great athlete. He's a great competitor, and a great passer, too."

For the season, Jones, a second-team all-ACC selection, totalled 2,008 yards passing and 13 touchdown passes, along with 277 yards rushing and six more TDs. He set a school record with 2,285 yards of total offense.

But more than the yards and the touchdown passes, the 4.5 speed and the passing efficiency rating (who understands that formula anyway?), the statistic that says the most about Shawn Jones is Georgia Tech's record when he lines up behind the center. In his two seasons, Tech has compiled a record of 18-4-1, the best winning percentage for a Yellow Jacket quarterback since Wade Mitchell in the early 1950s. ■

Defending National Champions Look to Sustain Winning Ways

A consistency in winning. For Georgia Tech's Bobby Ross and his 1991 Rambling Wreck football team, that goal would seem an understatement after a 1990 campaign that saw the Rambling Wreck post the nation's only unbeaten record and earn the school's first major wire service National Championship.

Tech was the nation's Cinderella team a year ago, posting an 11-0-1 record which included a 45-21 triumph over Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl. The Gold and White enters the 1991 season on a roll—literally. The Jackets begin the year with the momentum of a 16-game unbeaten string that dates back to November of 1989, having won 19 of the last 21 games.

And with 14 starters among 48 returning lettermen, you might think Ross' goals, especially in light of Tech's golden accomplishments last year, would be a bit higher.

But, faced with a tougher schedule including four out of the first five games on the road, a depleted offensive line, the loss of all three fullbacks and the starting tailback from a year ago, the veteran Tech mentor appears to have a realistic assessment of the difficulty his team will have continuing its current standard of success.

"I think as much as anything," said Ross, "we want to show a consistency to winning. When we came here, we didn't set a goal of winning a National Championship. We set a goal to be regarded as one of the Top 20 programs in the nation year in and year out. That's our challenge this year, to maintain that standard of consistency."

"The challenge is there to win the ACC again. We want to defend our conference championship. We want another opportunity to go to another bowl. That was fun. We also have the opportunity to play in the Kickoff Classic which is an exciting thing for our program. There are a lot of new things out there for us to achieve, but at the same time, our main goal is to sustain our program."

For the Jackets to continue the sometimes giddy level of success they enjoyed last season, major repairs will have to be made to an offensive unit which scored 379 points last year, the highest total by a Tech team in 72 years.

Jones' Versatility Keys Offense

Fortunately for Ross, though, the heart of that offense—junior quarterback Shawn Jones—returns. A 6-1, 200-pounder who begins his third season as a starter, Jones' late-season play has thrust him squarely in the middle of this year's all-America and Heisman Trophy competition.

Blessed with an extremely accurate arm, sprinter's speed and a running back's evadability, Jones set a school record with 2,285 yards of total offense last year. The triggerman for a diversified attack that topped the 40-point mark six times last year, Jones was at his best in the big games. In the Jackets' showdown victories over Clemson, Virginia, Georgia and Nebraska, the Thomasville, Ga., native completed 65 percent of his passes for 10 touchdowns and only three interceptions.

For the year, Jones connected on 58 percent of his passes for 2,008 yards and 13 TDs while adding 277 yards and six more scores on the ground. In his first two years as a starter, he has managed an 18-4-1 record, the second-best winning percentage (.818) by a quarterback in Tech history.

"I think Shawn Jones is as good a player as there is in college football," says Ross. "There may be some guys who have a stronger arm, but I don't think they could have a more accurate arm. I don't think there could possibly be a more skilled athlete at that position in college football."

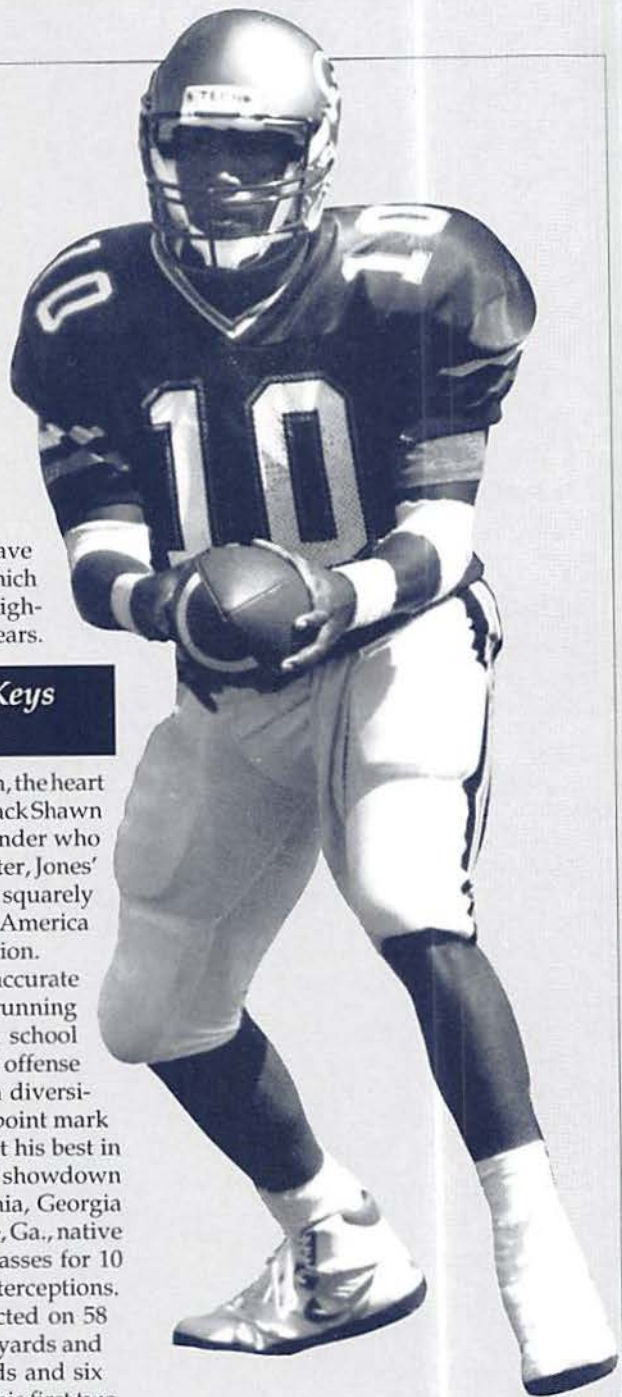

Merchant, Rodriguez, Lester Lead Talented Receiver Corps

Jones will benefit from having virtually his entire receiving corps back led by big-play wide receivers Emmett Merchant, Bobby Rodriguez and Greg Lester. This trio combined for 72 receptions last fall for 1,218 yards and nine touchdowns and earned a reputation for making circus catches in the clutch.

Merchant, a senior and the starter at split end, earned second-team all-ACC honors while averaging 16.9 yards per catch on a team-leading 29 receptions, while Rodriguez, a junior and the starter at flanker, chipped in with 27 catches and an 18.3 average. Lester, also a senior, managed 16 grabs for a 14.8 average while splitting time with Rodriguez at flanker and also seeing action when Tech utilized a three-wide receiver formation.

Tech will also have unusual depth in the wide receiver position with junior letterman Brent Goolsby (6-2, 193), senior letterman David Stegall (6-0, 180) and sophomore letterman Jason McGill (6-1, 188) all contending for playing time at split end, and sophomore Keenan Walker (6-0, 167) and talented redshirt freshman Charlie Simmons (6-3, 205) pushing for action at flanker.

There is a bit of uncertainty at tight end, though, where last year's starter, second-team all-ACC performer Tom Covington suffered a knee injury in the spring which may prevent him from playing this fall. Covington (6-3, 241) opted to rehabilitate the knee rather than surgery, and if he is ready to go, he will be the starter at the position where he managed 15 catches last year for an 11.7 average. If Covington is unable to go, then the starting berth will fall to sophomore Anthony Rice (6-5, 234) who has the speed, size and ability to be a standout. Behind Rice is junior letterman Derek Goshay (6-4, 243) and redshirt freshman Todd Vance, a 6-3, 236-pounder who really impressed in spring drills.

Offensive Line Has Ability But Lacks Vital Experience

Tech's main problems on offense, though, lie in rebuilding an offensive line depleted by graduation and restocking an offensive backfield low on experience.

"Our main concern has to do with our offensive line and now, our offensive backfield," says Ross. "I was pleased with the way our offensive line performed in the spring, but we lost a great deal of experience there and we need to stay healthy there. We probably don't have the depth in this area that we've had in our two previous years."

Two of Jones' favorite targets are all-ACC Emmett Merchant (right), 29 receptions for 489 yards, and Bobby Rodriguez, 27 catches and 493 yards.

Overall, Tech lost three starters, all-ACC tackle Darryl Jenkins, all-conference guard Joe Siffri and guard Jim Lavin as well as two key reserves from last year's line which was a strong point.

Massive senior Mike Mooney (6-7, 316) returns to anchor the line from his left tackle position. Beginning his third season as a starter, Mooney has developed into one of the nation's premier offensive linemen. His experience is expected to be a stabilizing factor on a rebuilt offensive front. Mooney's backup, young, improving soph letterman Chris Brooks (6-8, 326) is even bigger and could be a future standout. Freshman Rob Garner (6-5, 280) shows promise but is probably a year away from contributing.

Joining Mooney as a returning starter upfront is senior center Billy Chubbs (6-2, 256). Chubbs, beginning his third season as a starter, utilizes quickness and speed rather than size to be effective. Depth is a concern here with sophomore Marty Quinn (6-5, 270) and true freshman Michael Cheever (6-3, 245) listed as the backups.

Senior tackle Russell Freeman (6-7, 274), last year's top reserve at tackle who saw considerable action throughout the year, steps into a starting role with junior letterman Woodie Milam (6-4, 277) and Jim Kushon (6-6, 285) providing quality depth. Freeman is an underrated player who has excellent quickness for his size.

Most of the concerns upfront, though revolve around the guard positions. Junior letterman John Lewis (6-3, 277) nailed down a starting berth on the left side with his play in the spring. Lewis, though, will also see action behind Chubbs at center. When that happens, redshirt freshman Brian Bravy (6-5,318), Lewis' backup and a future standout, will muscle his way into the lineup. On the right side, junior letterman Scott Gold (6-4, 279) enters fall practice with a slight lead for starting honors over another junior letterman, Kyle Frederick (6-4, 299) and junior James MacKendree (6-5, 250), who lettered the past two seasons at tight end before moving to guard this past spring.

Wade Mancil (6-7, 281), a redshirt freshman, and sophomore Gary St. Clair (6-4, 268), a defensive tackle convert, could also be in the picture, but need experience.

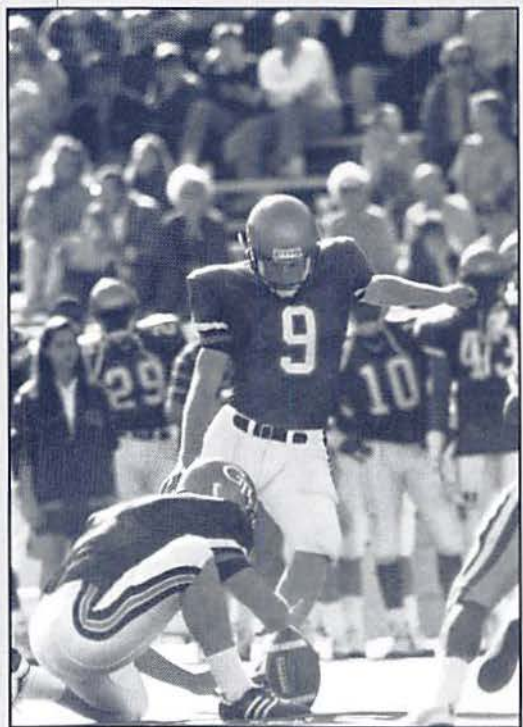

Loss of Bell, Reese Creates Uncertainty at Tailback & Fullback

The lack of experience upfront is intensified by the lack of experience in the backfield. With the suspensions for all of 1991 of starting tailback William Bell and backup fullback James Reese, Tech will field just two players—sophomore fullback Jeff Wright and junior tailback Kevin Tisdell—with any game experience. The loss of Bell, Tech's leading rusher last year with 891 yards plus a 127-yard effort against Nebraska in the Citrus Bowl, was particularly damaging.

"How do you replace a William Bell?" said Ross. "I don't know if you really replace him. But, then again, that's the same thing I said last year about Jerry Mays. I don't think you replace players of that calibre, but someone else has to step forward."

Redshirt freshman Jimmy Lincoln, a 5-9, 183-pound speedster who ended spring drills as the backup at tailback, will get the first opportunity to step up. Lincoln impressed in the spring and is a shade faster and quicker than Bell, but his lack of size, especially in goal line and short yardage situations is a concern.

Battling Lincoln for playing time will be Tisdell (5-11, 189), a junior letterman who averaged 29.5 yards per kickoff return including an 85-yarder that setup the winning score against Clemson and an 85-yarder for a touchdown that broke open the Duke game; sophomore Derrick Hamilton (6-1, 201), who rushed for 216 yards in the Tech-Georgia junior varsity game and redshirt freshman Tim Johnson (6-0, 196), a tough, slashing style runner.

At fullback, Wright (6-1, 211), who rushed for 395 yards as the primary backup at tailback, ended the spring as the starter. Battling him for playing time will be redshirt freshman David Hendrix (6-2, 205), a speedster who ended spring drills as the backup strong safety but will be given a chance to play at fullback in an intriguing experiment this fall. Also in the picture are redshirt freshman Michael Smith (6-0, 212), as well as a pair of non-lettering squadmen in junior Ali Harris (5-11, 231) and sophomore Kelly Steele (6-0, 214).

Sisson Has Penchant for Last-Second Heroics

Luckily for Tech, though, Jones and his offensive teammates may only need to get the Jackets close to score this fall. Junior placekicker Scott Sisson, who has developed into one of the nation's top clutch

"The proof for us now is to sustain. You don't want to be an up and down program. The new challenge is for us to sustain a consistent winning program and secondly to do that while also having the challenge of being the targeted team. We won't be sneaking up on anybody. We experienced a little bit of that in the 1990 season. But I don't expect that to be a problem for us going into 1991."

—Bobby Ross

performers, returns after setting a school record for points by kicking with 84 last year. Sisson made 15 of 23 field goal attempts last year including a winning three-pointer with eight seconds remaining against Virginia, one with seven ticks on the clock left against Virginia Tech and a last-minute, game-tying boot against North Carolina. Sisson enters the year having made all 69 of his collegiate PAT attempts and 30 of his 47 (.638) field goal tries.

Behind Sisson will be senior letterman Alan Waters (6-2, 177) who will handle the kickoff duties as well as serve as Sisson's backup.

Defense Returns Eight Starters from Nationally-Ranked Unit

A year ago Tech's defenders held off opponents from scoring an offensive touchdown until the waning minutes of the Jackets' fifth game. And this time around, with eight returning starters headed by all-Americans Ken Swilling and Marco Coleman, Tech's stop troops figure to be as imposing.

Overall, Tech's defense ranked 11th nationally in scoring defense and 14th nationally in total defense and consistently made the big play.

"We have a chance to be one of the more solid defensive units that I've ever had," says Ross. "That, of course, depends on whether we can replace Calvin Tiggie at inside linebacker."

Swilling Experiment Declared a Success

Ross declared the spring's biggest experiment, moving Swilling (6-3, 236), a consensus all-America at free safety as a junior, to the strong safety spot for his senior season, a success.

"I'm mad at myself for not having done that sooner," says Ross. "I am very glad we made the move. Ken's going to be much more involved in our defense this year. We're going to ask a lot of things from him, but he's also going to be in a position to make a lot more plays."

Swilling, though hampered by a mid-season ankle injury, still managed to lead the ACC in pass interceptions last fall with five in just nine games. He also had 71 tackles with two caused fumbles. Although starting out at strong safety this year, Swilling will play a variety of roles in Tech's defense to keep opponents from keying on him. He is coming off an impressive spring performance and should be the leading candidate to win the Jim Thorpe Award, which is given annually to the nation's top defensive back. He finished third last year, and with the top two vote-getters gone, he should become the frontrunner.

Swilling keys a veteran Tech secondary that returns both starting corners in senior Willie "Big Play" Clay (5-11, 183), a first-team all-ACC honoree last year, and junior Curley Day (5-10, 174). Clay, Tech's best coverage player, managed three interceptions and 14 deflections last year, while Day had two interceptions and 10 breakups.

Behind Clay at field corner are sophomore letterman Marcus Coleman (5-9, 142), last year's starting nickel back until he suffered a season-ending knee injury, and junior letterman Mike Williams (5-10, 180), who had an 83-yard interception return for a score against Wake Forest. Senior Frank Scott (6-0, 180), who moved over from free safety in the spring, and a pair of redshirt freshmen in Eric Billingslea (5-10, 176) and Greg Morris (5-9, 185), provide depth behind Day at boundary corner. Although depth in this area is solid an incoming freshman might have an immediate impact.

A pair of juniors in Eric Bellamy (6-1, 184) and Kevin Peoples (6-1, 197) ended the spring in a dead heat for Swilling's old free safety spot. Bellamy saw action last fall as Swilling's backup, making 13 tackles and one interception. Peoples, voted the team's top special teams performer, managed 34 tackles and one intercept. They will probably share playing duties next fall with Peoples also seeing action as the top reserve behind Swilling at strong safety.

Tech's Sackman, Marco Coleman, Keys Defensive Pressure

Upfront, Coleman (6-4, 250), who is one of the best pass rushers in the college game, keys a unit that is talented and experienced. Coleman led the ACC in quarterback sacks last fall with 13 from his strong side outside linebacker. A Scripps Howard first-team all-America last year, Coleman has made most of the first-team pre-season all-America squads this summer. Redshirt freshman Bill Neuss (6-5, 232) and junior letterman Steve Pharr (6-2, 238) backup Coleman.

Sophomores Marlon Williams (6-2, 200) and Tom Johnson (6-5, 239) enter the fall locked in a battle for the starting berth at weakside outside linebacker. Williams had 44 tackles and five quarterback sacks last year as the starter, but a spring shoulder injury hampered his effectiveness. Johnson, who had 23 hits and two sacks last year, is also a prime candidate to play when Tech goes to a four-man defensive front. Redshirt Boyd Andrews (6-0, 214), who showed some ability here in the spring, provides depth.

At tackle, junior Coleman Rudolph (6-4, 261) is rapidly developing into one of the top defensive linemen in the ACC. Rudolph had a standout sophomore campaign with 76 tackles including five quarterback sacks and seven tackles for minus yardage. Sophomore Richard Kimsey (6-3, 262) stepped in to fill the void this spring left by the loss of Jerimiah McClary, after seeing action as a reserve a year ago. Senior letterman Jim Gallagher (6-6, 295) has excellent strength and size, and redshirt freshman Raleigh Boulware (6-5, 246) possesses good speed and quickness as the backups.

Junior Kevin Battle (6-5, 295), another budding standout lineman, returns for his second season as a starter. Battle had 56 tackles and four quarterback sacks last fall and has unusual quickness and speed for a man of his size. He and Rudolph should be candidates for all-ACC honors this year. Sophomore letterman Bryan Baxter (6-4, 258) is a capable backup both here and at tackle.

Williams Brings Steady Presence at Inside Linebacker

Senior Jerrelle Williams (6-0, 230) begins his third season as a starter and as one of the top inside linebackers in the South. Williams finished second in the ACC in tackles last year with 145, and with 330 lifetime hits, he stands a chance of becoming Tech's all-time leading tackler. He also managed five quarterback sacks last year and is one of the leaders on the defensive unit. He should be an all-ACC pick this time around.

Tiggle's starting berth will probably go to a tandem of junior Erick Fry (6-3, 215) and senior Darrell Swilling (6-3, 240). Fry, a walkon who has since earned a scholarship, made 56 tackles as the top reserve last year will probably play in pass situations with Swilling, the brother of NFL all-pro Pat Swilling, seeing action against the run.

Depth is provided by a pair of talented, but inexperienced redshirt

Bill Weaver (6-4, 219), the son of former NFL great Herman "Thunderfoot" Weaver, emerged from spring practice to replace graduated Scott Aldredge as the punter. Blessed with a strong leg, Weaver still needs further technique improvement and will receive competition from redshirt freshman Jason Bender (6-2, 200) this fall.

Tech Faces Rugged Start With No Breathers

Tech's schedule, never easy, figures to be much more difficult this fall with four of its first five games on the road, against four opponents who could be ranked among the nation's Top 25. Tech opens the gauntlet on Aug. 28 in the Kickoff Classic against No. 6 Penn State, travels to Boston College (Sept. 14), then hosts Virginia (Sept. 19) before tough road trips with No. 10 Clemson (Sept. 28) and N. C. State (Oct. 5).

The Jackets then complete the season with ACC tilts versus improving Maryland (Oct. 12), North Carolina (Oct. 26), Duke (Nov. 2) and Wake Forest (Nov. 16) and with non-conference dates at South Carolina (Oct. 19), and at home against perennial 1-AA title contender Furman (Nov. 9) and arch-rival Georgia (Nov. 30).

"The schedule is the exact opposite of last year when we had four of our first five games at home," says Ross. "Put all those things together, the ACC is even tougher than last year, that we open with one of the best in the nation in Penn State, that Georgia is much improved and even 1-AA Furman has been in the national playoffs every year, and you understand that there is no breather. It all makes for a very challenging schedule."

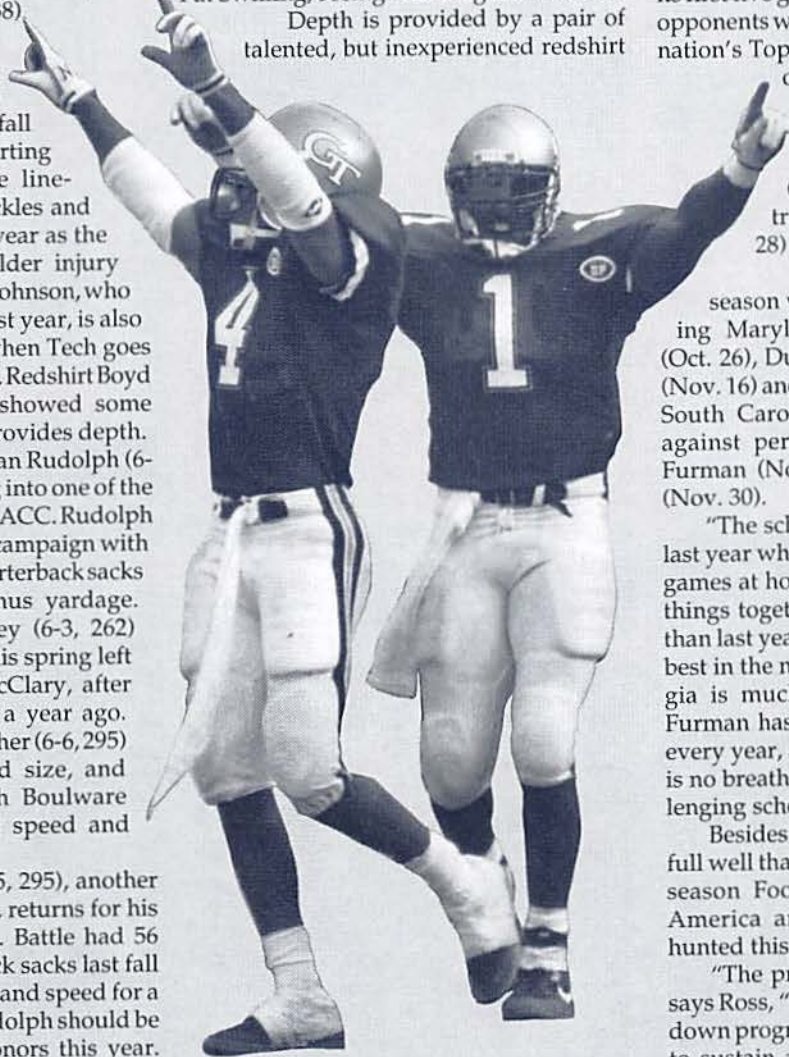

Besides the schedule, Ross also knows full well that Tech, ranked No. 4 in the pre-season Football Writers Association of America annual poll, will become the hunted this fall.

"The proof for us now is to sustain," says Ross. "You don't want to be an up and down program. The new challenge is for us to sustain a consistent winning program and secondly to do that while also having the challenge of being the targeted team. We won't be sneaking up on anybody. We experienced a little bit of that in the 1990 season. But I don't expect that to be a problem for us going into 1991."

"Prior to last year it had been 24 years since Tech had managed back-to-back seasons of seven wins or more. Now, we want to build on that. We want to establish a consistency in winning."

All-America safety Ken Swilling (#1) and all-ACC cornerback Willie Clay (#4) combine to give Tech one of the best secondaries in the country.

freshmen in Jeff Papushak (6-3, 227) and Mitch Jordan (6-1, 220), who impressed in the spring with their quickness and speed. They are a pair of names to remember for the future.

SPLIT ENDS

1 Starter • 4 Lettermen

Emmett Merchant (6-0, 183), a second-team all-ACC selection returns to his starting post where he was Tech's leading receiver a year ago with 29 catches for a 16.9 average and three TDs. He should contend for first-team honors this time around. Junior Brent Goolsby (6-2, 193), his backup who had four catches, had an excellent spring and enters the fall as a co-starter. Also seeking playing time will be senior letterman David Stegall (6-0, 180), sophomore speedster Jason McGill (6-1, 188) and redshirt freshman Jason Bender (6-2, 200).

TIGHT ENDS

1 Starter • 3 Lettermen

The spring knee injury to second-team all-ACC selection Tom Covington (6-3, 231) clouds the outlook here. A two-year starter, Covington managed 15 receptions last year for an 11.7 average. He is hoping to rehabilitate for this fall. If he is unable to play, the starting spot will go to sophomore Anthony Rice (6-5, 227), who had two receptions last year and has the speed to be a deep threat. Junior letterman Derek Goshay (6-4, 243) and promising redshirt freshman Todd Vance (6-3, 236) provide quality depth. If Covington is unable to go, junior James MacKendree, who moved to guard in the spring, could return.

TACKLES

1 Starter • 5 Lettermen

Despite the loss of all-ACC choice Darryl Jenkins, talent and depth are on hand led by senior all-America candidate Mike Mooney (6-7, 317). Mooney developed into one of the premier offensive linemen in the country last year and will be Tech's leader upfront. Joining him in the starting lineup is senior Russell Freeman (6-7, 261), who lettered last year as the primary reserve. Backing Mooney is massive soph letterman Chris Brooks (6-8, 326) and freshman Rob Garner (6-5, 280). Behind Freeman are junior lettermen Woodie Milam (6-4, 277) and Jim Kushon (6-6, 285).

GUARDS

0 Starters • 4 Lettermen

The major area of concern as Tech lost both starters—including first-team all-ACC Joe Siffri—and the top backup from last year. On the left side, junior letterman John Lewis (6-3, 277) emerged from spring as the starter with talented but inexperienced redshirt freshman Brian Bravy (6-5, 318) backing him. On the right side, junior Scott Gold (6-4, 279) heads into the fall with a slight lead over juniors Kyle Frederick (6-4, 299) and James MacKendree (6-5, 255), a tight end convert, for starting honors. Redshirt freshman Wade Mancil (6-7, 281) is a year away from contributing.

1 Starter • 2 Lettermen

Senior Billy Chubbs (6-2, 256) returns for his third season as a starter. Extremely quick, he should contend for all-ACC honors after splitting time with Veryl Miller last year. Depth is a concern here with junior letterman John Lewis, the projected starter at left guard, as the primary backup. Sophomore Marty Quinn (6-5, 270) showed improvement in the spring but needs more experience to contribute. Junior letterman Stacy Parker (6-1, 236) returns for his third season as long snapper.

QUARTERBACKS

1 Starter • 2 Lettermen

Junior Shawn Jones (6-1, 200) stamped himself as Heisman Trophy material last fall after a spectacular sophomore campaign in which he set a school record for total offense (2,285 yards) while throwing for 13 TDs and running for six more. At his best in the big games, Jones was named Citrus Bowl offensive MVP of Tech's 45-21 win over Nebraska. An equally dangerous threat as a runner and passer, Jones should be among the nation's best in 1991. Heady junior Jeff Howard (6-2, 180) solidified his position in the spring as Jones' backup. Talented, but raw redshirt freshman Jesse Tillman (6-2, 183) who has a strong arm and 4.6 speed, demonstrated future promise in spring drills.

FULLBACKS

0 Starters • 1 Letterman

The other area of concern on Tech's offense with the graduation of the top two players—Stefen Scotton and Carl Lawson—of a year ago and the ineligibility of the No. 3 player—sophomore James Reese. Sophomore letterman Jeff Wright (6-2, 211), who rushed for 395 yards and four TDs at tailback last year, captured starting honors with a strong spring but depth is a question mark. Wright's backup will have to come from an inexperienced group that includes redshirt freshman Michael Smith (6-0, 193), junior squadman Ali Harris (5-11, 231) and sophomore Kelly Steele (6-0, 214). Redshirt freshman strong safety David Hendrix (6-2, 205) could be tried here, or an incoming freshman could make an immediate impact on the depth chart.

TAILBACKS

0 Starters • 1 Letterman

The suspension of last year's starter and leading rusher, junior William Bell (5-11, 203), who ran for 891 yards and a 5.5 average, leaves Tech without a proven starter or backup. Redshirt freshman speedster Jimmy Lincoln (5-9, 176) ended spring drills as the top reserve and enters this fall as the projected starter. He has the speed and ability to be a threat, but has yet to take his first collegiate snap. Behind him will be a trio fighting for playing time in sophomore Derrick Hamilton (6-1, 201), who rushed for 215 yards in last year's Georgia J. V. game, kickoff return sensation Kevin Tisdell (5-11, 173), a junior who averaged 29.5 yards a return including an 87-yarder for a touchdown against Duke and an 85-yarder against Clemson, and redshirt freshman Tim Johnson (6-0, 196).

FLANKERS

1 Starter • 3 Lettermen

Another skill position which is well stocked. Junior Bobby Rodriguez (6-0, 174) was Tech's second-leading receiver with 27 catches for an 18.3 average and three TDs. He should contend for all-star honors this fall, but he will also be pushed for playing time from senior Greg Lester (5-10, 172), another deep threat who had 16 grabs for a 14.8 norm and three touchdowns. They ended spring drills as costars. Sophomore Keenan Walker (6-0, 167) has explosive speed and showed improvement in the spring but a player to watch for the future is redshirt freshman Charlie Simmons (6-3, 205) who has big play ability. Juniors Jay Johnson (5-11, 175) and Chuck Warbington and sophomore Darren Farber add depth.

PLACEKICKERS

1 Starter • 2 Lettermen

Junior Scott Sisson (6-2, 197) marked himself as one of the top pressure performers in the nation last year, downing No. 1 Virginia with a 37-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining, and Virginia Tech on a 38-yarder with eight seconds left. Sisson, who connected on 15 of 23 FGs, also made a pressure-packed three with 1:01 left that tied North Carolina. In two years, the dependable Sisson has made all 69 of his PATs and has twice broken the Tech record for points by kicking. Senior Alan Waters (6-2, 177) handles kickoff chores and serves as Sisson's backup.

DEFENSE

OUTSIDELINEBACKERS 2 Starters • 4 Lettermen

By himself, junior Marco Coleman (6-4, 250), one of the premier pass rushers in college football, makes this position a strength. Coleman returns to his strong side post where he earned all-America honors last year after leading the ACC in quarterback sacks with 13. Depth is a concern here, though, as his backup—promising redshirt freshmen Bill Neuss (6-5, 232)—has yet to play a snap. Junior letterman Steve Pharr (6-2, 238) moved from inside linebacker in the spring and will contend for playing time along with redshirt freshman Lamont Reed (6-3, 241). On the weak side, sophomore Marlon Williams (6-2, 200) also demonstrated big-play ability, making 44 tackles and five sacks. He ended the spring tied for starting honors with sophomore letterman Tom Johnson (6-5, 239), who was also impressive in limited playing time, recording two sacks. Redshirt freshman Boyd Andrews (6-0, 214) impressed in the spring and adds quality depth.

DEFENSIVE TACKLES 1 Starter • 3 Lettermen

Expected to be a weak spot last season, this position was a strength from the first game. Junior Coleman Rudolph (6-4, 261) had a standout season making 76 tackles including five quarterback sacks and 7 other minus-yardage hits. He will contend for all-star honors this time around. Backing him up is redshirt freshman Raleigh Boulware (6-5, 246), a young talent who lacks experience.

Marlon Williams returns at outside linebacker, where he made 44 tackles and five sacks.

Sophomore letterman Richard Kinsey (6-3, 262) moves up to a starting berth after spending last year as the top reserve. Behind him is steady senior Jim Gallagher (6-6, 288), who'll see action in goal line situations.

NOSEGUARDS 1 Starter • 2 Lettermen

Junior Kevin Battle (6-5, 295) started all 11 games at the nose last fall and by season's end was one of the best in the South. Battle demonstrated the quickness and agility to make 56 tackles and four quarterback sacks last year. This time around he should be in consideration for all-star accolades. Bryan Baxter (6-3, 258) lettered as a backup at noseguard and tackle. He provides quality and experienced depth. Senior walkon Mark Boyd (6-0, 255) has enough experience to contribute if needed.

INSIDELINEBACKERS 1 Starter • 3 Lettermen

Senior Jerrelle Williams (6-0, 223) returns for his third season as a starter. He is one of the top linebackers in the South and should receive all-star recognition after finishing second in the ACC in tackles with 145 hits. He also added five QB sacks, 3 recovered and 3 forced fumbles as well as a pass interception. A replacement, though, will have to be found for all-ACC Calvin Tiggie, a big-play type. Junior Erick Fry (6-3, 215) ended springs drills as a costarter with senior letterman Darrell Swilling (6-3, 240) after making 56 tackles last year as the top reserve. Lack of experienced depth is also a concern with the loss to a knee injury of junior Scott Travis (6-2, 229). But redshirt freshmen Jeff Papushak (6-3, 227) and Mitch Jordan (6-1, 220) impressed in the spring with their speed and quickness.

CORNERBACKS 2 Starters • 5 Lettermen

Senior Willie Clay (5-11, 183) returns to his field corner post where he earned first-team all-ACC honors this year. Clay, Tech's best in man-to-man coverage, had three interceptions and 14 pass deflections a year ago. Junior Curley Day (5-10, 174) returns to his boundary corner post to give Tech as good a pair of cornerbacks as there are in the ACC. Day had two interceptions and 10 pass deflections. Depth here is a question mark, though, depending on the status of sophomore Marcus Coleman (5-9, 142), Tech's nickel back who suffered a knee injury after three games last fall. Without him, depth will come from junior walkon Mike Williams (5-10, 180), who returned an interception 83 yards for a score last fall, junior letterman Frank Scott (6-0, 180), or redshirt freshmen Greg Morris (5-9, 185) or Eric Billingslea (5-10, 176).

STRONG SAFETIES 1 Starter • 1 Letterman

The big experiment of the spring, with consensus all-America Ken Swilling (6-3, 236) moving from free safety to strong safety to replace graduated senior Thomas Balkcom, was determined a success. Swilling, who finished 3rd in the balloting for the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back, had five interceptions and 71 tackles last year and appeared very comfortable in his new position. Look for those figures to increase as Swilling plays an increasingly more active role in the defense. Redshirt freshman David Hendrix (6-2, 205) has the physical tools to be an excellent strong safety but could be tried at fullback. Junior Kevin Peoples (6-1, 197), a hard hitter who is contending for the starting free safety spot, had 34 hits as a backup here and is available if needed.

FREE SAFETIES 0 Starters • 2 Lettermen

Junior Eric Bellamy (6-1, 184), last year's backup, and Kevin Peoples (6-1, 197), last year's backup at strong safety, ended the spring in a virtual tie for the starting berth. A steady player, Bellamy made 13 tackles last year as Swilling's backup. Peoples, though, is a physical performer who excels at run support. Further depth will be provided by incoming freshmen or by letterman cornerback Frank Scott, a former free safety.

PUNTERS 0 Starters • 1 Letterman

Junior letterman Bill Weaver (6-4, 219) dropped his outside linebacking chores to fully concentrate on punting and enters the fall as the leading candidate to replace the graduated Scott Aldredge. The son of Herman "Thunderfoot" Weaver, he possesses a strong leg and needs only to refine his technique. He will be pushed by redshirt freshman split end Jason Bender (6-2, 200).

Greg Lester, a dangerous deep threat, enters his senior season ranked sixth in Tech history in career receiving yardage (957) and TDs (8), and 11th in receptions (58).

John Lewis is one of several talented but inexperienced offensive linemen who must step forward for the Tech offense.

BOBBY ROSS Q & A

Q: Going into the fall, what goals does this team have?

A: "Well I think as much as anything we want to show a consistency to winning, I think it is going to be very difficult to go out and achieve what we did last year based on our schedule, and the fact that there is so much parity to college football. But I think the key for us is to show the consistency to keep winning, to keep the football program in a Top 20 mentality. I think that was one of our goals from the start. We didn't set a goal of winning a national championship, but we wanted to be regarded as one of the Top 20 programs. Obviously we don't want to slip from that."

Q: What are your main concerns with the team?

A: "The main concern has to be almost exclusively with our offense. And it has to do with our offensive line, although I was pleased with the way our offensive line performed in the spring. As a matter of fact I was surprised a little bit and I thought they did an excellent job. Now if they can carry this over into a game condition it won't be as major a concern as it was. We need to stay healthy because we probably don't have the depth there as we have in the two previous years."

Of course, the other major concern has to be our offensive backfield, now that William Bell and James Reese are no longer with us. We lost Stefan Scotton, who was a three-and-a-half year starter, and his two backups. We've lost Bell, the starter at tailback. We've really lost the mainstays to our offensive backfield, and we've got one proven player in Jeff Wright. He is a good player but he is going to have to play both spots."

Q: How do you replace a player like William Bell?

A: "I don't know if you do replace him, but I said that a year ago when we lost Jerry Mays. Somehow or another, someone steps forward. The key to establishing a football program is to get your depth situation to the point that if you do have a loss you can absorb it. I think that there is a talent base for the young kids to step in there and do the job. I don't know if there is a talent base to William Bell's level but, but at the same time, you never know. I think for us to be good offensively, someone will have to step in there and fill that void."

Q: How good is Shawn Jones?

A: "I think Shawn Jones is as good a player as there is in college football. Shawn Jones is a throwback to the old days as far as I'm concerned. He loves the game. He plays it and practices it hard but he does it with enjoyment."

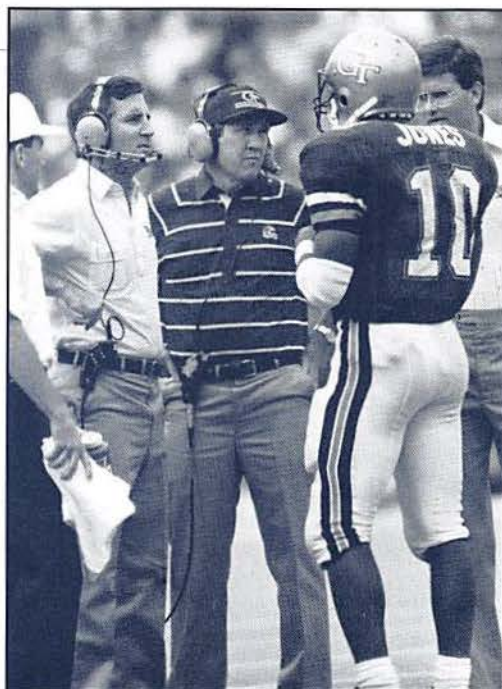

I don't think there could possibly be a more skilled athlete at that position in college football than Shawn. There may be some guys who have a stronger arm but I don't think a more accurate one. I think Shawn has become a very accurate passer. I think the only area that needs to continue to be developed is in the strength of the arm. I think he is going to continue to improve his decision making, hopefully we will see him above 60% in the fall for his completion percentage, and if he does I don't see how anyone could be evaluated any better."

Q: Is Shawn Jones of Heisman caliber?

A: "I don't think there is any question that he is a Heisman candidate. I think whether he wins it depends on how he plays and that's pretty much related to how we play. If we win and Shawn plays well, I think he is going to become a pretty serious candidate and a very deserving one."

Q: Is there one quality from last year's team that you would like to see carried on onto this year's club?

A: "I think it's the team togetherness and the playing with effort and the intensity. Particularly the togetherness, that intangible factor that made us a good football team. I always went into every game feeling like, this team may have a little bit more talent here or there but I don't know if they have that team continuity or the team chemistry that we have. We need to have that. That has to be one thing that is very, very important to us."

"I don't think there could possibly be a more skilled athlete at that position in college football than Shawn."

Q: Is there one person on defense who is important but who goes unnoticed?

A: "There is a person in our defensive unit this year that gets very little recognition but continues to play with as good a consistency as we have had since we've been here and that is Jerrelle Williams, who in the last two years has been no worse than the second leading tackler in the ACC."

Q: How does Marco Coleman compare to some of the defensive players you have coached?

A: "I think Marco is an outstanding football player. I have coached some great football players and I don't know that maybe Randy White isn't the finest defensive football player that I've ever been around. Marco has that kind of ability but he doesn't quite yet have the strength of a Randy White. White was tremendously strong and Marco doesn't have the total overall quickness that Randy has. Marco, though, runs well and plays his position extremely well. He has great quickness in his hands and has a real instinct for play recognition that you really can't teach. He is a young player in our program, who continues to get better and better as a football player. It's a little unfair to compare him to the truly great players yet because he still has two years to go in his career. But he's making a steady improvement and he does have big play capability which has been so important to our development as a football team."

Q: During the spring you moved Ken Swilling to strong safety. How is move working?

A: "I'm mad at myself for not having done that sooner after seeing him in the spring. Although when I look back at the past couple of years, we had several very experienced players at strong safety. But I'm glad we bit the bullet and went with it. I think it is a natural position for Ken. I think it will really help him in his overall total development as a player and it's going to help us too."

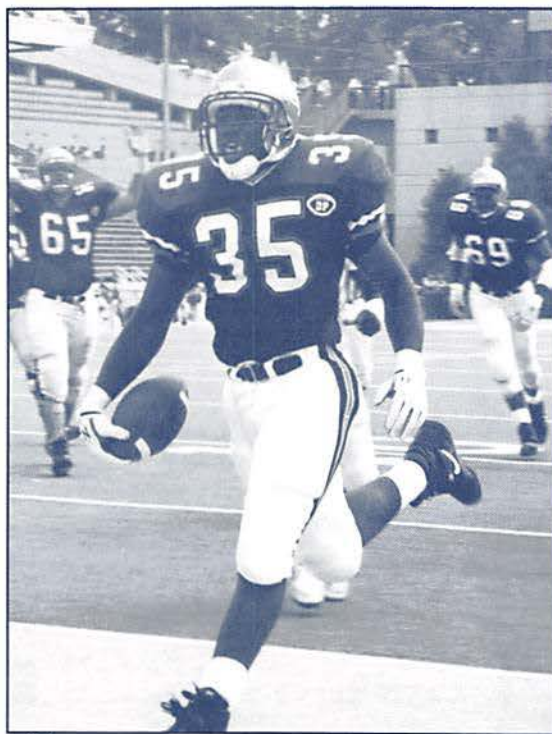

"He's going to be much more involved, both with the pass as well as the run. In some cases, he was almost a nonentity in the running game because of the things we ask of our free safety. That will change quite a bit. He's going to have to be able to play more and different techniques. He'll be involved with more techniques than any other football player on our entire team. You won't see him coming out of the game too often."

"He's going to be in there most of the time but because of the versatility and flexibility he gives us, I think it improves us as a football team. He adjusted to it extremely well. Actually I was a little surprised at how easily he adjusted."

Q: With the Kickoff Classic and playing Penn State early, does your coaching philosophy change for preparation in the fall?

A: "Not at all. You still have your same allotted number of practices (29). We do have less rest from one season to the other and from one school year to the other. I am very hopeful that our kids will prepare quite well in the off season. We should have better carry over conditioning-wise from the school year to when we report back because of less time. I hope that is a big positive factor to us and I think that has to be one of the real keys to our success and our preparations going into the Penn State game."

"We've lost the mainstays to our offensive backfield, and we've got one proven player in Jeff Wright. He is a good player but he is going to have to play both spots."

Q: How does the ACC race shape up this year?

A: "Again, a little bit tougher than it was last year. I said going into last season that I think this is the strongest the ACC has been since I have been involved in the ACC. And, I think it is going to be a shade stronger in 1991. The league will be a little bit harder to call this year because of the improvement of North Carolina, Wake Forest and Duke. I think it is going to make the race that much tighter. Wake Forest returns 10 starters off their defense. North Carolina returns 10 starters off their defense so with that coming back and the other programs—

N.C. State, Virginia, Clemson and Maryland—are pretty established. You're seeing a much tighter race and it's going to be more difficult to call."

Q: Do you think the ACC is beginning to receive the respect it deserves in football?

A: "I hope that it has. I think this, there is no reason for it not to be receiving the respect even prior to this past year, in which our out-of-conference record was the best in all of college football. If you looked at our bowl record it was one of the best in all of college football. We had the highest percentage of participation in bowls. I think our league's success on New Year's Day helped."

"Last, and perhaps the most important, is the addition of Florida State, which should remove all doubts about the strength of our league football-wise."

Q: What are your thoughts about the reforms from last year's convention in regard to football?

A: "That is a real concern to me. It is a real bother to me and it has to do with the fact that many of the decisions have been made based upon perceptions more so than fact. We're using the cost factor as justification, and I realize that the cost factor is a real concern. But I think the perception of cost reduction is the basis for the decision. The coaches have had no participation and representation in any of the decisions that have been made, and some of those decisions are actually ridiculous and don't make a whole lot of common sense."

"I certainly agree with and see the need for cost reduction. I think the presidents should sit down with the coaches and the athletic directors and look at other ways to reduce the same amount of money in our program that has been reduced as a result of the new NCAA rules, but not with the confusion and the difficulty that has been put upon us as coaches to do our job."

Bobby Ross Q & A

Q: What one thing do you most enjoy about your job?

A: "I enjoy most the coaching of football, being on the field and working with the players. I really enjoy that. I think along with that and certainly equal to that is the competition on game day. I don't think that anybody could ever get a greater thrill or a greater excitement than taking a football team on a field and participating in the game.

"Finally, and this is the long range factor, is to see a young man come out of this school and graduate. A great example is a young man by the name of Angelo Rush who, quite honestly, struggled early in our football program. He was never what you would consider to be a great football player but he has persevered and seen things through, looked challenges in the eye and survived and graduated. That's a very satisfying thing to me and that's one of the good things to college football that is never spoken about."

Q: As the last seconds of the Florida Citrus were ticking off last year, how did it feel when all the fans were cheering and it was definite that Tech was going to finish unbeaten. What was going through your mind?

A: "Tremendous satisfaction as much as anything else. I think the reality of possibly receiving a national championship had not set in. I think it was the satisfaction of winning the Citrus Bowl more so than anything. I felt a real joy for our players. I kind of looked back on our bench and saw them hopping around, and someone said something, our guys are making a lot of noise and my remark was let them do it . . . they deserve it. They've been through a lot, and I want them to enjoy this moment. This moment doesn't happen too often. As long as they're not doing it at the expense of another team, another person or another program, then I want them to do it. It was just a great, great feeling. A tremendous feeling of satisfaction. It was, however, very temporary."

Q: You won the National Championship in only your fourth year here, what next?

A: "I think the big thing is to continue to go on. The fact that you win it does not draw an end to it. I still have a lot of years left at being a coach before retirement and I want to fulfill those years and I want to compete and compete to win. I think there is always something new. We want to continue to maintain that level of consistency. That was really the ultimate goal that we set when we came here—to consistently be thought of as a Top 20 football program.

"As always the goals are to improve in our graduation rate. I was dissatisfied that this year for the first time we did not make the CFA graduation rate Top 10. That was due to the fact that in our first summer we had nine academic attritions in our football program. We have to recover from that, it's very important to Georgia Tech and very important to me. And then we need to continue to expand our program and continue to improve our facilities and continue to improve the options that we offer our players from the standpoint of the job market, etc. There are many more things to do. Some of it is not directly related to our football program itself but to the young people who participate in it."

Q: What kinds of challenges do you see down the road not just for Georgia Tech but also for college football?

A: "I'm a little worried about college football right now, and if I say that, I'm a little worried about Georgia Tech because we're college football. Georgia Tech is really no different than any other college football program and so in that light you can put us into that category. We may have a few things that are different curriculum wise, but overall, we're like most college programs. I'm concerned about the perception, more so than anything else, that is being presented by the media relative to college football.

"I'm a strong believer that college football teaches a lot. I'm in coaching because it taught me an awful lot. It taught me a lot about getting along with people. It taught me a lot about perseverance. It taught me a lot about setting a goal and taking the steps necessary to reach that goal. It taught me a lot about managing my time, and I could go on and on with things I think are important. I get a little bit disturbed that we seem to ignore those things.

"Certainly there are some things that are wrong with college athletics on the large scope as well as internally within programs. That may always be the case but, as a whole, there is a lot more good to college athletics than there is bad. I'm concerned that our perception and our reaction to this perception is going to really hurt college football. I personally don't see anything wrong with what is referred to as big-time college football. I think it is exciting. I think it involves more people relative to the university and it's supporters, it's alumni than any other single event that's related to the schools. So why isn't it going to be important, it involves so many people. But, I really have a concern about the direction in which we are going right now."

"I think it (strong safety) is a natural position for Ken. I think it will really help him in his overall development as a player, and it's going to help us too."

Focus On SCOTT SISSON

"I thought it would come to a field goal. I was going over all the combinations during the game. What's going to happen if we score a touchdown? What's going to happen if they score a touchdown? But it still comes down to the end of the game. You've got to go out there and do it."

Lightning does indeed strike twice. At least it did for Scott Sisson and the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets.

Just one week after hitting perhaps the biggest field goal in Rambling Wreck lore, the sophomore from Marietta, Ga., was called upon to do it again.

And again he delivered.

Although Sisson's last second kick that gave Tech its historic victory over No. 1-ranked Virginia was probably the more dramatic of the two, his boot that lifted the Rambling Wreck past Virginia Tech one week later was no less pressure-packed or important, for it kept his team unbeaten and in the hunt for the national title.

Sisson's odyssey began on Nov. 3 at Scott Stadium in Charlottesville, Va.

"I thought it would come to a field goal," said Sisson, who had already hit a game-tying field goal against North Carolina earlier in the year as well as a game-winner against Boston College as a freshman.

"I was going over all the combinations during the game. What's going to happen if we score a touchdown? What's going to happen if they score a touchdown? But it still comes down to the end of the game. You've got to go out there and do it."

"It" for Sisson was a 37-yard field goal with just seven ticks on the clock that capped Tech's heart-stopping 41-38 come-from-behind win over the Cavaliers.

The kick came at the end of a 56-yard drive engineered by quarterback Shawn Jones, who had been instructed before the drive by Sisson's holder Scott Aldredge, "Just get it inside the 35-yard line and we'll take it from there."

During a timeout prior to the kick, which Virginia had called to try to ice Sisson, Aldredge did his best to shield his partner from any unnecessary advice.

"I was trying to keep everyone else away from him because he knew what he had to do," said Aldredge.

"Sure I was nervous," Sisson said after the game. "It still hasn't hit me what happened. It will take a while. It's a lot to handle when a kick means that much."

The scene was much the same one week later against Virginia Tech at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field, except that there were eight seconds on the clock, and this time Sisson had to deal with a stiff wind.

"That wind was whipping and he was worried, I could tell, because he kept looking back at the flags (on the goalposts)," said Aldredge.

Virginia Tech called not one, but two timeouts, but during the pause the wind seemed to die down just enough for Sisson to nail a 38-yarder through the uprights for his second field goal of the afternoon and a 6-3 Tech victory.

"When they called that timeout the wind was blowing so hard there was no way we could have got that kick through," said Sisson.

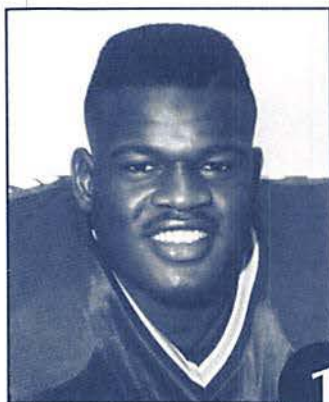

"I turned to Scott and told him it was a good thing they called that timeout. I knew they were trying to do a mind game or whatever, but it really helped us. The wind was terrible at the time, but after the timeout it died down for a few seconds."

Did Sisson ever think he might be asked to repeat his heroics?

"Never. Not in my wildest dreams." ■

ALL-STAR PROFILE

Ken Swilling

Toccoa, Ga.

EXTRA POINT: Finished third in the voting for the Jim Thorpe Award last season after a sixth-place showing as a sophomore.

AT TECH: Consensus all-America who enters his senior season as the premier defensive back in the country . . . Finished third in the balloting for the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's outstanding defensive back, and both players who finished ahead of him (Nathan LaDuke of Arizona State and Darryl Lewis of Arizona) have graduated . . . Moves from free safety, his position the last three seasons, to strong safety to get him more involved in the defense and take advantage of his tackling ability . . . With 11 career interceptions, he ranks eighth in Rambling Wreck history and should challenge the school record of 14 held by Jeff Ford (1969-71) and Randy Rhino (1972-74) . . . Enters 1991 with 212 career tackles, tying him with Lawrence Lowe for fifth on Tech's career tackle list for defensive backs . . . Needs just 33 hits to break the record.

1990: Tabled to first-team all-America squads by Associated Press, United Press International, Kodak (chosen by the American Football Coaches Association), the Walter Camp Football Foundation, the Football Writers Association of America, Scripps-Howard News Service, The Sporting News and Football News . . . A first-team all-ACC selection for the second year in a row . . . Tech's first two-time all-ACC player since Robert Lavette in 1984-85 and first first-team all-America since Pat Swilling and John Davis in 1985 . . . Led the ACC and tied for 12th in the nation in interceptions with five (0.56 per game) . . . Added 60 tackles and four pass breakups . . . Picked off two interceptions against nationally-ranked South Carolina . . . Intercepted four passes in Tech's first four games . . . Played extremely well in those four games before he sustained a severely sprained ankle returning a kickoff against Clemson and missed the next two games . . . Returned for Tech's showdown with No. 1 Virginia but the injury hampered his play the rest of the season . . . Season high of 12 tackles against N.C. State, plus 11 vs. Clemson, Virginia Tech and Georgia.

1989: Standout sophomore season in which he was named a third team all-America by the Associated Press and honorable mention all-America by United Press International . . . Finished sixth in the balloting for the Thorpe Award . . . Named first-team all-Atlantic Coast Conference by the both AP and UPI . . . Selected ACC "Defensive Back of the Week" three times for his performances against N.C. State, Clemson and Maryland . . . Named national "Defensive Player of the Week" by both Sports Illustrated and The Sporting News for his performance in Tech's 30-14 win over nationally-ranked Clemson in which he had 15 tackles and one pass interception . . . Became the first player in Tech history to return two interceptions for 70 yards or more in a season . . . Raced 95 yards for a touchdown against N.C. State and also ran back an interception 72 yards against Boston College for a score . . . In addition he had a 99-yard interception return for a two-point conversion against Duke, the first in ACC history . . . In all, he intercepted six passes on the season, returning them a total of 200 yards, a 33.3 yard-average . . . Had a career-high 19 tackles against Virginia . . . Added 13 hits against South Carolina, 12 against Maryland and 11 versus N.C. State . . .

ALL-STAR PROFILE

Recorded 93 tackles for the season, third on the team and the seventh best single season mark for a defensive back in Tech history.

1988: One of the top rookies in the ACC in 1988, when he was named a Freshman All-America by The Sporting News . . . Started 10 of 11 games . . . Tech's 10th leading tackler with 48 hits plus one caused fumble and four pass breakups . . . Top games included 10 tackles against Clemson, seven versus North Carolina and five against Georgia, Virginia and UT-Chattanooga . . . Ranked sixth in the ACC in kickoff returns with a 22.3 average on 25 returns . . . Had long return of 51 yards against Maryland plus a 46-yarder at Virginia and a 38-yarder versus N.C. State . . . Started the season opener against UT-Chattanooga to become Tech's first true freshman to start his opening game since Reginald Rutland in 1983.

HIGH SCHOOL: One of Tech's most publicized signees in recent years . . . Parade Magazine and USA Today prep all-America . . . Ranked the No. 3 player in Georgia, the 13th best player in the Southeast and the 24th best in the nation by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution . . . Rushed for 920 yards and averaged 20 yards a catch on 16 receptions for coach Rodney Walker at Stephens County High . . . Made five interceptions and averaged six tackles per game . . .

PERSONAL: Jerry Kenneth Swilling . . . Cousin of former Tech all-America and current New Orleans Saint Pat Swilling . . . Current teammate Darrell Swilling is also his cousin . . . Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry K. Swilling of Toccoa . . . Born September 25, 1970 . . . Majoring in Management.

Q: Last year, you predicted Georgia Tech would be undefeated. What's your prognostication for 1991?

A: "It's hard to say, but I'll say this. If we come back prepared and ready to play, then it's a very distinct possibility that we could go 12-0 in 1991. The chemistry has to be there this year. It's a totally different ball club this year because we have new leaders, and new faces at different positions. It's going to be fun to see how many people respond to the challenge.

"I'm faced with a challenge myself as far as taking on a new position at strong safety. I played it in the spring and it was fun. I think I had one of my most productive springs. I think I'm a natural strong safety. I wish I had been there sooner. After going through the spring, I realized I could play the position.

Q: Talk a little more about your new position.

A: "This year I'll be more involved with the run, and I'll get in there and make a lot more tackles. It's like playing a linebacker, just a little wider. I had some things to learn in the spring, and Thomas Balkcom helped me a lot.

I feel like it's a natural position me. If God blesses me and I go on to play professional football, that's probably the position I'll play. That's was one of my reasons for staying in school, to get my feet wet at the new position."

Q: What were some of the other factors in your decision to return for your senior season?

A: "A lot of things went through my mind. At first, I was really considering leaving. I had a lot of people telling me things like 'You don't have anything else to accomplish on this level. You're a consensus all-America. You don't have anything reason to come back to Georgia Tech.'

"When I was thinking along those lines, I was really thinking about leaving. But then I sat down to think about what things were most important to me. When I came to Georgia Tech, I had the intention of getting my education and staying here four years.

Those things that I said came back to mind, and those are the things that helped me make my decision. That, and prayer.

"And of course, my mother and father helped me with my decision. Without a doubt, I can say that they would rather see Ken Swilling with a degree than in the NFL with a million dollars and not have a degree."

Q: What about your role as a team leader?

A: "It's going to be a challenge for me to be a leader this year because I feel like a lot of the burden has been put on my shoulders. When things don't go right, when I make a bad play, or when somebody else makes a bad play, people are going to wonder, 'Where was Swilling on that play?'

"People are going to look to me to be the leader, and I know that I'm ready to accept that role. It's a role that I've been preparing for for four years. Even when I was a freshman, I knew that one day I would be in a leadership role.

"I really don't do anything out of the ordinary. I'd rather lead by example than by being vocal. Of course, when it comes time to be vocal, I'll do it. When we step on the field, I know what my role is, and I want everyone else to know what their role is.

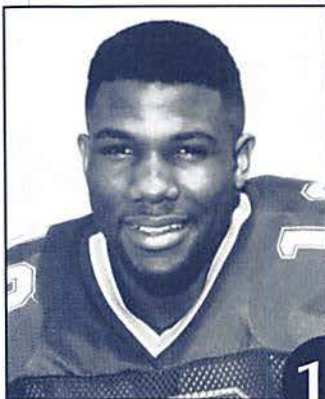

"All through my life I've been in positions to lead, and I think that's my role in life, to be a leader, whether it be on the professional level or wherever else. It's a lot of responsibility, and I'm learning how to accept that responsibility. It's hard to deal with because people are depending on you. You can see it in their face, and you can see how hurt they are when you don't come through.

Q: As great as it was to win the national championship, personally, last year was difficult for you because of an injury.

A: "Yes, it was. I had four of the best games of my career the first four games, and then I came up with an ankle injury that hampered me the rest of the season. It's just one of those things that happen, and I've learned to deal with it. People say I had a good season, but I know deep down I didn't perform to capability. To blame it on my ankle would be a poor excuse and I'm not going to do that.

A consensus All-America in 1990, Ken Swilling made a national television appearance on Bob Hope's annual Christmas special.

ALL-STAR PROFILE

Shawn Jones

Quarterback • 6-1 • 200 • Jr.-R
Thomasville, Ga.

EXTRA POINT: In four national TV games last year against South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Nebraska, Shawn completed 64.1 percent of his passes, averaged 224 yards passing and 256 yards in total offense and was responsible for 11 TDs.

AT TECH: The engineer of Tech's national championship season . . . Multi-talented quarterback who stamped himself as one of the top quarterbacks in the nation with his play down the stretch in 1990 . . . Earned second-team all-ACC honors (behind Virginia's Shawn Moore) last year and will contend strongly for all-America honors and the Heisman Trophy . . . Has shown a penchant for making the big play . . . Possesses a strong right arm, slippery moves and excellent speed (4.5) . . . Has career total of 3,756 yards passing, one of only four Rambling Wreck quarterbacks who have thrown for over 3,000 yards, along with Mike Kelley (5,249), John Dewberry and Eddie McAshan (4,080) . . . Ranks 25th on the all-time ACC list for passing yardage . . . Also ranks fourth at Tech in career total offense (4,363 yards), fourth in pass completions (284), third in TD passes (25) and fourth in touchdowns responsible for (34) . . . Tech has an 18-4-1 record with Jones as the starting quarterback, the best winning percentage since Wade Mitchell directed the Rambling Wreck to a 27-5-1 mark in 1954-55-56.

1990: Named MVP of Tech's 45-21 Citrus Bowl win over Nebraska by completing 16 of 23 passes for 277 yards and two TDs, and running for 41 more yards and a third score . . . His 318 total yards was a career best . . . Guided a Tech offense that scored 40 or more points six times in 12 games and 379 points for the season—the most for a Tech team since 1918 . . . Set a Tech single season record with 2,285 yards of total offense . . . Completed 142 of 245 passes and totalled 2,008 yards passing on the season for the second best season in Tech annals (Mike Kelley 2,051 yards, 1979), while his 142 completions ranks as the third-best season total . . . His 13 TD passes was the most by a Tech quarterback since Eddie McAshan tossed 16 in 1972, and the third-highest total ever . . . Also finished as Tech's third-leading rusher with 277 yards on 91 carries and six TDs . . . Was responsible for 19 TDs altogether, tying a season record set by Robert Lavette . . . Engineered last minute drives that led to the game-winning field goal in consecutive wins over Virginia and Virginia Tech . . . Drove the Rambling Wreck 63 yards in 1:02 for the winning field goal against Virginia Tech and 56 yards in 1:27 against Virginia.

Played perhaps the best all-around game of his career in Tech's win over No. 1 Virginia, throwing for 257 yards and two TD while rushing for 52 more yards, including a 23-yard run to score the Rambling Wreck's first touchdown in the game . . . Threw scoring passes of 43 and 26 yards against the Cavaliers . . . Was named ACC Offensive Back of the Week for the Virginia game, and many longtime Tech observers consider his game against Virginia to be the best ever by a Tech quarterback . . . Also earned ACC honors for his performance against Maryland, when he completed 15 of 24 passes for a career-high 276 yards and one touchdown . . . Equalled his career best with four TD passes against Georgia . . . Threw for 225 yards against the Bulldogs, including 12 straight completions . . . In four national TV games last year against South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Nebraska, Jones completed 64.1 percent of his passes for an average of 224 yards per game, averaged 256 yards in total offense and was responsible for 11 touchdowns.

1989: Had an outstanding freshman season en route to ACC "Rookie of the Year" honors . . . Named to honorable mention Honor Roll by The Sporting News for redshirt freshman . . . Played with a poise far beyond his years . . . Had the fifth best single season passing total in Tech history throwing for 1,748 yards . . . Accumulated 2,078 yards in total offense, the third highest single season mark . . . Passed for 12 touchdowns which tied Darrell Crawford (1952) for the third highest single season mark in Tech history . . . Also rushed for three touchdowns . . . Averaged 158.9 yards per game passing and 30.0 yards rushing . . . Completed 52.4 percent of his passing attempts (142-171) . . . His 142 completions

Q: After such a spectacular year last season, what are your goals for 1991?

A: "To be better than last year. You can always improve. The hard part is trying to maintain what you've already done. That's basically my goal, to get better at what I didn't do well last year."

Q: Is there any one area you tried to focus on during the spring?

A: "My arm, and trying to lower my turnover ratio. Keep the big plays in the offense but keep the bad ones out. Sometimes I was trying to force the issue, and sometimes it cost me, but I got away with it a lot too. I just want to get my turnover ratio down."

Q: Last year you had the luxury of a very big, veteran offensive line.

This year the line is young and inexperienced. Are you concerned about that?

A: "It was like that two years ago. I can't worry about them. I just have to go out there and do my part and expect them to do their part. I can't go out and do everything for everybody."

Q: With the lack of a proven running back, do you think the passing game will have to shoulder more of a load?

A: "I think it might, but I think we're also going to try to do the things that we've always done, and that's be a balanced offense."

Q: What do you remember most about the national championship season of 1990?

A: "I remember playing in the big games. I remember the Clemson game because I don't think I played very well. I remember the bad games. I remember a lot of good things too, but you're always reminded of the bad things. So I'm constantly thinking of those things. I'm always wondering how I can improve on what I didn't do well in those games so I can avoid making those mistakes again."

Q: At what point during the season did it really seem possible that Georgia Tech could be national champions?

A: "At the the beginning of the year, I thought we could go undefeated, but you never think about national championship until somebody else brings it up. I never thought that we could not win it, but I never really thought about winning it until somebody else brought it up."

Q: How do you feel about being mentioned as a Heisman Trophy candidate?

A: "I really don't think about that either until somebody else brings it up. It's nothing that I really think about. It's an honor to win the Heisman, but it's not something that you should go out and try to win. It's just something you should let come to you."

"Just do what you do best, because if you let it get to you, you end up doing things individually. You end up going one way and your team's going the other way. You have to be on the same level, going down the same street."

AT TECH: All-America and all-Atlantic Coast Conference linebacker who is one of the premier pass rushers in the country . . . Earned first-team all-America honors by the Scripps-Howard news service . . . Also an honorable mention all-America by UPI . . . Currently has 18 quarterback sacks in his career and is threatening the career mark of 23 set by Rambling Wreck all-America and current NFL all-Pro Pat Swilling (1982-85) . . . With 29 tackles for losses, he is also challenging Swilling's Tech standard of 37 . . . More impressive is the fact that Swilling set his records in four years while Coleman is threatening to break them in three . . . Has started every game the last two seasons except for senior day in 1990 when Chris Simmons got the honor.

1990: Led the ACC in quarterback sacks with 13 sacks for 59 yards in losses . . . Also had six other tackles for 17 yards in losses . . . Third on the team with 81 tackles . . . Recorded a team-leading 19 pressures of the passer . . . Collected five of Tech's 11 quarterback sacks against Maryland, the most by a Yellow Jacket since Pat Swilling set the school record with seven versus N.C. State in 1985 . . . Also netted 12 tackles against the Terps and was named the ACC's Defensive Lineman of the Week for his performance.

Season-high 15 tackles against Clemson, including two hits for 11 yards in losses . . . Three sacks against Georgia . . . Picked up five tackles, one for loss, one sack, a fumble caused and two pressures against N.C. State . . . Added seven tackles and one sack for a nine-yard loss against Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

1989: Made an immediate impact as a redshirt freshman . . . Led the team with five quarterback sacks for 41 yards in losses . . . Also led Tech squad in hurries of the passer with 10 . . . Had five other tackles for minus yardage and caused two fumbles and recovered a third . . . Collected a total of 63 tackles, including 23 solo hits . . . Started all 11 games at the strong-side outside linebacker position . . . Made seven tackles and recovered a fumble against N.C. State in his first collegiate start . . . Had two sacks for 17 yards in losses and eight tackles—including one for loss—in Tech's 30-14 upset of Clemson . . . Tallied nine hits against Virginia, including two minus yardage plays . . . Season-high 11 tackles vs. Duke along with one quarterback sack . . . Won starting position during 1989 spring drills.

ALL-STAR PROFILE

Q: What was the best part of last season for you?

A: "It was just the winning, the end of the season. Looking back on it, we came together as a team—as the best team in the country. It was finishing the season undefeated and having the satisfaction of knowing that we were Number One."

Q: What was your favorite game?

A: "My favorite game was the Clemson game. I love games like that where it tests not only your physical ability but mental, also. You don't have anything physically left after a certain amount of time, so you just have to go on mental strength. After a certain number of plays, you don't think you can go on any further, but you just say 'I can't quit.' The defense played a big part in that. Every time we play Clemson it seems like that's the game that everyone looks forward to."

Q: How has being Marco Coleman, all-America, changed you?

A: "I haven't really thought about it right now. I like the recognition at the end of the season, but right now I'm not too worried about it. I'm a member of a football team, and there's no 'I' in the word 'team.' As long as everyone's doing well, I'm happy. I take the recognition a lot easier and enjoy it more if the whole team is doing well. As long as we're doing well, I feel that we've got a whole team of all-Americans. I accept the recognition. I take it humbly."

Q: You suffered a life-threatening illness in 1988 with a ruptured appendix.

Talk about the ordeal.

A: "All my life I've had some kind of accident happen to me. I've been bitten by a dog, I've had a tooth knocked out, I've had my arm dislocated, I've had my leg broken where the only thing left holding it together was the skin. When it happened, I was praying, asking 'Why me? Why does it always happen to me? I never seem to have any luck.' When I was through with it, I felt a lot better. This time, I wanted to take advantage of every opportunity. I don't take anything for granted anymore. I look at things a lot different. I'm more humble than I was before I got sick."

"It was by the grace of God that I lived through it. Most people who have been sick like that die—to have it (a ruptured appendix) as long as I did I was very fortunate, and I thank God every day for my life. That's why being an all-American—it matters, it's a child's dream—but I don't think I've changed. I'm still the same old Marco that came here as a freshman."

Q: What players do you pattern your game after?

A: "There are a few. I like Dick Butkus. People always talk about a guy that runs a 4.3 forty, benches over 500 pounds, and has all those athletic abilities, but Butkus was a great player and he didn't have those things. He had it inside; he had the attitude that no one man could stop him. I like him because of his heart."

"I also like Ronnie Lott. I like him because he's not a very big man, but when he hits you it's like he's one of the biggest men on the field. I like seeing that. I like when guys don't have a lot of size, but they play a lot bigger."

Q: You went to an unusual high school. How did it help you?

A: "I went to Patterson Cooperative High School. I went to school for two weeks and I worked for two weeks. My vocation was sheet metal. I got a chance to work—manual labor. In doing that, I learned that I didn't ever want to do it again in my life. I worked about eight hours a day, and I learned what it was like to get out in the sun and really work for your money."

"I think it was a great experience for me because I think it helped me mature. I was around a lot of adults, and that sort of helped me get my mind together. It was different from an athletic standpoint, because we didn't have two-a-days or spring practice. We just went in the summer and practiced once a day because people had to work. We didn't have a very good football team. You had to have a pretty good GPA to get into the high school, so a lot of the guys on the team weren't really football players."

Q: What do you feel are other people's expectations on you this year?

A: "I think people are looking for leadership, and I'm looking for that from myself. The other guys are looking for me to be a leader on the field. I'm not a real loud, 'rah-rah' guy, but I try to lead by example. I think that other people are just looking for me to play my best and use my experience to help keep the rest of the defense together."

Q: What do you like best about your position? Hitting quarterbacks?

A: "I really do—I like to hit. I'm a very physical player. You might not think that from the way I act, but I am. I have a real big mean streak."

"I don't like to hurt people, but I like to play a real physical game. If I could skate, I'd like to be a hockey player."

A first-team all-America in 1990 by Scripps-Howard News Service, Marco Coleman led the ACC with 13 sacks.

Mike Mooney

EXTRA POINT: Mike was his county's high school tennis champion in mixed doubles.

AT TECH: Massive veteran offensive lineman who is one of the most physical performers in the college game... Will be the leader of Tech's rebuilt offensive line this fall as the No. 1 left tackle... Moves over from the right side where he started 11 games last year... Helped pave the way for an offense that scored 379 points, the most for a Tech team since 1918, and averaged 394 yards in total offense and 208.9 on the ground... Tech finished the year second in the ACC in scoring and total offense... Started 11 of 12 games, missing only the North Carolina game due to a severe infection in a previously broken finger.

Finished the season strong, grading out to more than 80 percent—an extremely high figure in Tech's grading system—with a total of 21 domination blocks against Wake Forest, Georgia and Nebraska... Had a standout effort against the Cornhuskers, grading out to 82 percent with a season-high eight knockdowns or domination blocks... Graded out to 79 percent against Georgia with seven knockdowns, and also turned in standout efforts against Clemson and Maryland.

Impressive as a reserve and part-time starter in 1989 while playing at 321 pounds... But weighed 344 during the spring... Coaches feel his optimum weight is in the 315 range... Started four games at right tackle and one on the left side in 1989... Had blocking grade of 69.4 percent with 23 knockdowns... Best game was a 76 percent effort vs. Wake Forest with five domination blocks... Also graded out at 74 percent against Duke... Participated in 486 plays in 1989, fourth among the offensive linemen... Has intensity level, work habits and ability to be an all-star player... Very physical performer who still needs technique improvement... Started one game vs. VMI in 1988, and played eight games overall... Redshirted in 1987.

HIGH SCHOOL: All-conference and all-county performer as an offensive tackle for coach Ken Parker at South Carroll High in Sykesville, Md... Served as team captain... Lettered three times in football and basketball and once in tennis and track... Was tri-state champion in the shot put.

PERSONAL: Michael Paul Mooney... Born May 31, 1969 in Baltimore... Parents are Robert and Charlette Mooney of Mount Airy... Majoring in Management.

ALL-STAR PROFILE

Q: As a leader of the line, with so many reserves stepping into prominent roles, what is your role in trying to assimilate them into the group?

A: "I think I have a big part, as well as Billy (Chubbs). We have a chance to be a really good. There's a fine line between being average and good. We definitely have a lot of talent. But a lot of them have not played in a game, and they don't know what it's like to be really tired. You've got to learn to play tired. Of course, you have to be in shape. That's why this summer is so important."

"I think I have a responsibility to build some togetherness within the group, and I think I can tell them some of the things I learned when I was first starting to play and help them through it. Nobody really told me that there would be times I would be dead tired but I still had to play."

"There's going to be a time when you wonder what you're doing out there. It's 100 degrees on the field and we're down by a touchdown in the fourth quarter. A few years ago, I was lackadaisical about it. Last year, we all thrived on it—being down and having the odds against us."

Q: Describe what it's like on the offensive line, actually in the trenches?

A: "I like it because you're always one-on-one with the guy you're blocking. But then again, if all five of you are not doing their one-on-one job, you all look bad. There are times a lineman can have a great game, but if the line as a whole looked bad, then people think you had a bad game. Then again, you can have a bad game, but someone else can pick up the slack for you."

"I think the offensive line is probably the closest group of any position on the field, especially our team, because we do a lot of zone blocking and we're constantly helping each other. If you don't get help from your guards or tight end, you're not going to be any good. We had a good line last year because everybody was consistently good. Everyone was consistently doing what they were supposed to do."

Q: What do you enjoy most about college football, or football in general?

A: "I like winning. That's important to me. I never believed that you learn from losing. I don't learn a lot from losing. I've never believed in that philosophy. I understand why people believe that, but to win a college football game is the ultimate feeling to me. It's a lot of guys from a lot of different backgrounds who all want to accomplish the same thing. The team we had last year was extremely close and we had a lot of fun."

"I like the pressure of football. You play once a week, and if you lose, you have to live with it the rest of the week. In basketball, you play the next night, and if you win, everybody forgets the last one. Every game in college football is important."

Q: Describe your relationship with your position coach, Pat Watson.

A: "I have more respect for him than for any coach I've ever played for. He knows me as well as anyone ever has. I came here young, immature and lazy. But he's such a fierce competitor, he's made me the player I am, and he's turned a lot of things around for me, not just in football. He's one of the best coaches in the country, and I thank God he's here for me."

Q: How do you think the offensive line will shape up this year?

A: "People say we have a lot of new guys stepping in, but those guys have been here, some for three years. That's a positive thing for us. We lost a lot of seniors last year, but we still have a large group coming back. If you want to put an offensive line together, you want to start out with red-shirt juniors who are competitive. You don't have superstars out of high school that come in and start on the offensive line. I thought some of our guys were good enough to play last year. We'll find out how good they want to be once they walk out there."

Q: Why is it so much more difficult for a young player to play early on the offensive line than it is at other positions?

A: "Most of it has to do with strength and maturity. People have the concept that the offensive line is an easy position to play mentally. It isn't."

"A lot of the time, you're playing against linebackers who are the best athletes on the field in terms of a combination of size and athletic ability. You can't ask a guy coming out of high school to be successful blocking a guy like Marco Coleman. It just can't be done."

"To be a good offensive lineman, you have to know your assignment well enough that you don't think about it on the field. If you have to think about it while you're blocking, you can't be aggressive."

Q: Do you find pass protection more difficult than blocking for the run?

A: "In run blocking, you just get as low as you can, and if you have a good back, you don't have to hold your block that long, just a couple of seconds, because he's already through. In pass blocking, you've got to hold your man for five seconds or more. Plus you don't see what's happening behind you. If a teammate gets beat and the quarterback flushes out, you don't know."

"In run blocking, you're the aggressor. In pass blocking, you have to react to the defender, because good pass rushers are always trying different moves. I prefer to be the aggressor."

Q: What's next for Tech football?

A: "I think we're in a good position to defend our national championship. Last year, we couldn't afford to lose even one game and win the national championship. This year, maybe we could lose a game and still be in it. We've made a name for ourselves. We're one of the best 10 teams in the country going in, when you look at our talent."

"I think we have the best quarterback in the country. His passing statistics aren't eye-popping because we don't pass as much as some other people. But we went 11-0-1 with him as a sophomore and 7-4 with him as a freshman. He's just a flat-out winner, and I don't see him letting us lose many games."

EXTRA POINT: Bryan came to Tech from Forest Hills Christian School, which played eight-man football.

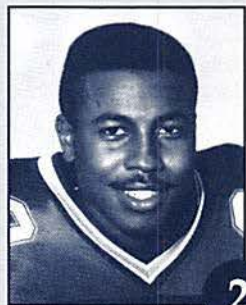

MEET THE RAMBLING WRECK

AT TECH: A fast developing player who has worked his way to the primary backup slot at noseguard on Tech's young defensive line... Played in nine games last season as a reserve behind Kevin Battle... Totalled five tackles on the season, seeing action mostly in passing situations... Collected four tackles, including one for a two-yard loss, against UT-Chattanooga... Picked up two pressures of the passer in a win over Wake Forest... Started at noseguard for the jayvee squad in the Scottish Rite Classic against Georgia and was credited with three tackles... A bright spot last spring when he came back for the last two weeks after sustaining a back injury... Made game-high eight tackles in the T-Day Game, all-primary stops... Has remarkable strength and athletic ability... Runs well (4.8 in the 40) and is a good enough athlete to play both noseguard and defensive tackle... Made two tackles and recovered a fumble in the 1990 T-Day game... Has grown, but still could get bigger, and has improved his pass rush technique... Must be able to play every down if necessary... HIGH SCHOOL: Played for team which twice won the state championship of the Georgia Association of Christian Schools and three times won a regional title... Compiled a 20-3-1 record during his three seasons... Collected 60 tackles during his senior year... Earned a two-star rating by recruiting analyst Joe Terranova... Team captain who was voted team's best lineman three straight years... Lettered four years in football for coach Doug Hilliard as a linebacker and offensive lineman, three years in basketball and two in track... PERSONAL: Bryan Keith Baxter... Born June 5, 1970... Son of Larry and Celia Baxter... Majoring in Industrial Engineering.

Free Safety
Cliffwood, N.J.

EXTRA POINT: Eric's younger brother Jay is a starting defensive back at Rutgers.

AT TECH: Talented athlete who is looking to earn a starting job at free safety after backing up all-America Ken Swilling there last season... Battling Kevin Peoples for the starting nod... Has good athletic ability but must learn to make the big play... Gained a lot of experience at the position last season when Swilling missed two games with an ankle injury... Was often used as an extra defensive back on passing downs and also saw action on special teams... Credited with 13 tackles in 1990... Season-high four tackles against Duke... Intercepted a Wake Forest pass and returned it 34 yards... Also broke up a pass and made two tackles against the Deacons... Made 15 tackles and broke up three passes as a redshirt freshman in 1989... Top performance was against Wake Forest, when he collected seven tackles and three pass deflections... Added four hits against Georgia... Has improved his speed but must learn to play with more discipline... Redshirted in 1988 as a cornerback and moved to free safety during the spring of 1989... HIGH SCHOOL: All-state, all-county and all-conference defensive back for coach Joe Martucci at Matawan High School...

Team MVP and team captain as both a junior and a senior... Totalled 115 solo tackles in his junior and senior seasons... Lettered three times in football and basketball... PERSONAL: Eric Jo Bellamy... Born April 19, 1970... Parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Bellamy of Cliffwood... Majoring in Management.

Gary St. Clair

Guard
6-4 • 268 • So.-R
Riverdale, Ga.

EXTRA POINT: Gary lettered three seasons as a pitcher and first baseman for his high school baseball team.

AT TECH: Moved from the defensive line to the offensive line prior to spring practice . . . Heads into the fall with a lot of catching up to do as the No. 4 left guard . . . With rapid progress, could vie for playing time with two redshirt freshmen in Brian Bravy and Wade Mancil . . . Was the No. 3 right tackle along a young defensive line last season, playing in two games and collecting no tackles . . . Has good hands and quickness to develop into a solid lineman, and played on the offensive line in high school . . . A good summer of conditioning and increased strength could make him a factor in the fall . . . Plays well in a finesse game, but lack of great strength and experience will show in a power game . . . HIGH SCHOOL: Played both offensive and defensive line for coach Sam Pickett at Fayette County High School . . . Selected to Georgia-Florida and Georgia North-South all-star games . . . Voted team's most valuable offensive lineman . . . Collected 35 tackles, two sacks and two fumble recoveries despite playing in only five games due to a knee injury his senior year . . . Graded 70 percent or better as an offensive tackle in every game . . . Lettered two years in football and three in baseball . . . PERSONAL: Gary Ramon St. Clair . . . Born December 6, 1970 in Warner Robins, Ga. . . Son of Gary and Jennifer St. Clair . . . Majoring in Management.

Scott Sisson

Placekicker
6-2 • 197 • Jr.
Marietta, Ga.

EXTRA POINT: Scott has never missed a PAT attempt in his career, hitting a school record 69 in a row.

AT TECH: Remarkably poised placekicker who is one of the best pressure kickers in the nation . . . Booted last-second game-winning field goals against Virginia and Virginia Tech as well as the game-tying field goal against North Carolina . . . Lifted Tech to a 41-38 upset of No. 1-ranked Virginia with a 37-yard field goal with just seven seconds remaining . . . Also kicked a 32-yarder and five PATs in the game for a total of 11 points . . . One week later against Virginia Tech, he preserved the Rambling Wreck's unbeaten streak with field goals of 33 and 38 yards into a stiff wind, the latter with just eight seconds on the clock as Tech won 6-3 . . . Named ACC Specialist of the Week for that effort . . . Hit a 27-yard field goal with 1:01 left to give the Yellow Jackets a 13-13 tie with North Carolina . . . Also nailed a dramatic, game-winning field goal against Boston College as a freshman, kicking 35 yards for a 13-12 Tech victory . . . Holds the Tech record with 69 consecutive extra points . . . Has never missed a PAT in his two-year career . . . Kicked for 84 points in 1990, bettering his own Tech record of 75 points by kicking, which he established as a freshman . . . Tied for second in school history in career points by kicking with 159, 13 behind David Bell's mark of 172 . . . Tied for fifth on the all-time scoring list . . . With 30 field goals, he is just two shy of the Tech record of 32 field goals in a career, also held by Bell . . . Has kicked 15 field goals in each of his two seasons, which equals the Tech single season record, set by Thomas Palmer in 1988 . . . Longest field goal last season was a 43-yarder against Duke, while the longest of his career is 46 yards, set in 1989 versus Duke . . . Won the starting job as a true freshman in 1989 and proceeded to set a school record for most points by kicking in a single season with 75 . . . Made 15 of his 24 field goal attempts, a 62.5 percentage . . . Also successfully converted on all 30 of PATs . . . Finished the season strongly, making seven of his last nine field goal attempts . . . Kicked three first-half field goals in Tech's 30-14 upset of nationally ranked Clemson . . . Kicked two field goals in each of Tech's final four games of the season versus Western Carolina, Wake Forest, Boston College and Georgia . . . HIGH SCHOOL: Honorable mention all-state kicker and punter at Marietta High . . . Kevin Tisdal*

5-11 • 180 • Jr.
Columbus, Ga.

EXTRA POINT: A former walk-on whose performance last season returning kickoffs earned him a scholarship.

AT TECH: Tech's kickoff return specialist who could also earn playing time at tailback... Small in stature but seems to make things happen when he touches the ball... Has good speed and athletic ability... Earned the chance to return kickoffs midway through the season and was instrumental in Tech's victories over Clemson and Duke with crucial returns... Against Clemson he set up the game-winning touchdown with an 85 yard return to the Tiger 13; Tech scored three plays later for a 21-12 lead... Raced 85 yards for a touchdown against Duke after the Blue Devils had pulled to within 24-21... Totalled 140 yards on three returns against Clemson and a school-record 167 yards on four returns versus Duke... Honored as the ACC Specialist of the Week for his performance against the Blue Devils... Averaged 29.5 yards per return, which would lead the league if he had played enough games to qualify... Saw his first varsity action against Maryland, carrying the ball once for one yard... Also came in at running back against Wake Forest, rushing five times for 28 yards... Totalled six rushing attempts for 29 yards... First noticed in the 1989 Scottish Rite Classic, rushing for 102 yards and one TD... HIGH SCHOOL: Tailback and cornerback for coach Wallace Davis at Carver High, which won state titles in 1987 and '88... Rushed for 976 yards and eight TDs as a senior... Career high of 195 yards... First-team all-Bi-City as a return specialist... "The Class of 1995"

On the heels of its national championship football season, Georgia Tech signed 19 prospective high school players, including nationally-rated quarterback Donnie Davis of Burlington, N.C., to national letters-of-intent.

"I think it's a good year," said Tech head coach Bobby Ross of his fifth recruiting class. "I never say it's great. The important thing is the ability to maintain a high rate of retention. That's been a reason for our success."

"I never get too excited about how we've done because the real proof of the pudding is whether they make the adjustment to college and stay in school. I think this is a group that can stay in school and wants to very badly."

"Since we started here, we have recruited 85 student-athletes. We still have 79 of them. We have a retention rate of 93 percent. We recruit with that in mind. Of the six we've lost, we haven't lost one for academic reasons. I think this class has a real strong commitment to an education, and I think that's far more important than some of the other things on the surface."

The recruiting breakdown for the Yellow Jackets, which are coming off an 11-0-1 campaign in 1990 as the nation's only unbeaten team, included five offensive linemen, four defensive backs, three linebackers, two defensive linemen, one wide receiver, two running backs and one quarterback.

Tech's signee at quarterback is considered by many to be the top high school player at his position in the nation and is the highest profile signee during Ross's tenure at Tech. Davis, a 6-2, 180-pounder from Cummings High, earned honors such as Parade Magazine all-America, North Carolina "Player of the Year," and Gatorade National "Player of the Year."

Davis was rated the No. 1 prep quarterback in the nation by Superpreps Magazine and by recruiting expert Max Emfinger. Davis owns the national high school record for passing yardage with 4,478 yards as a senior, including 45 touchdowns and only 10 interceptions for his state championship team. As a junior, he passed for 3,870 yards, the third highest figure ever for a prepster.

"We went into recruiting feeling that first of all we had to get a good quarterback," Ross said. "And I think we did that."

We got an outstanding young man in Donnie Davis. I was glad to see some of his remarks on why he chose this school. He's not only an outstanding football player and student, but he's a very mature young man.

"He chose Georgia Tech for what it stands for, not because of football. I like that in a player. He felt that way all along. He did not become enamored with the recruiting process. He's a kid with his feet on the ground and I think that's very important."

The next priority for the Jackets was the addition of offensive and defensive linemen. Curtis Duncan, a 6-6, 275-pounder from Amityville, N.Y., and Lee Patton, 6-5, 230-pounder from Cleveland, Tenn., a pair of prep all-Americans on the defensive front, earned high praise from Ross.

"We felt like we had to continue to build on our numbers on the defensive line," Ross said. "To me, this is a real quality group. This might be as good a group of defensive linemen as I've ever signed. There's not that many, but they're big kids that can run."

Duncan of Lindenhurst High School was a Superpreps all-America and the No. 68 prospect in the Northeast by Superpreps. Patton, of Cleveland High School, was also an all-America selection by Superpreps, which tabbed him the No. 72 prospect in Dixie.

Two Tech signees—Cedric Zachery and Yancy Sims—were starters in the in the Georgia-Florida All-Star Game, played at the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Fla.

Tech boosted its numbers in the offensive line with five signees, including Yancy Sims, a 6-3, 285-pounder from Talbotton, Ga.; Chuck Vernau, a 6-4, 295-pounder from Greensburg, Pa.; Pete Maiello, a 6-3, 255-pounder from Holbrook, N.Y.; Jason Dukes, a 6-7, 294-pounder from Augusta, Ga.; and Michael Cheever, a 6-4, 245-pounder from Sharpsburg, Ga.

Sims comes to Tech from Manchester High School as Georgia's No. 33 prospect

"There may be some that help us early at key positions. Although we return quite a few defensive players, there's still some room for some people to step in and strengthen the depth of our program."

by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. Vernau was an all-league selection at Hempfield Area. Maiello of Sachem High School is one of the top linemen in the Northeast as an honorable mention all-America by USA Today. Ross considers Dukes a real find from Richmond Academy. Cheever, the No. 31 prospect in Georgia by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, enrolled at Tech last spring quarter since he graduated early from Newnan High School.

Ross also addressed the future in the secondary with the signing of cornerback Lethon Flowers, a 5-11, 185-pounder from Columbia, S.C.; free safety/cornerback Ryan Stewart, a 6-2, 185-pounder from Moncks Corner, S.C.; free/strong safety Carlos Smith, a 6-3, 190-pounder from Fairfield, Ohio; and strong safety Don Hickson, a 6-2, 215-pounder from Blackwood, N.J.

The pair of South Carolina defensive backs are among the nation's best. Flowers of Spring Valley High School was judged the 10th best defensive back in the nation by Superpreps while Stewart of Berkeley High School was rated 12th.

Smith from Fairfield High School is the third prep all-America recruit in the secondary and the No. 41 player in the Midwest by Superpreps.

Hickson, who attended Highland Regional High School, is transferring from Seton Hall University, where he was on a track scholarship as a high hurdler after originally being recruited by Tech for football.

Tech's linebacker corps will be strengthened by inside linebacker Jamal Cox, a 6-2, 215-pounder from Baltimore, Md., and outside linebackers Harry Jackson, a 6-2, 187-pounder from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mike Gillespie, a 6-3, 200-pounder from Silver Spring, Md.

Cox, an honorable mention all-America by USA Today at the Gilman School, was rated the 20th best linebacker in the nation by Superpreps. Jackson earned all-city honors for Perry Traditional Academy. Gillespie was a Superpreps all-America and selected to the Maryland "Big 33" squad from Springbrook High School. Patton, an all-state pick with 110 tackles as a senior at Cleveland High School, was tabbed the No. 72 prospect in Dixie by Superpreps.

Ross says that any incoming freshmen would most likely contribute on defense. Last year, the Jackets redshirted 21 of 22 freshmen.

"I think we'll wait and see," Ross said. "We won't close the door on anyone. I think we're committed to redshirting Donnie Davis and the offensive linemen. After that, it's what they want, where they see themselves and where we see them."

"There may be some that help us early at key positions. I see help possibly coming in the secondary, perhaps at inside linebacker and the defensive line. Although we return quite a few defensive players, there's still some room for some people to step in and strengthen the depth of our program."

Offensively, in addition to Davis and the linemen, Tech signed running back Greg Badio, a 6-3, 230-pounder from Spring Valley, N.Y., and fullback/inside linebacker Rodney Wilkerson, a 6-2, 215-pounder from Franklin, Ga.

Badio (formerly Greg Telemaque), who rushed for 1,400 yards and 17 touchdowns as a senior, was tabbed the No. 66 player in the Northeast by Superpreps and an all-state pick at St. Joseph's.

Wilkerson, who picked up 4,729 yards in his career at Heard County High School, was also an all-state pick and the No. 32 prospect in Georgia by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

Two local receivers joined the fold in Larry Burdette, a 6-4, 180-pounder from Decatur, Ga., and Cedric Zachery, a 6-1, 175-pounder also from Decatur.

Burdette had 37 catches for 601 yards at Towers High School, while Zachery was the state champion in the high and intermediate hurdles as a junior at Southwest DeKalb High.

"I believe in doing three things in recruiting," Ross said. "The things I pay close attention to are if they can handle the disciplines of the school academically. Then they have to be big enough to play their positions and then finally if they run well." ■

Greg Badio

Spring Valley, N.Y.

(St. Joseph's, Montvale, N.J.)

Prep all-America for Coach Tony Karcich at St. Joseph's . . . One of the Top 200 players in the nation by the G&W Report . . . Tabbed the No. 66 player in the Northeast by Superpreps Magazine . . . Named "New Jersey's finest all-around player," by the Tom Lemming Report . . . First-team all-state and all-county and was the first running back selected for the North-South All-Star Game . . . Focus On BOBBY ROSS

"It was an experience my Dad, even in his full 87 years, will never forget. It was one of the more memorable moments in his lifetime."

One of the most vivid images of Georgia Tech's national championship season was not that of a hulking linebacker making a tackle or a fleet wide receiver streaking into the end zone, but of a frail, elderly man clutching a football.

Leonard "Bus" Ross, the 87-year-old father of Tech head coach Bobby Ross, had undergone heart by-pass surgery the previous spring and was only able to attend one game in 1990.

The game he witnessed was Tech's historic 41-38 victory over No. 1-ranked Virginia in Charlottesville, Va., not far from his home in Williamsburg. After the game, when the elder Ross entered the dressing room, he was awarded a game ball by the Yellow Jackets.

"There had been articles in the paper in reference to him and that this would be the only game he would see all year long," said Ross. "Sure enough, he was there, and it was a big surprise to me when Jerimiah McClary and Darryl Jenkins called our squad together and got my Dad into the dressing room and awarded him the game ball.

"It was an experience my Dad, even in his full 87 years, will never forget. It was one of the more memorable moments in his lifetime."

Ross added to the emotion of the day in an interview on CBS-TV after the game when he announced that his son Chris and daughter-in-law Deann had told him before the game that they were expecting another child. Chris and Deann had lost their daughter, Rebecca, nine months earlier when she died of a congenitive heart problem at just 15 months of age.

For Ross, 1990 was a year of redemption. After enduring 2-9 and 3-8 seasons in 1987 and '88 when many doubted his ability to ever turn the Rambling Wreck into a competitive program, he had guided Georgia Tech to the promised land of national rankings, national television and ultimately, the national championship.

But through it all, Ross remained the same unassuming, hardworking coach who had arrived at Georgia Tech four years earlier.

He still arrived at the office before it was light and left long after dark.

He still preferred watching film to hob-nobbing with celebrities.

He still demanded perfection at practice, often jumping in the huddle to show his players exactly how the play should be run.

As Georgia Tech prepared to face Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl on January 1, family concerns again weighed heavily on Ross' heart. His mother, Martha, already ailing from Alzheimer's disease, had just suffered two strokes.

"All during the game, I kept thinking about my mother," said Ross. "I kept thinking, 'I want to get there. I want to get there.'"

And so when the dust had settled on the Yellow Jackets' 45-21 victory over the Cornhuskers, Ross was not celebrating at Disney World, or rushing to a TV to await the outcome of the Colorado-Notre Dame matchup in the Orange Bowl. Instead, he was off to Williamsburg, Va., to be with his mother, and he was still at her side the next day when Georgia Tech learned that it had been awarded the national championship by the United Press International coaches' poll.

"He never talked to us about the situation with his mother, but I could tell he wasn't exactly himself," said strong safety Thomas Balkcom. "Coach Ross is a real strong man, and he doesn't like for people to know when he is shaken.

"I can remember when we were going through our bad years and he had little kids who would come up to him and say, 'You're no good. You should be fired.' He never flinched." ■

5th Season at Tech

23-21-1 (.522)

15th Season Overall

86-71-2 (.547)

Innovative, aggressive, unpredictable and disciplined are adjectives that provide an accurate description for the coaching philosophy of Georgia Tech's Bobby Ross. Another set of qualities though, such as unassuming and hard working, family-oriented and caring, describe Bobby Ross, the man. Together they provide a glimpse into the person who is the driving influence behind a new era in the Rambling Wreck's storied football tradition.

In 1990, Ross directed Tech to the United Press International national championship as the nation's only unbeaten team at 11-0-1 following a convincing win over Nebraska in the Florida Citrus Bowl. The Jackets won their first ACC title in school history and their first national and conference championship of any kind since 1952.

A consensus National "Coach of the Year" and the ACC "Coach of the Year," Ross returned Tech to the glory days of Bobby Dodd as the No. 1 ranked team by UPI, The Sporting News and Scripps Howard.

In four short years, the 54-year-old Ross has completed a remarkable turnaround of the Tech program and delivered the Rambling Wreck to national prominence. After struggling through a 5-20 mark in his first 25 games on the Flats, Ross' teams have won 18 of their last 20 games.

Tech made its first appearance in a New Year's Day bowl since 1966 with its trip to the Citrus Bowl. Tech beat Nebraska 45-21 as the Jackets moved into first place in NCAA history in bowl game winning percentage at 16-8 (.667).

Ross collected the biggest win of his coaching career last fall when Tech knocked off No. 1 Virginia, 41-38, in a nationally-televised thriller in Charlottesville. A two-touchdown underdog, Tech came back from deficits of 13-0 and 28-14 before kicking the winning field goal with seven seconds left.

Two of Ross' players earned all-America accolades with free safety Ken Swilling, a first-team selection by the Associated Press, the FWAA, Kodak, Walter Camp, Football News and Scripps Howard, and outside linebacker Marco Coleman, a first-team selection by Scripps Howard. Tech also had its highest number of all-ACC honorees with 10, including five on the first-team. Fullback Stefen Scotton was also tabbed a first-team Academic all-America.

The success of 1990 was earmarked by the strong finish of the 1989 campaign. Tech won seven of its last eight games to post a 7-4 record—the Jackets' first winning season in four years—while decisively defeating a pair of bowl-bound football teams in archrivals Clemson and Georgia.

The Rambling Wreck was ranked 31st nationally by The Sporting News in its final Top 40 national poll. Ross' program was also tabbed by The Sporting News as one of the nation's top programs to watch for in the decade of the 1990s.

In 1989, Ross had a pair of all-America performers in Swilling and running back Jerry Mays, an honorable mention pick by AP and UPI. Quarterback Shawn Jones was named the ACC's Rookie-of-the-Year while no fewer than five Tech players were named all-ACC.

The turnaround in 1989 of Tech's football fortunes was really foreshadowed by Ross' 1988 squad, that despite a 3-8 record, ranked 15th nationally in total defense and seventh in pass defense. The 1988 squad lost six games by a total of 32 points and literally came within three plays of a winning season.

But that squad also recorded one of the great upsets in Tech history when the Jackets downed unbeaten and then eighth-ranked South Carolina, 34-0. The promise of that afternoon became reality in 1989, as Tech dominated its foes down the stretch, outscoring its opposition 123-55 in its last

"I always take an approach with my players that I want to treat them with the same respect that I would give to my children. And, if my child is going to college, I want him or her to get an education. I want that as a priority because, ultimately, that is why they are in school."

four games—all of them Yellow Jacket wins.

Bobby Ross football was in evidence over the last eight games of the 1989 season, combining a balanced, yet explosive offense with hard-hitting defensive football. It was this kind of football that allowed Ross to guide Maryland to three Atlantic Coast Conference titles and four post-season bowl games during his five autumns as head coach in College Park.

But Ross has brought a lot more than a resume of ACC championship rings, bowl game trophies, all-Americans and pro players to Georgia Tech. The respect for him stems from his integrity as a fair and caring coach, who wants his players to reach their potential in both the academic and athletic settings.

His emphasis on academic responsibility to his players is a matter of documented record. In 1988 alone, his former school, Maryland, was honored by the College Football Association (CFA) for a graduation rate of its football players that was one of the Top 10 in the nation at the same time that his current school, Georgia Tech, received exactly the same honor. Tech repeated among the CFA's top schools in graduation rates again in 1989 and 1990. Tech's squad also achieved its best academic quarter in recent history in winter quarter 1990.

A native of Richmond, Va., Ross became only the eighth full-time head football coach in Tech history on Jan. 5, 1987 after a month as an assistant coach with the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League.

In becoming Tech's head coach, Ross joins a select group as three of his forerunners—John Heisman, William Alexander and Bobby Dodd—each won more than 100 games and are members of the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

In a departure in tradition, Ross is Tech's first head football coach since Heisman not to have been a former Tech assistant coach or player prior to his hiring by Director of Athletics Dr. Homer Rice. Not coincidentally, he also entered the position with more college victories on his record prior to his tenure in Atlanta than any previous coach in Tech history.

So when Ross' predecessor, Bill Curry, opted for the head coaching position at Alabama, Rice wasted little time hiring Ross scarcely more than 24 hours later.

Ross had joined the Buffalo Bills, renewing an association with Bills head coach Marv Levy, on Dec. 1 after five successful seasons at Maryland. His Terrapin teams were known for their explosive offenses that resulted in the unprecedented success in College Park.

During that time, his Maryland teams compiled a sparkling 39-19-1 mark, a winning percentage of .672, against what annually was one of the toughest schedules in Division I football.

With an exciting, imaginative offense as its major characteristic, Ross' Maryland squads averaged 28.1 points per outing in his 59 games at the school. Maryland led the ACC in total offense in 1984 and 1985, in passing offense in 1984 and 1986 and in scoring offense in 1982, 1984 and 1985. His 1982 team averaged 32.1 points a game, the highest scoring team in the conference since 1972 and the third-highest scoring team in league history.

Even his first Tech team nearly broke the school's all-time season passing record with 2,284 yards, the most yards by air for a Rambling Wreck squad since the record of 2,376 yards was set in 1968. Quarterback Todd Rampley set a single season school record for most completions with 154.

His 1989 Tech squad saw redshirt freshman quarterback Shawn Jones record the third-highest single-season mark for total yardage in Tech history (2,078), while at the same time, senior running back Jerry Mays recorded the second-best single-season rushing total (1,349) in Yellow Jacket annals.

Ross' teams, though, have played defense as well, leading the conference in scoring and rushing defense in 1982 and in total and rushing defense in 1985 while at Maryland. In 1988, Georgia Tech was the ACC's top team in pass defense and third in total defense.

In his first season at College Park, Ross was named ACC "Coach of the Year" as well as District III "Coach of the Year" after the 1982 campaign that saw Maryland post an 8-4 record and earn a trip to the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii. That year he was also named National "Coach of the Year" by the Washington Touchdown Club.

His second Maryland squad in 1983 also recorded an 8-4 record and was chosen for the Florida Citrus Bowl. His 1984 squad posted a 9-3 mark, including a win over Tennessee in the Sun Bowl, and his 1985 squad also managed a 9-3 mark with a win over Syracuse in the Cherry Bowl.

In his first four years at Maryland, the Terrapins won 21 of 22 ACC games, including a winning streak of 17 straight conference games.

The results of his successful program were electric in the Washington, D.C. area, a region previously dominated by pro football interest. During his time in College Park, Maryland's attendance showed a marked increase, shattering all previous records. Maryland had a per game increase of 8,225 fans in his first season, climbing over 20,000 per game to a school record average of 51,546 in 1985. Seven of the 10 largest crowds in Maryland football history were recorded during the Ross years.

Perhaps if there was any one game indicative of his all-out, never-say-die coaching style it might have been Maryland's thrilling 42-40 win over nationally-ranked Miami during the 1984 season. Making the greatest comeback in Division I history, Ross coached the Terps from a 31-0 half-time deficit to a last-second win over the Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl in Miami.

Born Dec. 23, 1936 in Richmond, Ross, 54, is a 26-year veteran of coaching in the college and professional ranks. A three-sport letterman at VMI in football, basketball and baseball, Ross graduated from the Lexington, Va., school in 1959 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English and History. He started at quarterback and defensive back for two seasons and served as captain of the football team as a senior.

He credits his coach at VMI, former Georgia Tech assistant athletic director John McKenna, with being the major influence on his coaching career. McKenna's presence in Atlanta—the veteran college coach and administrator is now retired—was more than a small factor in Ross accepting the head coaching position at Georgia Tech.

Perhaps McKenna, a confidante of Ross throughout his career, knows the former VMI quarterback as well as anyone.

"I'll sum him up for you," said McKenna on the day Ross assumed his duties at Tech. "If all of the coaches in the country could be pooled for a draft, any school would do well to look at Bobby Ross closely and carefully. He's the best."

"You're talking about someone who went to a school where you could not lie, cheat or steal, and lettered in three sports. He served in the military and recruited and coached at very tough academic schools. He's an astute student of the game, and he knows how to win, as a player and a coach. There's nobody better."

After a tour of duty in the U.S. Army as a First Lieutenant (1960-62) and four years of coaching on the prep level, including two seasons as a head coach at Colonial Heights (Va.) High (1963-64), he started his collegiate coaching with McKenna at VMI as freshman football coach in 1965. He then spent one season as an assistant coach at VMI (1966), four years (1967-70) as an assistant at William and Mary, one year at Rice (1971) and one year at Maryland (1972) before beginning his head coaching career at The Citadel in 1973.

Ross, whose overall 14-year college head coaching record is 86-71-2 (.547), spent five seasons as head coach at The Citadel (1973-77), leaving to become an assistant coach in the National Football League under Marv Levy with the Kansas City Chiefs in 1978.

After four seasons (1978-81) with the Chiefs, Ross assumed the head coaching duties at Maryland prior to the 1982 season, succeeding Jerry Claiborne.

In addition to his other accomplishments at Maryland, Ross and his staff developed six all-Americans such as quarterback Boomer Esiason, offensive tackle J.D. Maarleveld, offensive guard Ron Solt, center Kevin Glover, linebacker Eric Wilson and safety Al Covington.

No fewer than 38 of Ross' players have earned all-ACC recognition, including guard Joe Siffri, free safety Ken Swilling, cornerback Willie Clay, inside linebacker Calvin Tiggle, outside linebacker Marco Coleman, wide receiver Emmett Merchant, tight end Tom Covington, quarterback Shawn Jones, defensive tackle Jerimiah McClary and offensive tackle Darryl Jenkins in 1990. Thirty-five of his players have been invited to post-season all-star games with Jenkins playing in the 1991 Senior Bowl.

His impact on Maryland's offense can be measured by the fact that he developed the school's two greatest all-time passers in Esiason and Stan Gelbaugh, who broke most of Esiason's records, its all-time leading scorer in fullback Rick Badanjek, its all-time placekicking leader in Jess Atkinson and its all-time leading receiver in Greg Hill.

Ross shares a uniquely personal relationship with his players. During practice he is involved in all facets of the game. He enjoys teaching and usually can be found in the huddle with his team.

A measure of the respect with which he is regarded in the coaching profession, Ross has been able to assemble a coaching staff at Tech that includes six aides who previously served as either offensive or defensive coordinators at their respective schools.

Offensive Coordinator • Quarterbacks

"I see myself as a teacher of football and how it relates to life. I want to see young men take what they've learned on the football field and apply it to their education, because I think it's very much a part of their education."

Ralph Friedgen, a long-time assistant coach for Bobby Ross as his offensive coordinator and line coach at Maryland and The Citadel, is in his fifth season as Tech's offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach.

Friedgen has complete charge of the Tech offense, including play-calling. In 1990, he directed a Tech offense that was the highest scoring team in Tech history during the modern era, averaging over 30 points and almost 400 yards per game. Five of Tech's offensive players earned all-Atlantic Coast Conference recognition, including quarterback Shawn Jones, who is among Tech's all-time passing leaders after just two seasons.

Ross credits him with much of the Terrapins' offensive firepower which produced more than 28 points per game and helped Maryland win three Atlantic Coast Conference titles and play in four bowl games.

He was Ross' top offensive aide all five years (1982-86) at Maryland, and also coached with him from 1973-77 at The Citadel, serving as defensive line coach for three seasons before being elevated to offensive coordinator and offensive line coach in 1977. After Ross left, he remained at The Citadel through the 1979 season, then went to William & Mary (1980) as offensive coordinator and to Murray State (1981) as assistant head coach before rejoining Ross at Maryland in 1982.

The 44-year-old native of Harrison, N.Y., is a 1969 graduate of Maryland and was named Academic all-ACC in 1967-68. He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Jerry Claiborne there in 1972, when he earned his Master's degree.

Friedgen and his wife, the former Gloria Spina, have three children, Kelley, 14, and Kristina, 5, and Katharine, 3.

ASSISTANT COACHES

GEORGE O'LEARY

Defensive Coordinator • Defensive Line

"Coaching gives me the chance to have a great influence on the lives of young people. These kids are leaders on the field, and hopefully I can help them go on to be leaders in society."

George O'Leary, who developed rock-ribbed defenses for Syracuse that won respect not only from the powers in the East but throughout the nation as well, is in his fifth campaign as the defensive coordinator and defensive line coach at Georgia Tech.

His 1990 nationally-ranked defense opened the season with a streak of 19 quarters without allowing a touchdown. Overall, Tech was ranked 11th nationally in scoring defense, 13th in passing efficiency defense, 15th in rushing defense, and 14th in total defense.

In the last three seasons, he has coached 10 all-ACC honorees, including four first-team picks in 1990 in Ken Swilling, Marco Coleman, Willie Clay and Calvin Tiggler. Swilling and Coleman were both all-America selections as well.

O'Leary, 45, coached the defensive line for seven years (1980-86) at Syracuse, and was elevated to assistant head coach under Dick McPherson for the final two seasons. He helped the Orangemen to rank fourth in the nation in rushing defense in 1985 and earn a Cherry Bowl berth, where they fell to Bobby Ross' Maryland team.

A native of Central Islip, N.Y., O'Leary is a 1968 graduate of the University of New Hampshire with a bachelor's degree in physical education, lettering three years in football. He earned a Master's degree in education from New York University in 1972. He coached on the high school level for 12 years at Central Islip (N.Y.) High School (1968-75) and Liverpool (N.Y.) High School (1975-79).

O'Leary and his wife, the former Sharon Littlefield, have two daughters, Christine, 23, and Patricia, 17, and two sons, Timothy, 19, a defensive back for the Rambling Wreck, and Martin, 12.

BRIAN BAKER

Outside Linebackers

"The main reason I am a coach today is Coach Ross. I played for him and I know the positive effect he had on me, and I thought it would be nice to have that kind of influence on young people."

Brian Baker, who is perhaps most familiar with Bobby Ross' style as one of his former players, is in his sixth year as a full-time college coach and his fifth season coaching Georgia Tech's outside linebackers, his former position as a player.

Last year he coached all-America and first-team all-Atlantic Coast Conference pick Marco Coleman, who led the league in sacks. In 1988, he coached outside linebacker Willis Crockett, an all-ACC choice and a Hula Bowl participant.

The 29-year-old Baker played for Bobby Ross at Maryland and served one season (1985) as a graduate assistant and another (1984) as a student assistant, coaching outside linebackers. He was a part of three bowl teams as a player—the 1980 Tangerine Bowl, the 1982 Aloha Bowl and the 1983 Florida Citrus Bowl—and two as a student and graduate assistant, 1984 Sun Bowl and the 1985 Cherry Bowl.

He earned his bachelor's degree in marketing in 1985, and took a position coaching fullbacks at Army during the 1986 season. The Cadets posted a 6-5 record and won the Commander-in-Chief's Trophy, signifying victories over Navy and Air Force. The Baltimore, Md., native had accepted a job following the season to coach the defensive line at The Citadel before coming to Tech.

Baker serves as a member of the American Football Coaches Association (AFCA) Assistant Coaches Committee, representing district three.

ASSISTANT COACHES

CHUCK BRESNAHAN

Inside Linebackers

"Coaching has got to be the greatest profession in the world. The association with young people and the impact you have on their development as a total person is culminated with the electricity and excitement felt on Saturday afternoon as you walk onto the field."

Chuck Bresnahan is in his third year as a full-time coach in charge of the Rambling Wreck inside linebackers after coaching tight ends in his first two seasons on the Tech staff as a graduate assistant and volunteer assistant coach.

Last year he coached two of the Atlantic Coast Conference's leading tacklers in Jerrelle Williams and first-team all-ACC pick Calvin Tuggle as Tech limited its opponents to just 110 yards rushing per game.

Bresnahan, 31, previously served as a full-time assistant coach at the United States Naval Academy in 1986 where he coached wide receivers and tight ends. He was also a graduate assistant coach at Navy in 1983-84, working with the junior varsity squad defense.

A native of Annapolis, Md., Bresnahan served three years (1984-86) as an assistant supply officer with the Navy. He earned his bachelor's degree in physical science from the Naval Academy in 1983. A three-year football letterman, he played in two bowl games with the Midshipmen—the 1980 Garden State Bowl and the 1981 Liberty Bowl. Navy won the Commander-in-Chief's Trophy, signifying the top service academy, three of his four years.

His father, Tom, is currently an assistant coach with the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League and coached with Bobby Ross in Kansas City in 1981.

He is married to the former Erin Ann Curley of Annapolis, Md. The couple has two daughters, Megan, 2, and Caitlin, 1.

MARK HENDRICKSON

Tight Ends • Special Teams

"My role as a coach is to serve others—the student-athletes and the entire Georgia Tech family. I want to help the players learn about themselves and to discover that they can take on much more difficult challenges than they thought."

Mark Hendrickson, the veteran of the Rambling Wreck staff with eight years at Georgia Tech, is in his fifth season as a full-time coach, coaching the tight ends and coordinating Tech's special teams.

In 1990, he coached all-Atlantic Coast Conference performer Tom Covington at tight end.

Prior to his full-time duties beginning in 1987, Hendrickson, 33, served two seasons (1985-86) as a volunteer coach working with Tech's wide receivers and overseeing the walk-on program. Prior to that, he was a graduate assistant coach for two years (1983-84) at Tech, serving as head junior varsity coach during the 1984 season.

Before coming to Atlanta, Hendrickson served as an assistant coach at Cedar Falls (Iowa) High School in 1980, then spent the 1981-82 seasons at Clinton (Iowa) High School.

A native of Richland, Iowa, he graduated with honors from the University of Northern Iowa in 1980 with a bachelor's degree in Social Science, and earned his Master's degree in Educational Administration from Northern Iowa in 1982. He lettered four years in football and started three seasons as a wide receiver.

Hendrickson is married to the former Ericka Dawn Dahlstrom of Martinsburg, Iowa. The couple has two sons, Myers Eric, 2, and Davis Lee, 1.

ASSISTANT COACHES

CHUCK PRIEFER

Defensive Backs

"I tell my players the most important play is the next one . . . the same with the upcoming season. Last season was a great experience. Now let's go on. The key for us is TOGETHERNESS, and playing HARD every play. Everything else will take care of itself."

Chuck Priefer, who has an array of experience at the collegiate and professional level, is coaching Tech's defensive secondary for his fifth season after coming to Atlanta following a year as defensive coordinator at Kent State.

He has formulated Tech's pass defense, which was ranked number one in the nation for several weeks during both the 1988 and 1990 seasons. At Tech, Priefer has coached Sammy Lilly, who plays for the Los Angeles Rams, all-ACC cornerbacks Cedric Stallworth (1988) and Willie Clay (1990) and two-time first-team all-ACC choice and all-America Ken Swilling.

Priefer, 49, served two seasons (1984-85) as special teams coach for the Green Bay Packers, also assisting with the linebackers. He coached one season (1977) at Miami of Ohio and six at North Carolina (1978-83). He spent one season as defensive backfield coach at UNC and five as defensive line coach. The Tar Heels went to five straight bowl games during that time, posting a 50-20-1 record.

A 1963 graduate of John Carroll University with a master's degree in American-Russian history, Priefer started his coaching career as an assistant football, baseball and basketball coach at Padua (Ohio) Franciscan High School in 1963. He became head baseball coach in 1965 and assistant athletic director in 1966. He served as head football coach from 1972-76 and posted a 34-15 record.

He is married to the former Sheila Babuska of Cleveland, Ohio. The couple has four children: Michael, 25, Therese Grass, 24, Jennifer, 22, and Megan, 18, who is a student at Georgia Tech.

DANNY SMITH

Running Backs

"I think to be a good coach you must be a good communicator because communication is involved in all aspects of coaching—in teaching, in motivating and in developing relationships."

Danny Smith coaches Tech's running backs for his fifth season at Georgia Tech after serving as defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach at The Citadel during the 1984-86 seasons.

For the past two seasons, Tech's rushing game has produced an average of more than 200 yards per game, ranking third in the Atlantic Coast Conference in 1990 at 208.9 yards per game.

Smith has coached Tech's all-ACC running back Jerry Mays, who rushed for more than 2,000 yards in two years (1988-89) under Smith's tutelage and finished his career as the second-leading rusher in Tech history and sixth-best in ACC history at 3,699 yards.

Prior to his stint at The Citadel, Smith spent four seasons (1980-83) at William & Mary coaching defensive ends and backs, and there he formed an association with Tech offensive coordinator Ralph Friedgen. At the Williamsburg, Va., school, he coached free safety Mark Kelso, who plays with the NFL's Buffalo Bills.

The 38-year-old Smith also spent one year (1979) coaching defensive backs at Clemson and two years at his former high school, Central Catholic in Pittsburgh, Pa., where he coached current Miami Dolphins' quarterback Dan Marino. He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Edinboro (Pa.) State, where he received his bachelor of science degree in elementary and special education in 1976.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he is married to the former Elaine Petkash of Ambridge, Pa., and they have two daughters, Erin, 11, and Courtney, 7, and one son, Jason, 1.

ASSISTANT COACHES

TERRY STROCK

Wide Receivers

"Coaching on the collegiate level allows us an opportunity to have a tremendous influence on a young man's future. We have a responsibility to see that they become better students, better athletes, better people and better productive citizens of society."

Terry Strock, a 24-year veteran in football coaching, is in his second year as an assistant coach at Georgia Tech, coaching the Rambling Wreck's wide receiver corps where he had all-ACC honoree Emmett Merchant in 1990.

Before joining the Tech staff, Strock, a native of Hagerstown, Md., spent 23 seasons with former Kentucky head coach Jerry Claiborne, eight at Kentucky and 10 at Maryland (1972-81). His duties at Kentucky included coaching linebackers for his final six seasons there, coordinating defensive calls from the press box and coaching Kentucky's punters. He coached UK's defensive backs his first two years.

Prior to his time at Maryland, where he coached defensive backs all 10 seasons, Strock spent two seasons (1966-67) with Claiborne at Virginia Tech as wide receivers coach. He stayed in Blacksburg three more seasons (1968-70) coaching the Hokies' defensive backs.

In 1988, Strock was named the Southeastern Conference "Assistant Coach of the Year" by the Birmingham Touchdown Club. He is the only Kentucky assistant coach to have been chosen for the award since its inception in 1971.

He spent three years coaching on the high school level, first as an assistant at Colonial Heights (Va.) High School (1963), then as a head coach at Culpeper (Va.) High in 1964-65.

Strock has coached such standouts as defensive backs Bob Smith and Lloyd Burruss at Maryland, both three-time all-ACC selections, as well as all-SEC picks Paul Calhoun, a punter, and linebackers Randy Holleran and Chris Chenault.

Strock earned a B.S. degree in business administration from Virginia Tech in 1962. He lettered three years in football and four years in baseball for the Hokies, and was named permanent captain of the 1961 Tech football squad. An all-Big Five selection as a wide receiver, Strock led the Hokies in pass receiving in 1960 and 1961.

Strock, 52, is married to the former Cynthia Fralin of Rocky Mount, Va. The couple has two daughters, Cheryl Lee, 23, currently a student at Kennesaw State College, and Christl Lynn, 21, a 1991 graduate of Virginia Tech.

PAT WATSON

Offensive Line

"I've always enjoyed football, so coaching is a hobby as well as a profession. I enjoy watching players mature and develop; it's like taking clay and molding it into something meaningful."

Pat Watson is in his fifth year as the Rambling Wreck's offensive line coach after working as offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Virginia Tech.

In 1990, Watson coached two all-ACC performers in guard Joe Siffri and tackle Darryl Jenkins plus two-time ACC offensive lineman of the week Jim Lavin. Largely due to his development of Tech's offensive line, the Rambling Wreck had two of its most productive years averaging 370 yards per game in 1989 and almost 400 yards in 1990. His 1989 line paved the way for Jerry Mays to become Tech's first 1,000-yard rusher since Robert Lavette in 1984.

Watson, 48, spent nine years (1978-86) at Virginia Tech and six (1972-77) at North Carolina, during which time his line paved the way for 12 running backs to gain 1,000 yards in a season. Coaching under Bill Dooley at the two schools, the Hokies and Tar Heels averaged seven wins a season, posting a 105-64-3 record and earning seven bowl invitations.

Known as an excellent developer of individual talent, Watson has coached numerous all-star line candidates, including a pair of consensus all-Americans in Ron Rusnack and Ken Huff at UNC. A native of Meridian, Miss., he earned his degree from Mississippi State in 1965.

A veteran of 24 years as a college assistant, Watson began his coaching career at UNC under Dooley as a graduate assistant in 1967-68, then spent one year (1969) as an assistant at Furman and two at Mississippi State (1970-71) before returning to UNC for the 1972 season.

Watson was an all-America and all-SEC offensive guard and linebacker, and was named to the all-SEC academic team as a senior. He is married to the former Freddie Mauldin of Meridian, and the couple has two children, Jane, 17, and Cal, 14.

BOB FRAME
*Graduate
Assistant Coach*

John Misciagna, a former member of the football administrative staff at Maryland, was named Georgia Tech's Director of Football Operations in July of 1991 after previously serving as Director of Recruiting and as a volunteer assistant coach on Bobby Ross' staff.

He maintains his responsibilities as Director of Recruiting while taking on many additional administrative duties for the football program.

Misciagna, 34, had worked at Maryland since 1979 when he was a graduate assistant working with wide receivers under head coach Jerry Claiborne. When Ross became Maryland's head coach in 1982, Misciagna became recruiting coordinator and continued those duties under head coach Joe Krivak in 1988.

His administrative duties also included working with the university's development offices, operating a speakers bureau for athletics and hosting professional scouts.

A native of New York, N.Y., Misciagna previously served as a graduate assistant offensive line coach at Indiana University of Pennsylvania (1976-77) and as a graduate assistant coach for wide receivers and defensive backs at Columbia (1977-79).

He earned his bachelor's degree from Dickinson College in 1976 in Comparative Literature. Misciagna was an all-conference guard and captained both the football and track and field teams. While coaching at Columbia, he earned a master's degree in English.

After serving as a graduate assistant on coach Bobby Ross' staff for two years, Lance Thompson begins his second season as a volunteer coach, working the strong-side outside linebackers. He is also responsible for Tech's computer scouting system and statistical breakdown of opponents.

Last year, Thompson coached the duo of all-America Marco Coleman and senior Chris Simmons, who combined for 20 sacks on the season. Coleman led the Atlantic Coast Conference in sacks with 13 on his way to earning first-team all-ACC honors.

Thompson, 27, started four years at outside linebacker for The Citadel, where he earned honorable mention all-Southern Conference honors after leading his squad in sacks and tackles for losses for three straight seasons.

He earned his bachelor's degree in mathematics and education in 1987, and graduated with departmental honors.

A native of Riverdale, Ga., Thompson is a 1987 honor graduate of The Citadel with a bachelor's degree in Mathematics and Education. He is married to the former Stacy Cambron of Henderson, Ky.

Bob Frame, a former all-conference player at Harvard College, begins his second season on the Georgia Tech as a graduate assistant, working primarily with the assistant coach Chuck Priefer and the Rambling Wreck defensive backs.

Frame was a three-year starter at strong safety for the Crimson, including 1987 when Harvard was the Ivy League champion. He led the team in quarterback sacks as a senior in 1989 and earned all-Ivy League honors.

Frame was a Dean's List student at Harvard, earning a Bachelor of Arts degree in Government in 1990. While at Harvard, he worked in the Wrestling office, assisting with meets, recruiting and fundraising. He was also active in the Cambridge Big Brother program and the Pi-Eta Speaker's Club.

A native of Hialeah, Fla., Frame attended Hialeah-Miami Lakes High School where he was a three-year starter at quarterback. He graduated in the top one percent of his class and received the Jack Harding Scholarship as Miami's top scholar athlete in 1986.

GARY MILLER
*Graduate
Assistant Coach*

Gary Miller enters his second season as a graduate assistant at Georgia Tech, joining the Yellow Jacket staff after nine years as an assistant coach at the high school level.

He works with defensive coordinator George O'Leary, assisting with the Rambling Wreck defensive line and the defensive scout team as well as helping to coach the junior varsity team.

Miller spent four years, 1986-89, at Marist School in Atlanta, coaching the offensive and defensive lines and teaching chemistry. During that time, the War Eagles compiled a record of 48-6, winning one state title and advancing to the finals two other times. Miller coached five all-state linemen, including current Yellow Jacket Boyd Andrews.

Prior to his time at Marist, Miller coached five years at Glenbard South High School in Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Miller received a B.A. degree in chemistry from North Central College in Naperville, Ill., in 1989. He lettered two years as a quarterback, serving as a team captain in 1980. He then earned his master's degree in education from Northern Illinois University in 1985.

Miller, 31, is married to the former Terri Szymanski of Naperville, Ill.

TOBY PEARSON
*Graduate
Assistant Coach*

A former Georgia Tech football player, Toby Pearson enters his second season as a graduate assistant on the Rambling Wreck staff.

Pearson works with Tech's wide receivers under Assistant Coach Terry Strock and will also help coach the junior varsity squad.

A two-year starter and four-time letterman, Pearson played flanker for the Yellow Jackets from 1984-87, playing his senior year for Bobby Ross. His best season was 1986, when he caught nine passes and averaged 15.3 yards per reception.

A native of Morristown, Tenn., Pearson, 25, graduated from Georgia Tech in 1988, earning a Bachelor of Science in Management. Upon graduation, he spent two years working in sales with the Russell Corporation in Alexander City, Ala., before returning to Tech.

Pearson is working toward a Master of Science in Management. He enjoys singing and playing the piano.

JIM LATHROP
Player Development*

Jim Lathrop enters his second season as Georgia Tech's Director of Player Development, overseeing the Rambling Wreck strength and conditioning program.

Lathrop joined the Georgia Tech athletic staff in January of 1988, serving two years as assistant strength coach under the late Dave Pasanella.

Lathrop, 28, has worked as a coach in the strength and conditioning field since his undergraduate days at Northwest Missouri State University in Maryville, Mo., where he received his bachelor of education degree in 1983. He also assisted in coaching the offensive line for the school's football team, earned Dean's List honors and was a member of the Kappa Delta Pi educational honor fraternity.

From there, Lathrop spent four years (1983-87) as a graduate assistant and part-time strength coach at the University of Missouri, and earned his master's degree in education in 1986. During that time, he also received certification as a strength and conditioning specialist through the National Strength and Conditioning Association. Lathrop also spent 1987 as a full-time assistant at the University of California at Berkeley.

A native of Omaha, Neb., Lathrop is married to the former Elizabeth Neukirch of St. Louis, Mo., and the couple has a son, Alex, 7.

Jim Schulze enters his fifth season on the Rambling Wreck strength staff, serving as the Assistant Director of Player Development.

Schulze was an all-conference guard at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., earning all-East Coast Athletic Conference honors in 1977 as the Engineers won the NCAA Division II national championship.

Schulze was invited to training camp by the New York Jets of the National Football League in 1981, and the Philadelphia Stars of the United States Football League in 1983. He also played minor league football for the Alabama Vulcans and the West Virginia Rockets, both of the American Football Association.

A native of Teaneck, N.J., Schulze, 36, has competed in powerlifting competitions on the local and national levels.

Ottie Steien, formerly an equipment manager in the United States Football League, begins his first season as the Rambling Wreck's equipment manager, joining the Tech staff in July of 1991.

Steien served two years as the head equipment manager for the Michigan Panthers from 1983-84, when he worked on the same staff as current Tech Associate Director of Athletics for Sports Science Jay Shoop. Steien then moved to the USFL's Denver Gold in 1985.

Steien then worked as a sales representative for the Wayne Watson Company and the All-American Helmet Company as well as managing Hawley's Sporting Goods Store in Montgomery, Ala. He came to Tech after a one-year stint with his family-owned business, Steien Heating and Cooling.

While attending the University of Alabama, Steien served as the head student manager for the Crimson Tide football team, working directly under the late Paul "Bear" Bryant. He received his bachelor's degree in corporate finance from Alabama in 1980.

A native of Russellville, Ala., Steien is married to the former Sharon Britnell, and the couple has one son, Peter Charles, 6.

Entering his 15th year as an assistant trainer and physical therapist at Georgia Tech, Mark Albert came to Atlanta in August, 1977, after working as a physical therapist at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., and as the head trainer for three years with the Atlanta Chiefs of the North American Soccer League.

He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1975 with a B.S. degree in Physical Therapy. Albert later earned his Master's degree in Education from Georgia State University in 1983.

Albert, who is board certified as a clinical specialist in sports physical therapy, is the former director of an athletic rehabilitation center in Hollywood, Fla. He currently is the owner and director of a physical therapy practice, Sports Therapy and Exercise Prescription, in Atlanta. He is also an Instructor and Coordinator of Graduate Sports Physical Therapy at Georgia State and makes presentations at various post-graduate sports medicine seminars.

Albert, 39, is single.

Focus On MARCO COLEMAN

"Marco Coleman was a monster. He was Maryland's worst nightmare."

—Thomas Balkcom

"I'm glad I didn't have to play quarterback against him today."

—Shawn Jones

A couple of times, I think he may have been a little confused," remarked Georgia Tech outside linebacker Marco Coleman.

The "he" that Coleman was referring to was Maryland offensive tackle O'Neil Glenn, and "dizzy" may have been a better adjective, for it was Glenn who was assigned to guard Coleman on this sunny afternoon at Byrd Stadium in College Park, Md.

But the day proved to be not so sunny for Glenn and the Terrapins as Coleman wreaked havoc on the Maryland backfield, sacking quarterback Scott Zolak five times to help Tech to a 31-3 victory.

Although Coleman posted the gaudiest numbers, he wasn't the only member of the Rambling Wreck defense in on the fun. Erick Fry, Jerrelle Williams, Marlon Williams, Calvin Tiggle, Darrell Swilling and Tom Johnson also joined the hit parade as Tech recorded a school-record total of 11 sacks on the afternoon.

The Tech defense held

Maryland to a school-record minus-20 yards of rushing offense while extending its string to 16 quarters without allowing a touchdown.

For Coleman, his five sacks were within two of the school record of seven, set by Pat Swilling, currently of the NFL's New Orleans Saints, against N.C. State in 1985.

Even more impressive is the fact that Coleman did that much damage in just three quarters before giving way to backup Chris Simmons for most of the final stanza.

Despite his lofty accomplishment, Coleman was most humble after the game.

"I don't deserve the credit today," he said. "The secondary made it all possible. They had the receivers covered so well, I had all day. Sooner or later I had to run into Zolak."

But Coleman's teammates were far less reserved in assessing his performance.

"Marco was all over the place," said Tech noseguard Kevin Battle.

"I'm glad I didn't have to play quarterback against him today," remarked quarterback Shawn Jones.

And, from strong safety Thomas Balkcom, "Marco Coleman was a monster. He was Maryland's worst nightmare."

The Terrapins, however, weren't the only team that lost sleep during 1990, compliments of Mr. Coleman. The 6-4, 250-pound sophomore from Dayton, Ohio, led the Atlantic Coast Conference with 13 sacks for the season.

"I can never get tired of sacks," Coleman said. "That's what all defensive linemen want. When I get them, I'm thrilled and happy."

"When I got one so soon in the Maryland game, it got me more fired up for the rest of the game. It kind of tells you this is going to be your game."

Coleman also recorded 81 tackles, six tackles for loss, and 19 pressures of the passer en route to first team all-ACC honors and first-team all-America accolades by the Scripps-Howard News Service. ■

Dr. John P. Crecine Implements Ambitious Agenda for Georgia Tech

Integrity . . . Vision . . . Patience . . . Georgia Tech's President, John Patrick "Pat" Crecine, exemplifies all of these characteristics and more. Crecine was unanimously confirmed as Georgia Tech's ninth president by the Georgia Board of Regents on Aug. 11, 1987.

Dr. Crecine has a strong background in public policy analysis, governmental budgeting and finance, national security policy, organizational decision making, and computer simulation. He was formerly Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Although President of Georgia Tech for less than four years, Dr. Crecine has already implemented an ambitious agenda designed to position Georgia Tech as a premier technological university. A major part of that agenda is a sweeping curricular overhaul, including new emphases on the management of technology, public policy and international affairs—all programs intended to complement Georgia Tech's engineering core.

Three new colleges were created: the College of Sciences; the Ivan Allen College of Management, Policy and International Affairs; and the College of Computing (the first in the country), as well as seven new degree programs. In keeping with Georgia Tech's dynamic tradition, the process was completed in under two years.

Dr. Crecine has also set lofty goals for Georgia Tech. Among his ambitions by 1996 are to increase the graduation rate from 60 percent to 85 percent, double the amount of on-campus housing, increase the number of National Merit Scholars by 50 percent, and raise the amount of sponsored research Tech conducts by $235 million.

Although Georgia Tech already ranks near the top in the graduation of minority engineers, President Crecine aims to make Tech the nation's largest producer of minority Ph.D.'s in engineering and science, as well as triple both the number of black professors and female professors by 1996.

In 1996, Georgia Tech will also participate in Atlanta's hosting of the Olympic Games. For the event, the Georgia Tech campus will serve as the Olympic Village for many of the athletes and coaches, and will host the boxing and swimming competitions. An innovation dreamed up by Dr. Crecine for the bid and implemented by Georgia Tech researchers is a 3-D computer model of Atlanta, enabling visitors to use a joystick and fly through Atlanta's hotels, athletic venues and the rest of the city, all by computer. This computer model impressed the Olympic community, and was crucial in conveying Atlanta's image as a 21st century city.

Dr. Crecine was born on Aug. 22, 1939, in Detroit, Michigan. After receiving his early education at public schools in Lansing, Mich., he attended Carnegie-Mellon University where he earned a bachelor's degree in industrial management in 1961 and a master's and doctoral degree in industrial administration in 1963 and 1966, respectively. He also attended Stanford University.

He began his academic career at the University of Michigan in 1965 as a research associate and assistant professor of political science and sociology. After a stint with the Rand Corporation, he returned to Michigan in 1968 as an associate professor; he earned full professor status in 1970. His work there included establishing the country's first graduate program in public policy, which he developed in 1968.

Dr. Crecine moved to Pittsburgh in 1976 to become dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences and professor of political economy at Carnegie-Mellon University. In 1983, he was appointed Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs, a position he held until his Tech appointment. As chief academic officer, Dr. Crecine was responsible for resource allocation, strategic planning, administrative systems, educational and research computing services and personal computing, student affairs, educational policies and libraries. At Georgia Tech, Dr.

Crecine holds a joint appointment as a Professor in Industrial and Systems Engineering, as well as in International Affairs.

Dr. Crecine also has a strong technical background. Throughout his career, he has been introducing computing technology to nontechnical academic disciplines. Until coming to Georgia Tech, he was chief officer of the Inter-university Consortium for Educational Computing, an association of research universities making the most aggressive educational uses of computing technology. He also serves on the board of computer-maker NeXT, Inc. with Steve Jobs and Ross Perot and HBO and Company. ■

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Rice Leads Tech Athletics to National Prominence

To understand the high regard in which Homer Rice, Georgia Tech's Director of Athletics for the past 11 years, is held by his peers, you need only know that they have named their principle award for him. Each year, the nation's athletics directors (NACDA) present the "Homer C. Rice Division I-A Athletics Director's Award" to a past or present director of athletics or conference commissioner who has contributed exemplary service to intercollegiate athletics in general and to Division I-A concerns in particular.

To comprehend his credentials as an athletics administrator, you only need consider that it was Rice who took over Georgia Tech's moribund program in April of 1980, and since has accomplished one of the masterful rebuilding jobs in NCAA history. He has transformed a program many thought untransformable into one which in the past 18 months has won a national championship in football, reached the NCAA's coveted Final Four in basketball and seen both its baseball and golf programs ranked No. 1 nationally. In each of the past seven years, no other school in the nation has sent its basketball, baseball and golf teams to the NCAA Championships. He has also overseen an unprecedented $35 million facilities rebuilding project, remaking Tech's overall athletics plant into one of the nation's best.

But to truly appreciate his depth of accomplishment, it is instructive to note that Rice has accomplished all of this while still maintaining Tech's tradition of integrity, on the field and in the classroom.

The adjectives of trendsetter, builder, master motivator, apply to Homer Rice more now than at any time in his 40-year career in athletics.

Whether it was formulating the "Triple Option Offense," which became the mainstay of college football in the 1960s and 70s, or developing Georgia Tech's unique "Total Person Concept" of today, Rice has been an innovator in athletics. His wealth of experience touches all bases as a player, coach and administrator on every level—high school, college and professional.

His coaching career spans a period of 27 years. Rice's teams were marked by wide-open, imaginative offenses, beginning with an ultrasuccessful stint as a high school football coach in Tennessee and Kentucky (1951-61), during which time he compiled an 11-year record of 102-9-7 (an .864 winning percentage), through stints as offensive coordinator at Kentucky and Oklahoma, to head coaching jobs at Cincinnati, Rice and the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League.

His administrative career carries the same creative trademark. In a seven-year stay as Director of Athletics at the University of North Carolina (1969-75), Rice laid the groundwork which turned UNC into one of the nation's top athletic programs. During his tenure in Chapel Hill, the Tar Heels captured the Carmichael Cup—symbolic of athletic supremacy in the Atlantic Coast Conference—three consecutive years from 1971-73. In addition in 1972,

The "Homer C. Rice" Award is presented annually to an outstanding collegiate administrator.

UNC was ranked as the top athletic program in the nation according to its performance in NCAA championship events.

Successful tours of duty as Director of Athletics at Rice and executive management with the Bengals followed before Rice accepted the invitation of the late Dr. Joseph Pettit, then Georgia Tech's President, to rebuild the Rambling Wreck's sagging athletic fortunes in April of 1980—a task that many thought was impossible.

Named as Executive Assistant to the President as well as Director of Athletics, Rice, utilizing his experience and expertise in the field, has overseen the rebuilding of Tech's athletic facilities—which now rate among the best in the nation—the addition of more than 55 scholarships for non-revenue sports programs and the quadrupling of fund-raising.

Georgia Tech's resurgence over the last 11 years includes nine ACC championship teams in basketball (2), baseball (4), football

(1) and golf (2). Tech also crowned several individual ACC titlists and NCAA all-Americans in tennis and track.

Just last season, Tech's football team climbed to the top of the collegiate football world by completing an 11-0-1 campaign, winning the school's first major wire service national championship and earning the No. 1 nod from the Football Coaches Poll by United Press International (UPI).

Only a few months before, the Tech basketball squad made its first appearance in the NCAA "Final Four," achieving a No. 3 national ranking during the 1989-90 season.

Possessing a nationwide reputation as an expert in motivation and organization, Rice has instituted a program at Tech—"The Total Person Concept"—which has been a model for athletic departments.

The "Total Person Concept" emphasizes the student-athlete as a complete person. An integral part of the program is Tech's Hearn Academic Center. But equally important is a series of video programs and seminars on a wide range of topics from health and nutrition, to career planning, to personal growth, to resume writing, which will help the student-athlete acquire the skills necessary to be successful in today's professional and extremely competitive marketplace.

A noted author, he has published five books as well as numerous articles on varying topics from triple option football to leadership in athletics to motivation. He is also a speaker in demand around the nation at motivational clinics.

A native of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Rice, 64, was an all-state quarterback, all-conference basketball guard and track sprint champion at Highlands High School in Ft. Thomas. He went on to gain all-America honors as a quarterback at Centre College, graduating in 1950 with an A.B. degree. He later obtained a B.S. degree at Eastern Kentucky and earned the Master of Education degree from the University of Kentucky in 1951. He was awarded the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Columbia Pacific University.

A versatile athlete during his playing days, Rice played professional baseball in the Brooklyn Dodgers organization during the late 1940s.

Rice has previously served as president or chairman of several national organizations, including past Chairman of the NCAA Football Rules Committee, the NCAA Television Committee and the Special NCAA Committee in Measuring Athletic Program Success. He served as past President of the National Association of College Directors of Athletics (NACDA) and past Chairman of the Division I-A Directors of Athletics. Rice has also been chairman of the Atlantic Coast Conference Football Committee.

Rice is married to the former Phyllis Wardrup of Middlesboro, Ky., and they have three daughters and seven grandchildren. ■

A DMINISTRATION

DR. WILLIAM SANGSTER
Faculty Representative for Athletics

William Sangster, currently Georgia Tech's Director of International Programs, begins his 18th year as Tech's Faculty Representative for Athletics. He is also the current President of the Atlantic Coast Conference, a capacity in which he has served once previously.

In his 25th year as a member of the Tech faculty, Sangster recently retired as the Dean of the College of Engineering to assume his current position, in which he coordinates Tech's international programs at European institutes and negotiates new programs in Japan while overseeing the international cooperative education program.

Sangster has been a member of the Engineering Manpower Commission since 1982, currently serving vice chairman. In recognition of his efforts in minority education, the National Action for Minorities in Engineering, Inc. (NACME) presented him the Reginald H. Jones Distinguished Service Award in 1990, the highest honor in minority engineering education.

Sangster's international activities include visits to more than 142 countries around the world as an academic consultant. He has authored numerous publications in the fields of solid mechanics, hydraulics and engineering education.

Sangster, 65, came to Tech in 1967 after a distinguished career at the University of Missouri, where he was Associate Dean of the College of Engineering. He received his B.S. (1947), M.S. (1948) and Ph.D. (1964) degrees in Civil Engineering from the University of Iowa, playing football and basketball for the Hawkeyes.

A native of Austin, Minn., Sangster is married to the former Janice Gosdin of Newnan, Ga., and he has two sons and one daughter.

JACK THOMPSON
Senior Associate Athletic Director

Jack Thompson, in his 23rd year on the Georgia Tech athletic staff, was named Senior Associate Athletic Director in August of 1988, after holding the title of Associate Athletic Director the previous six years.

Thompson serves as vice president of the Alexander-Tharpe Fund, Inc., the fund-raising arm of the Georgia Tech Athletic Association, and he is vice president of Georgia Tech Charitable Life, Inc. He also oversees Tech's marketing and promotions program.

In the past eight years, Tech has consistently been at the top of the ACC in fund-raising, with gifts totalling more than five million dollars to the A-T Fund annually.

Thompson joined the Tech staff in January, 1968, from the University of South Carolina. During his first 10 years at Tech, he served as director of football recruiting for seven years and assistant to the head football coach for three seasons. During his time as recruiting coordinator, players recruited to Tech participated in four bowl games. He was named Assistant Athletic Director in 1977 and was promoted to an associate position in 1982.

At South Carolina, he was the head swimming coach, physical education instructor and part-time recruiter, and he also worked in the athletic business and sports information office. Prior to his four-year stay at USC, Thompson served as head swimming coach and recruiter for all sports at Fork Union Military Academy in Virginia.

The Louisville, Ky., native attended the University of Kentucky and also served as an Infantry Officer in the United States Army. He has three children: Jay, 26; Scott, 23; Tracy, 21.

JIM MURPHY
*Associate Athletic Director
Chief Financial Officer*

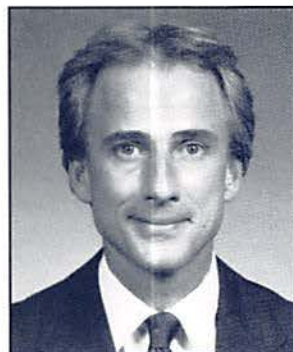

Jim Murphy was named Associate Athletic Director and Chief Financial Officer in August of 1988 after serving as Assistant Athletic Director for Finance at Georgia Tech since 1986. He joined the Tech staff in October of 1985 in the newly created post of Director of Finance for the Athletic Association.

Murphy is responsible for the financial policies and operations of the Athletic Association and the Alexander-Tharpe Fund including the GTAA ticket office, accounting office, sports budgets, personnel matters, cash management, investment decisions, financing alternatives and computer operations. He represents the Director of Athletics when appropriate and is Treasurer of the Alexander-Tharpe Fund, Inc., and the GTAA Board of Trustees.

Murphy graduated from Davidson College in 1978 with a B.A. in economics and then earned his Master of Science degree in Management from Georgia Tech in 1979. A Certified Public Accountant, he joined the Tech staff after a six-year affiliation with the international public accounting firm of KPMG Peat Marwick.

Murphy is a 1991 graduate of The Sports Management Institute Executive Program and has recently published articles in College Athletic Management and Athletic Business magazines. A native of Atlanta, Murphy played football and baseball at Davidson. He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Georgia Society of CPAs.

Murphy, 35, is married to the former Allyson Ray of Marietta and the couple has a son, Matt, 6.

BERNIE MCGREGOR
*Associate Athletic Director
Chief Administrative Officer*

Bernie McGregor, a member of the Rambling Wreck staff since 1986, is now the Chief Administrative officer, Associate Athletic Director for the Georgia Tech Athletic Association.

McGregor has spent the last three years as the Associate Athletic Director for Academics, after serving his first two years as the Administrative Assistant-Academic Advisor for the basketball program.

His new duties are numerous and he will be involved in all areas of the A.A.'s operations. He will represent the Athletic Director when appropriate.

A 1973 graduate of Harvard University, McGregor, 39, joined the Tech staff after serving as an assistant basketball coach at VMI (1982-84) and William & Mary (1984-86).

Born and raised in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Bethesda, Md., McGregor worked for seven years (1973-80) at DeMatha High School in Hyattsville, Md. He taught English and Religion as well as being an assistant to the legendary Morgan Wootten (over 950 victories). McGregor also compiled an impressive 102-2 record as DeMatha's JV coach. He also served as an assistant in both football and baseball during his DeMatha years.

McGregor also spent two years as the head basketball coach and an English teacher at Good Counsel High School in Wheaton, Md. (1980-82).

A former collegiate baseball player, McGregor played in the 1973 College Baseball World Series for the Harvard Squad, which posted a 37-5 record. He also played football for the Crimson.

McGregor is currently a member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) and The National Association for Academic Advisors (NAAA).

McGregor is married to the former Beth Ann Mulvehill, a Penn State graduate, and the couple has a daughter, Maura, 4, and a son, Shane, 2.

MIKE FINN
*Associate Athletic Director
Communications*

Mike Finn begins his first year as Associate Athletic Director for Communications after spending three years as Assistant Athletic Director and five years as Georgia Tech's Sports Information Director.

Finn is responsible for operation of Tech's Sports Information Department, supervising all publications of the Athletic Association, while serving as Associate Producer of Tech's TV coaches' shows.

During the last eight years, Tech's sports information office has earned more than 50 writing and publication awards from the College Sport Information Directors of America (CoSIDA), including "Best in the Nation" citations for its 1985 Football Recruiting Guide, its 1986 Football Program, and its 1986-87 Basketball Media Guide.

A 1976 graduate of the University of Florida with a B.A. degree in Psychology, Finn, 40, joined the Tech staff in April, 1983, after serving five years as an Assistant Sports Information Director at N.C. State and one as a student assistant at Virginia Tech (1977).

He has served as media coordinator for the 1984 NCAA East Regional Basketball Tournament, the 1988 NCAA Southeast First and Second Rounds, and the 1990 East First and Second Round Games. He was also co-media coordinator for the 1987 NCAA Southeast First and Second Round Games.

Finn is a member of CoSIDA, the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association, the United States Basketball Writers Association, the Football Writers Association of America, and the Georgia Sportswriters Association. Tech was honored by the FWAA in 1987 as having one of the outstanding football press boxes.

A native of Hollywood, Fla., Finn is married to the former Christie Mann of Lewisburg, W. Va. The couple has one daughter, Kelly Kathryn, 2.

LAWTON HYDRICK
Operations*

Lawton Hydrick is in his fourth year as Associate Athletic Director for Operations after serving the previous two years as Assistant Athletic Director.

He is responsible for the maintenance, operation and scheduling of Tech's existing athletic facilities as well as the management of special projects. He also helps develop Tech's master facilities plan.

Previously, Hydrick served as Tech's Director of Player Development for seven years, and in 1986 he assumed the role of Assistant Athletic Director in charge of Men's Sports Programs. He originally joined the Tech staff following his graduation.

A four-year football letterman for the Rambling Wreck, Hydrick graduated from Georgia Tech in 1978, earning a bachelor's degree in Management. He served as a team captain in 1977 and was honored as the individual who contributed the most to the spirit and morale of the team in both his junior and senior seasons. He was also selected as the top scholar-athlete on the football squad as a senior.

Hydrick, a native of Washington, D.C., has a daughter, Katie, 7, and a son, Christopher, 3.

BERNADETTE MCGLADE
*Associate Athletic Director
Sports Programs*

Bernadette McGlade became Associate Athletic Director for Sports Programs in August of 1988 after previously serving as Georgia Tech's head women's basketball coach for seven years and Assistant Athletic Director for three years.

Her responsibilities include overseeing the daily operation of Georgia Tech's 16-sport athletic program including football and men's basketball as well as implementation of Tech's Total Person Program. She also coordinates Tech's NCAA compliance program.

McGlade put aside her coaching duties to assume her administrative role after posting a 74-116 record as Tech's first full-time head women's basketball coach. Her teams captured eight regular-season tournament titles, and she coached the Lady Jackets' first two all-ACC players.

She originally joined the Tech staff in 1981 as head coach and director of women's sports after an outstanding collegiate playing career at North Carolina, where she was an NWIT all-America in 1980 as well as the major college "Player of the Year" in New Jersey. She is still the all-time leading rebounder in UNC history with 1,251 boards.

McGlade, who received a B.A. in Physical Education from UNC in 1980, was promoted to Assistant Athletic Director in charge of Tech's seven-sport women's program in March, 1985, and in 1987, she was given responsibility for all of Tech's non-revenue sports programs.

A native of Gloucester, N.J., McGlade, 33, is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA), the Council of Collegiate Women Athletics Administrators, the Women's Basketball Coaches Association, the Atlanta Women's Network and the Atlanta Kiwanis. She also serves on the Board of Directors for the Georgia Special Olympics.

JAY SHOOP
*Associate Athletic Director
Sports Science*

Jay Shoop, a 22-year sports medicine veteran with extensive experience at the professional and collegiate levels, enters his fifth year at Georgia Tech and his first as Associate Athletic Director for Sports Science. He has served the last three years as Assistant Athletic Director in charge of Sports Medicine.

His responsibilities are supervising all areas of the Sports Science program including sports medicine, safety equipment, the athletic dining hall and the Player Development program. He also coordinates chapel and bible studies for the Georgia Tech Athletic Christian Fellowship.

Shoop, 43, came to Tech in 1987 after a two-year stint as head trainer for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League. He also served two years (1983-84) as head trainer of the Michigan Panthers of the United States Football League, where they won the inaugural USFL championship, and seven seasons as an assistant trainer for the Atlanta Falcons of the NFL.

Shoop also spent six years (1970-76) as head trainer for Furman University, directing prevention, care and treatment for 14 varsity sports. A frequent speaker on sports medicine, Shoop is active in the drug education field both at Tech and in the community.

He earned his bachelor of science degree from East Tennessee State University and a master's degree from Furman in 1976. An active member of the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA), Shoop authored a book on the history of the Southeast Athletic Trainers Association in July, 1988.

A native of Wise, Va., Shoop is married to the former Anne Brockman of Greenville, S.C., and has a daughter Farrah, 14, and a son, Lynn, 12.

A DMINISTRATION

KEVIN BRYANT
*Assistant Athletic Director
Marketing & Promotions*

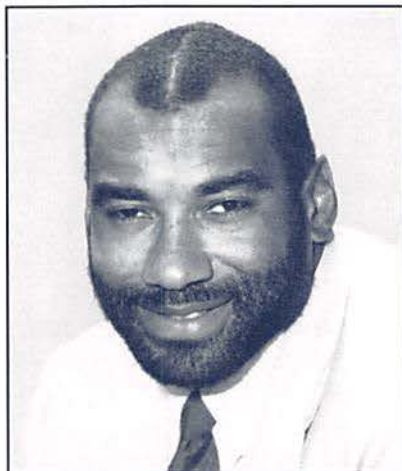

Kevin Bryant, a member of the Georgia Tech staff since 1985, was promoted to the position of Assistant Athletic Director for Marketing and Promotions in July of 1991.

Bryant is responsible for all Rambling Wreck promotional activities, including corporate sponsorship, as well as certain phases of game-day management.

He originally joined the Tech staff in 1985 as the Alexander-Tharpe Fund Field Representative, and a year later he became the Director of Marketing and Promotions.

A native of Roswell, Ga., Bryant, 32, graduated from UNC Charlotte in 1981 with a degree in history. While at UNCC, he lettered two years for the soccer team and also served as Director of Student Promotions.

Upon graduation, he spent two years in the U.S. Virgin Islands as director of guest services at the Yacht Haven Hotel, and then two years as the Sales Manager at the Hyatt Regency Atlanta hotel before coming to Tech.

KENT HILL
*Assistant Athletic Director
Student Development*

Kent Hill, a standout football player at Georgia Tech and in the National Football League, joined the Georgia Tech athletic staff in March, 1989, as Assistant Athletic Director for Student Development.

Hill is primarily working as a counselor with the football program, but his responsibilities are expanding into career planning and placement and other student-athlete related areas. He is also working on the Georgia Tech Professional Sports Advisory Committee, which provides agent screening and career-related advice to student-athletes pursuing professional sports careers.

A native of Americus, Ga., Hill lettered and started as an offensive lineman at Tech for coach Pepper Rodgers during the 1976-77-78 seasons. He was invited to the Senior Bowl after his last season and began his professional career with the NFL's Los Angeles Rams.

Hill became a starter with the Rams by the eighth game of his rookie season and ending up starting at offensive guard for the Rams in Super Bowl XIV that year. He was a five-time selection to the Pro Bowl—the NFL's official All-Pro team—earning the honor from 1980-85, as well as a three-time pick to the all-NFL team and a six-time selection to the all-NFC squad. He was traded to the Houston Oilers early in the 1986 season and completed his career there the next year.

In addition to his professional football accomplishments, Hill started a Youth Development Program in his hometown of Americus that is still active now in tutoring, counseling and providing seminars for young people in a variety of areas.

Hill is married to the former Suzette Irving of Philadelphia, Pa, and the couple has one son, Sterling, 1.

TODD STANSBURY
*Assistant Athletic Director
Academics*

Todd Stansbury was promoted to Assistant Athletic Director for Academics after joining the Georgia Tech staff in May of 1988 as an academic counselor, working with the football team.

Stansbury is responsible for Tech's academic support system, including the Andrew Hearn, Sr., Academic Center. Under his guidance, Tech has been honored two of the last three years by the College Football Association for the graduation rate of its football players.

A former Rambling Wreck football player, Stansbury graduated as a Dean's List student from Tech in 1984 with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Management. He played football three years, lettering once, as a running back and linebacker before suffering a knee injury. He was selected in the third round of the Canadian Football League draft by the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Since then, the 29-year-old Oakville, Ontario native has been an assistant football coach at Woodlands Secondary School in Mississauga, Ontario, and a credit manager for the Citizens and Southern Bank before coming back to Georgia Tech.

MIKE STAMUS
Information Director*

Mike Stamus, who came to Georgia Tech in June, 1983, begins his ninth year as Assistant Sports Information Director. He joined the Yellow Jacket staff after serving as a student assistant for four years and a graduate assistant for one year in the sports information office at Virginia Tech.

Stamus, better known as "Moose," assists in the day-to-day operations of the sports information office and handles publicity for Tech's non-revenue sports, including baseball and golf. He has won 26 publication awards from the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Stamus was the media relations coordinator for baseball for the 1990 Goodwill Games in Seattle, Wash. He has also served as media coordinator for the 1985 Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament, the 1987 NCAA Northeast Regional Baseball Tournament and the 1986 Georgia Athletic Coaches Association All-Star Games, while also working on the media staff for several ACC and NCAA basketball tournaments.

A native of Roanoke, Va., Stamus, 32, received a B.A. degree in Communications, with an emphasis in public relations, from Virginia Tech in 1982. He was a sportswriter for the school's student newspaper, The Collegiate Times, for one year before joining the SID staff.

During his time at Virginia Tech, the sports information office won 17 publication awards from CoSIDA. He also served as publicity coordinator for the Virginia High School Coaches Association all-star games in the summer of 1982.

Stamus is a member of CoSIDA, the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association, the United States Basketball Writers Association, the Georgia Sportswriters Association and the Collegiate Baseball Writers Association.

ALLISON GEORGE
Information Director*

Allison George begins her fourth year as Assistant Sports Information Director after previously serving as an intern and a student assistant at Georgia Tech.

Her duties include editing the football media guide, assisting in the day to day operation of the sports information office and handling publicity for several non-revenue sports.

George has worked on the media staff of Atlantic Coast Conference championships in basketball, baseball, volleyball, tennis, cross country and track, as well as NCAA basketball and baseball regionals and the 1988 Peach Bowl.

She graduated from Georgia Tech with honor in 1988, receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Management. She was a Dean's List student and was inducted into two honor societies, Gamma Beta Phi and Beta Gamma Sigma. A native of New Hyde Park, N.Y., but raised in Atlanta, she attended Marist School.

George, 25, is a member of the College Sports Information Directors of America, the Football Writers Association of America, the United States Basketball Writers Association, the Collegiate Baseball Writers Association, the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association and the Georgia Sportswriters Association.

TERI WASHINGTON
Information Director*

Teri Washington, formerly the Assistant Director of Championships and Communications for the Midwestern Collegiate Conference, joined the Georgia Tech staff as Assistant Sports Information Director in May of 1991.

Her duties at Tech include assisting in the day-to-day operation of the sports information office and helping to promote all of the Institute's 16 sports, including women's basketball.

Prior to joining the MCC in 1990, Washington, 27, served as intern in Public Relations and Communications for the Big East Conference (1989-90), as a graduate assistant in Sports Information at Temple (1988-89) and as an Administrative Assistant in the Howard SID office (1987-88).

She received her undergraduate degree, a bachelor's degree in Business Administration and Marketing from Howard, graduating Cum Laude in 1987. While an undergraduate, she worked three years as a student assistant in the SID office.

In addition, Washington served on the administrative staff for the U.S. Olympic Festival in 1990 and 1991, the media staff of the 1991 Final Four, and as an intern in the National Basketball Association's Public Relations Department in 1986.

Ramblin' rout!
Bee-lieve
MISSION ACComplished!
SPEC-TECH-ULAR!
Tech rolls 11-0-1! Tech wrecks 'em!

Focus On KEVIN TISDEL

"When you get an opportunity, you have to shine the best you can."

Kevin Tisdell must have wondered what it would take to get some respect.

The 5-11, 173-pound walkon had dashed and darted his way into the hearts of Rambling Wreck faithful with an 87-yard kickoff return that set up the deciding touchdown in Georgia Tech's 21-19 victory over nationally-ranked Clemson.

But here it was just two weeks later, on the eve of Tech's Homecoming game against Duke, and Tisdell's name was nowhere to be found on the travel list.

"I jumped to the wrong conclusion," Tisdell said later. "When you get hard-headed, you forget about everything else and lose your cool. I was ready to put my stuff in the car and go home."

Fortunately for the Yellow Jackets, Tisdell resisted the urge to pack up and go home. Perhaps he even drew some added motivation from this inadvertent snub, because he again played a prominent role in a Tech victory.

With the Rambling Wreck holding a 24-21 advantage over the stubborn Blue Devils, Tisdell raced 85 yards—breaking eight tackles along the way—for a touchdown and a 31-21 lead with 2:08 left in the third quarter. For the game, he set a school record with 167 yards on four returns as Tech won 48-31.

After the game, head coach Bobby Ross ensured Tisdell that not only would he be on the travel list from then on, but he would be on the scholarship list as well.

"Before I get asked the question," said Ross, "Kevin Tisdell now has a scholarship as of January. I told him after the game that I'm not holding it any longer. That son of a gun just gets it going for us."

"That son of a gun" was first noticed in the 1989 Scottish Rite Classic, in which rushed for 102 yards and one touchdown to help the Tech junior varsity squad to a 45-0 trouncing of the Georgia Bullpups.

Tisdell then saw his first varsity action against Maryland, carrying the ball one time for one yard late in the fourth quarter of a convincing 31-3 Tech victory.

More significant was the fact that in the game, Tech's kickoff return specialist, Jason McGill, suffered a bruised knee that put him out of commission for the Rambling Wreck's next contest, the showdown with Clemson.

"Kevin came to me early in the week and asked for a chance to run back kicks," said Ross. "I said, 'OK' and then made him run for two days to make sure he could handle the ball. He was fine. He wasn't nervous."

All-America Ken Swilling got the call to handle the opening kickoff against the Tigers, but he injured his ankle on the play, so on the next kickoff, it was Tisdell's turn at last.

To say that he made the most of his opportunity would be an understatement. After watching his first kickoff sail out of the endzone, Tisdell had very respectable returns of 24 and 29 yards.

Then, early in the fourth quarter, after Clemson had cut Tech's lead to 14-12, Tisdell grabbed a kickoff in the end zone and raced 87 yards before Jerome Henderson knocked him out of bounds at the Clemson 13-yard line. Three plays later, T.J. Edwards scored to make the score 21-12.

After the game, Tisdell said, "I knew I could run a long way, and I could have gone farther, but I'm out of shape. I got tired."

GEORGIA TECH

A Vital Component in America's New Leading City

The Georgia Institute of Technology is a vital component of the bustling, booming, international City of Atlanta—and a cornerstone of opportunity for people in the cities and counties of the State of Georgia, across the United States, and around the globe.

In his most recent "State of the Institute" address, Georgia Tech President John P. "Pat" Crecine said: "We are an urban university with the potential for a residential campus in the heart of America's new leading city. We are a public university in an age where access to education is more dependent on resources than intellect, where the costs of quality private higher education are soaring".

Georgia Tech was founded by the Georgia General Assembly on October 13, 1885 and held its first classes October 7, 1888 with a total of 129 students. They all pursued bachelor's degrees in mechanical engineering—the only degree and major offered at the time.

Tech today is looking to the future, focusing its degree opportunities for students entering the workforce of tomorrow—a technology-oriented, internationally diverse workforce. Degree options for students include engineering, architecture, computing, sciences, management, economics, public policy and international affairs, just to name a few.

Tech's student body currently numbers 12,241. Students come to the Institute from almost every county in Georgia, from all 50 states and from 80 countries. They pursue degrees chosen from 31 undergraduate degree programs, 32 master's degree programs and 25 doctoral degree programs.

Although exclusively male for three-quarters of its history, the student body today includes more than 2,800 women. In addition, more than 2,600 minority students are enrolled. The fall 1990 entering freshman class scored nearly 300 points higher than the national average on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), their average SAT score was 1185.

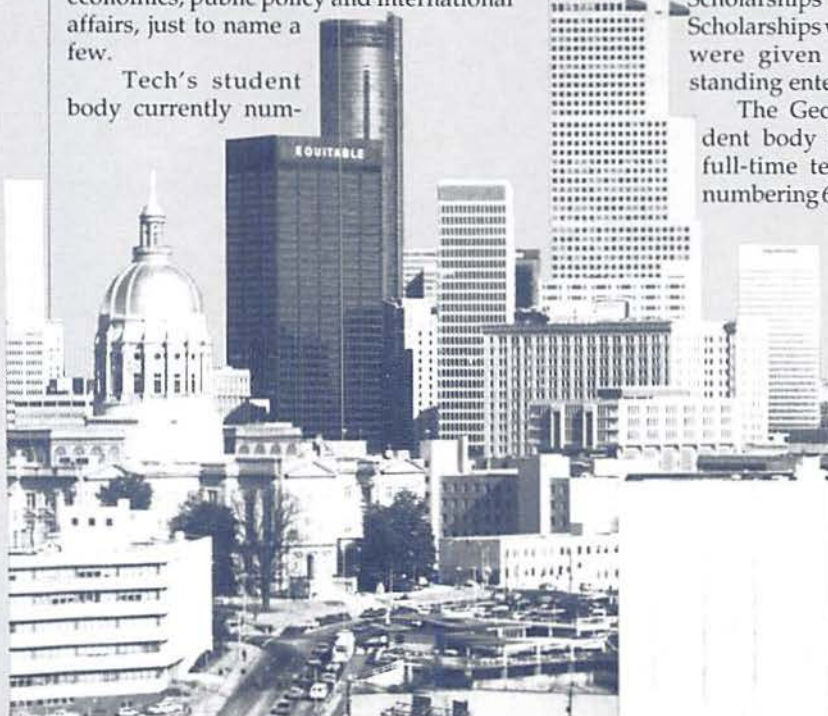

Georgia Tech also enrolls the highest percentage of freshman National Merit Scholars and the sixth highest percentage of National Achievement Scholars among publicly supported institutions in the U.S. The President's Scholarship Program, designed to bring exceptional students to Tech, has awarded 22 full President's Scholarships, 25 Tuition Scholarships and 15 Recognition Scholarships for entering freshman in fall 1991. In addition, 74 Dean's Scholarships and 11 Dean's Scholarships with Distinction were given to other outstanding entering freshmen.

The Georgia Tech student body is taught by a full-time teaching faculty numbering 615 (89.8 percent hold doctorates). Many are nationally recognized leaders in their fields. As of April 1991, Tech faculty and staff held 93 patents and had 52 patents pending. The Schools of Mechanical Engineering and Industrial and Systems Engineering are ranked second nationally, while the School of Civil Engineering is ranked fifth in U.S. News & World Report's latest ranking of the top U.S. graduate schools of engineering. Tech as a whole is ranked number 11 in the top 25 U.S. graduate schools of engineering.

GEORGIA TECH IS ALSO A MAJOR PLAYER IN research. During fiscal year 1989, research expenditures totaled $174.6 million. The National Science Foundation ranks Tech third among U.S. universities for the amount of engineering research conducted during fiscal year 1989. That year, Tech conducted $116 million worth of engineering research, which accounts for 6.5 percent of all engineering R&D conducted at the top U.S. colleges and universities. In dollar expenditures, Tech's engineering program places behind only Johns Hopkins University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, both privately supported institutions. In addition, Business Week magazine has ranked Tech second among 12 U.S. universities it called the "academic elite" for their level of industrial interaction.

Research at Tech is conducted through its major colleges (Architecture; Computing; Engineering; Sciences; Management, Policy & International Affairs), 25 interdisciplinary research centers on campus and the Georgia Tech Research Institute, whose seven laboratories employ more than 1,500 staff.

YOU DO NOT HAVE TO RESIDE IN THE METRO Atlanta area to benefit from the expertise of Georgia Tech—the largest institution of technological education, research and service in the South. Tech's campus is here for all Georgians through its network of 12 regional offices that connect with every county in the state. These 12 Industrial Extension offices serve as conduits to the Tech campus, enabling communities across Georgia to tap into the Institute's educational, research and service resources.

Georgia Tech's mission to the people of Georgia includes a strong commitment to those who live and work here. Vice President for External Affairs James M. Langley says Tech is "committed to two overriding goals: giving Georgia's young people a top flight technological education, and serving as an engine that drives economic growth throughout the state."

"We are a public technological university in a state where public support for public higher education is often linked with economic development goals; economic development is a natural objective for any technological university," President Crece says. "Economic growth in this age demands a workplace that features skilled employees and cutting edge technology. Georgia Tech is in the business of furnishing both of these commodities."

"Our involvement in Atlanta's Olympic bid was early, it was strategic, and Georgia Tech people made a truly significant contribution to its success. Our involvement, past and present, has been predicated on our ability to simultaneously pursue two goals—helping to make the Atlanta bid and the Atlanta Olympics the best ever, and leaving Georgia Tech after the bid and after the Olympics in an overall better position as a university."

—Dr. John P. Crece
Georgia Tech President

Georgia Tech's success is there for all to see through its alumni. Tech graduates can be found on many corporate boards in the nation. In 1989 and 1990, the Georgia Tech Alumni Association was named the number one alumni association in the U.S. by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

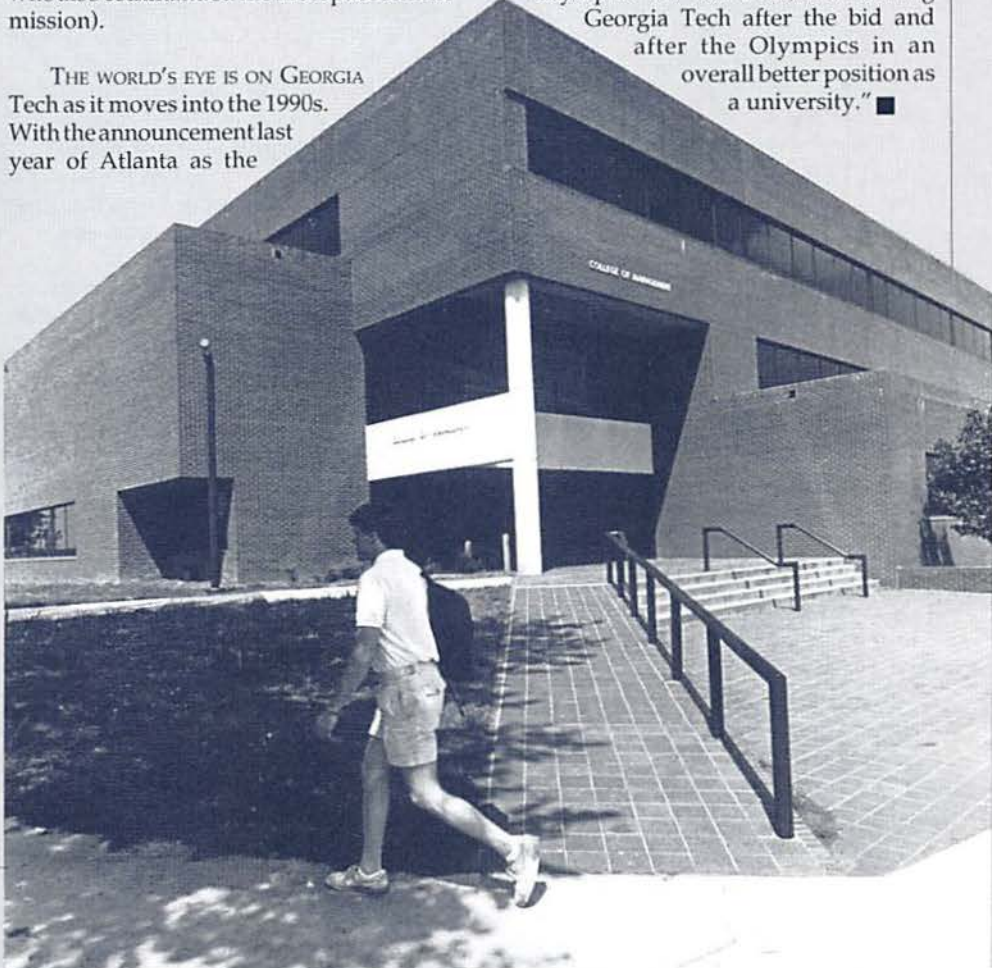

Tech alumni include former President Jimmy Carter, U.S. Senator Sam Nunn, Delta Air Lines President and CEO Ron Allen, former Atlanta mayors Ivan Allen Jr. and Roy LeCraw, Architect John Portman, and seven NASA astronauts—including Rear Admiral Richard Truly (head of NASA) and Captain John Young (a moon walker who also commanded the first space shuttle mission).

host city for the 1996 Summer Olympic Games, Georgia Tech was thrust into the international spotlight as the planned site of the Olympic Village. (Tech produced two multimedia three-dimensional, interactive videos to showcase the campus and Atlanta for the International Olympic Committee.)

President Crece says, "Our involvement in Atlanta's Olympic bid was early, it was strategic, and Georgia Tech people made a truly significant contribution to its success. Our involvement, past and present, has been predicated on our ability to simultaneously pursue two goals—helping to make the Atlanta bid and the Atlanta Olympics the best ever, and leaving Georgia Tech after the bid and after the Olympics in an overall better position as a university." ■

TECH TRADITIONS

"I'm a Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech ...

THE FIGHT SONG

It is extremely doubtful that anything has ever meant as much to an American college as has this Tech fight song, a curious mixture of words and music that grew out of an old folk ballad, "The Sons of the Gamboliers." Since the early 1900's, it has been one of the most important vehicles in making Tech's name known around the world and in the development of the school as one of the most cosmopolitan institutions of higher learning in America.

The late Howard D. Cutter, a member of the first four-year graduating class, who received his mechanical engineering degree in 1892, wrote in the November-December 1942 issue of the Georgia Tech Alumnus that the "Ramblin' Wreck" had its beginnings during the first two years after Tech opened in 1885, specifically, inspired when almost the entire student body traveled to Athens to see Tech's baseball team defeat Georgia.

By the early 1900's, "Ramblin' Wreck" was an established tradition. The earliest existing published version of the song appeared in the first Blueprint in 1908.

In 1910, Michael A. Greenblatt became Tech's first bandmaster and discovered the band playing "Ramblin' Wreck" to the tune of "Sons of the Gamboliers," and made his first arrangement of the song in the form of a handwritten manuscript. When Frank Roman succeeded Greenblatt as band-

It was September 30, 1961. The opponent was Rice University in the first home game of the season. For the first time, the official Rambling Wreck car was unveiled to a crowd of 43,501 at Grant Field, leading the Georgia Tech football team onto the field. It has happened at every home game since.

The event did not establish a new tradition at Tech, but it cemented one. The vehicle, a restored 1930 Model A Ford Sport Coupe, was Tech's first official Rambling Wreck car, and it was an instant success.

Since that time, the Rambling Wreck car has joined a much older tradition—the Yellow Jacket—as the official school mascot.

The current Wreck is the last in a line of distinctive white and gold cars on campus. While there was no official Rambling Wreck before 1961, several fraternities took turns driving various such vehicles.

The first reference to a Rambling Wreck vehicle on campus was applied to a 1914 Ford owned by Floyd Field, Dean of Men. The Technique, Tech's student newspaper, was the first published source to refer to the car as the "Rambling Wreck" in 1927. The paper spoke out against Field when he considered trading the car that year, but he disposed of it anyway.

The Technique, however, continued the tradition by sponsoring a yearly collegiate auto race from Atlanta to Athens, beginning in 1929, known as the "Old Ford" race or the "Flying Flivver" race. As the years went by, though, the race became too dangerous, and it was discontinued.

In its place, the school instituted the familiar "Rambling Wreck Parade," which is still held every year on campus during Homecoming Weekend. The event challenges students to produce outlandish "mechanical monstrosities" capable of transversing a short course on campus.

Tech officials decided in the late 1950s that the school needed an official car that would be known forever as the Rambling Wreck.

Vice President and Dean of Students James Dull began a search for a pre-1940 vintage model, and finally found one—parked in front of his apartment building. The owner, Capt. Ted J. Johnson, a Delta Air Line pilot, had just finished restoring the 1930 Ford Cabriolet Sport Coupe, which he intended to give to his son as a gift.

Over a period of months, Johnson decided to let Georgia Tech have the car for $1,000 in May, 1961. Recently, he returned the purchase price of the Wreck to the Athletic Association in the form of a contribution to the Alexander-Tharpe Fund, fulfilling a long-time desire to go on record as having given the Rambling Wreck to Georgia Tech.

The Wreck was completely restored again in 1982, under the supervision of Tech alumnus Pete George, manager of the Ford assembly plant in Hapeville, Ga.

*I'm a Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech and
a hell of an engineer,
A helluva, helluva, helluva, helluva, hell of an engineer,
Like all the jolly good fellows, I drink my whiskey clear,
I'm a Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech and
a hell of an engineer.*

*Oh, if I had a daughter, sir, I'd dress her in White and Gold,
And put her on the campus, to cheer the brave and bold.
But if I had a son, sir, I'll tell you what he'd do.
He would yell, "To Hell with Georgia," like his daddy used to do.*

*Oh, I wish I had a barrel of rum and sugar three thousand pounds,
A college bell to put it in and a clapper to stir
it around.
I'd drink to all good fellows who come from far and near.
I'm a ramblin', gamblin', hell of an engineer.*

TECH TRADITIONS

... And a Hell of an Engineer"

master in 1911, he wrote a new adaptation of "Ramblin' Wreck," accompanied by many trumpet flourishes, that was played by every name band in the country and became nationally known on radio. His is the version that continues to be popular today.

The fame of the song spread to such proportions that in 1959 it was sung by Richard Nixon and Nikita Khrushchev at their historic face-to-face meeting in Moscow.

In 1984, the law firm of Newton, Hopkins & Ormsby investigated the copyright situation as it applied to "Ramblin' Wreck" and found that a number of people have various versions of the song that have been copyrighted. The original version of the song, however, is in the public domain and can be played by anyone without the payment of royalties.

WHITE AND GOLD

In the fall of 1891, before Georgia Tech organized a football team of its own, a game was scheduled between Auburn and Georgia. Due to the rivalry established in baseball games between Tech and Georgia (which is still strong after almost 100 years), the Tech students were invited to the game to cheer, of course, for Auburn.

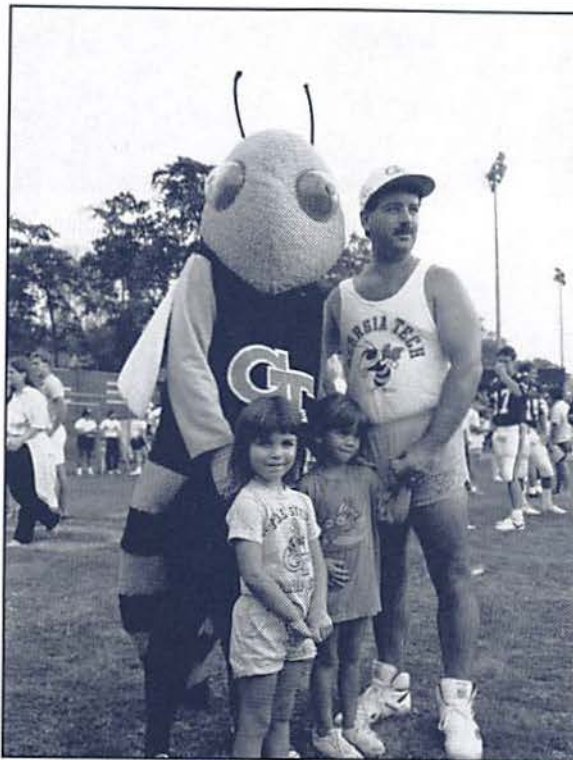

At a mass meeting, the students appointed a committee to recommend colors to be worn and cheers to be used at the game. The committee suggested white and gold, and about 200 students attended the game wearing the school colors for the first time.

In 1893, when Tech organized a football team and played its first official game against Georgia, a group of young women from the Lucy Cobb Institute for Girls, dressed in white and gold, attended the game to cheer for Tech. These girls were some of the earliest Tech supporters to show their allegiance by wearing the now-traditional colors.

*Oh well it's up with the White and Gold
Down with the Red and Black
Georgia Tech is out for the victory
We'll drop the battle axe on Georgia's head
When we meet her, our team is sure to beat her Down on the old farm there'll be no sound
Till our bow-woes rip through the air
When the battle is over Georgia's team will

THE YELLOW JACKET

The Yellow Jacket nickname and mascot are two of the most beloved trademarks of Georgia Tech athletic teams. The first detailed research into the origins of the Yellow Jacket are being undertaken, and many conflicting accounts exist as to the beginnings.

One thing that is clear, however, is that the nickname did not grow out of the familiar six-legged insect, but that the insect mascot, known as "Buzz," grew out of the nickname. As far as can be determined, the first reference to Tech students as "Yellowjackets" appeared in the Atlanta Constitution in 1905 and came into common usage at that time.

Historians say the name, spelled as one word, was first used to describe supporters who attended Tech athletic events, dressed in yellow coats and jackets. The actual mascot was conceived at a later date, still undetermined.

Other common nicknames which have applied to Georgia Tech teams include Engineers, which is still used by some writers; the Techs, the first known nickname which was phased out sometime around 1910; and the Blacksmiths, which was common between 1902 and 1904 and is thought to be an invention of sportswriters at the time.

The Golden Tornado is another former nickname thought to be created by sportswriters when Coach John Heisman led Tech to its first national football championship in 1917. Tech was the first team from the South to earn the honor bestowed by the International News Service, and any team thereafter which approached that level of excellence was referred to as the Golden Tornado. The nickname was used as late as 1929, when Tech defeated California in the Rose Bowl.

In 1927, a Tech tradition began when a mythical student named George P. Burdell appeared on class rosters, registration forms and grade reports, and he has since become one of Tech's most notable students.

The most accurate accounts claim that Burdell was the creation of student Ed Smith. While completing an application form, Smith was struck with the impish idea of enrolling a non-existent student. He even turned in separate exam papers for Burdell, convincing professors that George was a student in good standing. Burdell received a bachelor's degree from Tech and later a master's degree.

During the years since Smith's graduation, other students on campus have kept George P. Burdell alive at Tech and elsewhere. In the spring of 1969, the first quarter that Georgia Tech used completely computerized registration, George beat the system by registering for every course the school offered—more than 3,000 credit hours.

RAT CAPS

Tech has several customs created for its freshman class members. One of the oldest and proudest freshman traditions, wearing Tech's gold-colored rat cap, originated with the ANAK society in 1915. The term rat, which originally referred to first-year military students, gradually expanded to include all freshmen.

Since then, the rat cap has been a distinctive symbol of membership in Tech's freshman class. In keeping with tradition, all freshmen are to decorate their rat caps by writing winning football scores upright, losing scores upside down, and tie scores sideways. Co-ops circle the top button.

Georgia Tech Offers The Best of Both Worlds in Academics and Athletics

Georgia Tech, one of America's most respected academic institutions, has a rich and glorious athletic tradition. It is this combination of academics and athletics for which the Institute strives because Tech does not want to produce only athletes, but student-athletes who earn their degrees and make meaningful contributions to society.

The student-athlete at Tech faces a unique challenge, for the rigorous course and study regimen a Tech student must follow is well known. For those participating in athletics, time must be budgeted very efficiently, and the Institute offers a wide range of support services to help its student-athletes toward that end.

The academic philosophy for Georgia Tech's student-athletes is to see that each one receives a meaningful, well-rounded, highly-marketable education which is recognized by the attainment of a graduation diploma. It is believed that academics and athletics are not only compatible, but a good athletic program in itself can be a very meaningful educational experience.

Through the work of Georgia

Tech's academic counselors, student-athletes explore and achieve academic goals and career objectives. Services offered include counseling, tutoring, study hall, time management, resume writing and career placement.

Counseling involves a wide range of services from assisting the student-athlete in the selection of an academic major and appropriate course of study, to personal counseling for the improvement of study habits. The tutorial program is both intensive and extensive, and it is available on both an individual and group basis. Tutoring is utilized by all student-athletes and not just those having difficulties.

A study hall program is offered every quarter and is especially geared to first-quarter student-athletes. Time management is a key element in success for student-athletes who will learn to budget their time efficiently in their academic and athletic endeavors.

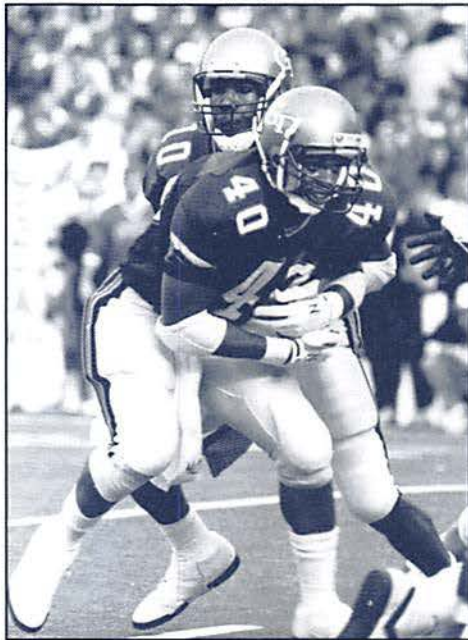

Preparing the student for a productive career is the mission and goal of the Institute. It should come as no surprise that the graduation rate of student-athletes at Georgia Tech is greater than the national average.

One of the physical signs of Tech's commitment to academics and athletics is the Andrew Hearn, Sr., Academic Center, located on the third floor of the Arthur B. Edge Intercollegiate Athletics Center. It contains the most modern educational and motivational aids, including computer terminals, individual study carrels, tutoring facilities and full reference libraries.

Georgia Tech offers programs of study for 31 undergraduate degree programs, 32 master's degree programs and 25 doctoral degree programs. Although a common misconception is that Tech only prepares one for a degree in engineering, the Institute offers a broad academic base to prepare students for any career of their choice. Whether one selects law, medicine, engineering, architecture, business, computers or textiles, Georgia Tech provides the means.

The Institute believes and is firmly committed to excellence on and off the athletic field. Graduates of Georgia Tech have a unique set of skills and desire to succeed. The level of academic competition carries over to the football field and then to the business world as Georgia Tech student-athletes strive for excellence. ■

Stefen Scotton Academic All-America

Georgia Tech's Stefen Scotton, a three-year starter at fullback, was also a two-time member of the GTE Academic All-America team, as selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Scotton earned first team honors in 1990 after making the second team in '89. He carried a 3.5 GPA in Electrical Engineering.

He was the Rambling Wreck's fourth-leading rusher in 1990 with 261 yards and five touchdowns. His career totals include 903 yards rushing and 15 TDs.

Scotton signed a free agent contract with the Miami Dolphins.

EDGE CENTER

Unique Building Houses 16-Sport Athletic Program

Virtually unmatched among college athletic facilities, the Arthur B. Edge, Jr., Intercollegiate Athletic Center is the headquarters for Georgia Tech's ever growing athletics family.

The four-story, seven million dollar facility, which was opened in February, 1982, contains more than 65,000 square feet of space and houses administrative offices, the Hearn Academic Center, locker rooms, training room, dining hall and equipment room, plus a number of other facilities.

Financed entirely by gifts and contributions from Georgia Tech alumni and friends, the Edge Center was dedicated on Oct. 30, 1982.

The ground floor houses the locker room complex at one end, which includes two football locker rooms, and dressing rooms for Tech's coaches, as well as a sauna and steam room. The football facilities have been expanded with the creation of a football players lounge.

With the movement of the Strength Center to the Wardlaw Building, Tech's sports medicine area has been expanded to include a separate facility for physical therapy and sports science in order to incorporate innovative concepts such as sportsvision, nutritional balancing and physiological assessment. The lower floor also contains an extensive training room, equipment room and laundry facilities.

Administrative offices comprise the majority of the first floor, which is accessible through the building's main entrance. Departments such as the Sports Information Office, the Alexander-Tharpe Fund, the business, operations, ticket and accounting offices are located there. The Director of Athletics' office is also on the first floor.

Football coaches' offices and the athletic dining hall are located on the second floor, along with the football recruiting office and a film room. An outdoor patio area, overlooking Techwood Drive, serves as a veranda to the dining hall.

Tech has a commitment to providing the finest training table in the country. Expansion plans include enlarging the kitchen by enclosing the patio area to create an in-house bakery and multiple serving stations for soup, salad and deli bars.

The third floor houses the men's and women's basketball coaches' offices. Offices for the coaches in all the other sports programs such as baseball, track, golf, volleyball and tennis are located on this floor. Another extra feature is a chapel, which contains an etched glass mural of Tech athletes in a praying stance.

The Andrew Hearn, Sr., Academic Center, which includes the latest in computerized academic aids and a spacious area for studying and tutoring, is also located on the third floor. The center is an integral part of Tech's athletic complex and belief in the "Total Person Concept."

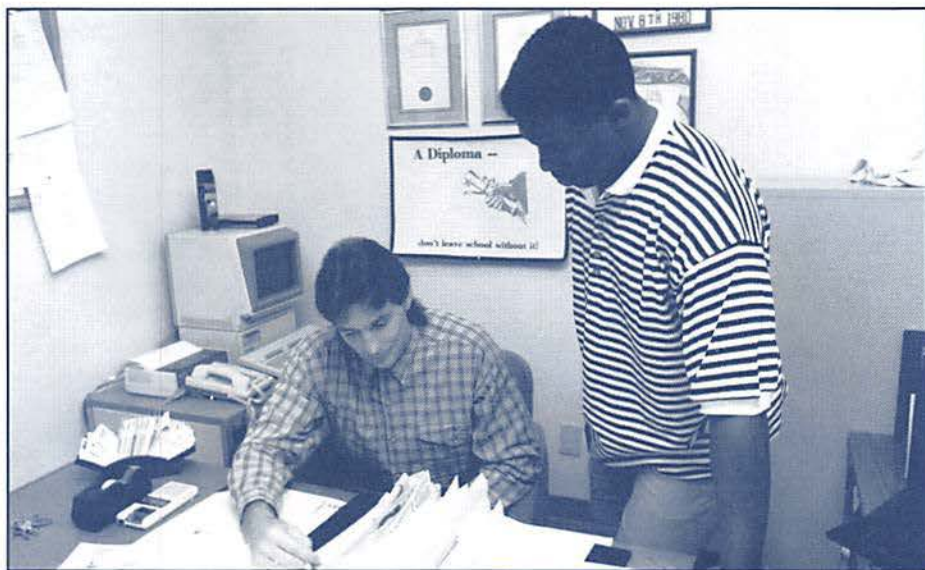

Perhaps, it is not what is in the Edge Center which makes it so unique, but the way the center houses it. Built in a dramatic architectural style, the Arthur B. Edge facility is easily one of the most eye-catching athletic buildings in the country.

A visitor can't help but be impressed upon entering the building through the entrance plaza to the first floor. The lobby, which rises through the top floor to a glass atrium, is adorned with a gold and white rug featuring the Georgia Tech logo and tapestries depicting the Rambling Wreck, Grant Field, and the Tech Tower. The lobby also contains cases filled with trophies, plaques and memorabilia that help relive golden Tech sports moments.

The building is named in honor of Arthur B. Edge, Jr., a prominent Tech alumnus and former president of Callaway Mills. The Edge Center is located at the Northeast corner of Grant Field at the intersection of Bobby Dodd Way and Techwood Drive. ■

"The goal of the academic support system is to give every student-athlete the best opportunity possible to graduate from Georgia Tech."

—Todd Stansbury

Academic Support Center Provides Tutoring, Computer Access

The Andrew Hearn, Sr., Center is the model academic setting in the Institute's commitment to helping each student-athlete earn his degree. With the emphasis that Tech places on academics, the Hearn Center is an integral part of Tech's burgeoning athletic facilities.

Tech has broken new ground with the building of this facility, says Tech Director of Athletics Homer Rice, for the academic center is the focal point of Rice's "Total Person Concept," a prototype model for other athletic departments to follow in planning for a student-athlete's life after college.

Since January, 1984, when the Hearn Academic Center opened, the facility, staff and programs have evolved to offer student-athletes the finest and most innovative educational advantages in the country. Located on the third floor of the Arthur B. Edge, Jr., Intercollegiate Athletic Center, it offers the student-athlete a convenient place to study where his or her progress can be supervised.

"The goal of the academic support system is to give every student-athlete the opportunity to graduate from Georgia Tech," says Todd Stansbury, the Assistant Athletic Director for Academics.

"We really believe in preventive medicine, so the a lot of the academic support system is built around monitoring the student-athletes' academic progress," continues Stansbury.

"One of the most important things we do is help the student-athletes learn how to manage their time. As freshmen, we set them up with a schedule that allocates time for class, practice, study hall and tutoring. We start them off in a very structured academic environment at first, and then they learn to manage their time on their own.

"We also offer a very broad tutoring program with help available in classes from English to electrical engineering."

The Hearn Center offers three rooms which can be used simultaneously for tutoring in a classroom setting as well as 44 individually partitioned work-study stations, which can be used by the student-athletes during the day or night for quiet, private study.

The gem of the center is the computer area, which is equipped with IBM and Apple hardware. There are five Apple Macintosh computers and five IBM-XTs, two of which are tied to Georgia Tech's Central Computing Center, along with 10 printers. In addition, there are two IBM-PCs specifically for tutoring computer courses.

The computers give Tech student-athletes three convenient advantages. They can be used to do homework, affording less competition with other students for computer time, as word processors for writing papers, and for remedial and current tutoring, with programs to help drill the student-athlete in math and verbal skills.

"Being one of the top technological institutions in the country, it's important that our student-athletes have access to the best computer facilities possible," says Stansbury.

Open during the day Monday through Friday and nights Sunday through Thursday, the Hearn Center is available to student-athletes as a convenient, fully equipped facility for study.

In addition to Stansbury, the academic support staff includes Kent Hill, an Assistant Athletic Director for Student Development who works primarily with the football program, Director of Student Services George Slayton, and Academic Counselors Joan McCarty and Phil Hanson. ■

BOBBY DODD STADIUM

One of the Cornerstones of Southern Football Carries the Name of Tech's Legendary Coach

Georgia Tech's 78-year-old football facility, originally built by members of the Tech student body, now carries the name of one of its most famous and beloved coaches after the Georgia state Board of Regents voted to add the name of Bobby Dodd Stadium to Tech's Grant Field in April, 1988.

The 46,000-seat stadium is now known as Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field in honor of the late Dodd, who guided the Rambling Wreck to its most illustrious football era, compiling an overall 165-64-8 record from 1945-66. Dodd, a member of the National Football Hall of Fame, had 21 all-Americans and led Tech to 13 bowl trips during his 22-year stay as the Jackets' third head coach.

"It's only fitting that the stadium should carry Coach Dodd's name," says Tech Director of Athletics Dr. Homer Rice of Dodd, who had a 57-year association with Georgia Tech.

"I don't know of another person in collegiate athletics who remained at the same school as an assistant coach, a head coach, athletic director and then stayed on to help its alumni and athletic associations."

The name change was the first for the facility since it was named Hugh Inman

Grant Field in 1914 after a gift from John W. Grant, a member of Tech's Board of Trustees and a well-known Atlanta merchant.

The Grant family did not give the land on which Grant Field is built, nor did they give the money used to purchase the land. However, they did give the initial $15,000 used in 1913 to build the first permanent concrete stands on the west side of the field. In gratitude for the gift, the Board of Trustees named the field Hugh Inman Grant Field in memory of Grant's deceased son.

The students who built Dodd Stadium/Grant Field almost 80 years ago wouldn't recognize the home of Georgia Tech football if they saw it now. Not only has the skyline around the stadium changed, but the stadium has grown and undergone facelifts of its own in its history.

The most recent change involves the south end of the field, where the historic South Stands once stood. The stands, which were torn down in March, 1986, formed the familiar U-shape on the North Avenue end of the stadium. In its place is the spacious William C. Wardlaw Center, a multi-purpose facility to benefit Georgia Tech's athletic and academic departments.

The building is the first phase of a long-term renovation project which will eventually include a complete renovation of the press and club level of the stadium on the West side, and all concession areas, rest rooms, electrical and plumbing systems.

Seating capacity, which was 58,121 before the demolition, is now 46,000. Future expansion in the stadium will occur in the North Stands where Tech has plans to build a multi-sport indoor facility and renovate the North Stands which would push capacity to more than 50,000.

The stadium is located in the heart of the Tech campus, at the corner of North Avenue and Techwood Drive, and has been a cornerstone for college football for almost 80 years.

The original concrete West Stands were largely built by Tech students and seated 5,600. The concrete East Stands were completed in time for the 1924 season. A year later, the familiar U-shaped South Stands were finished, bringing seating capacity to approximately 30,000.

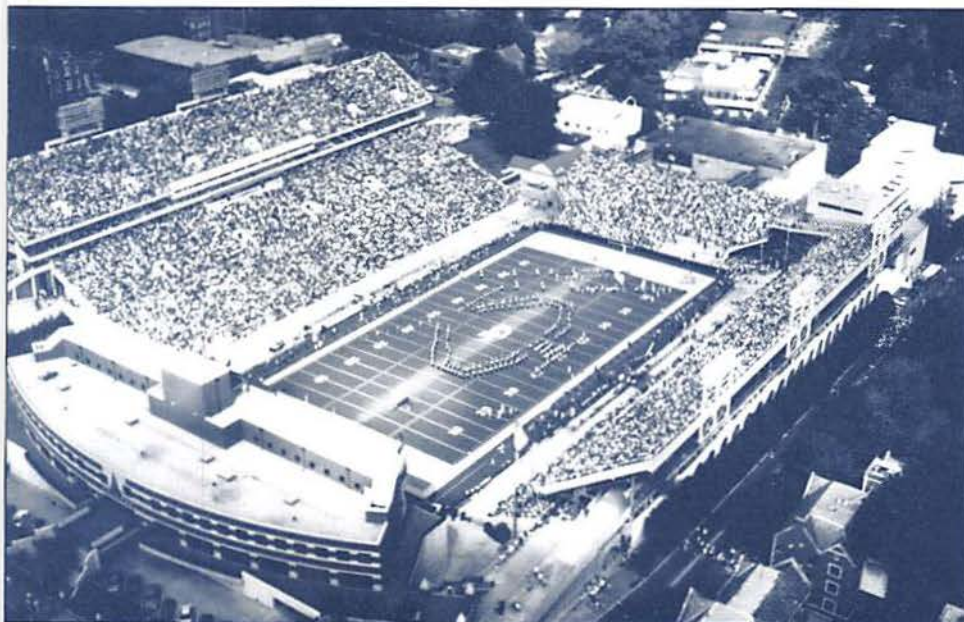

Growth of the stadium has been steady through the years.

In 1948, the West Stands were rebuilt, which raised the capacity to 40,000, and a new press box, then the largest in the South, was built. The all-steel North Stands were erected in 1958 to bring the seating to 44,105.

A second deck was added to the East side in August, 1962, increasing the stadium capacity to 53,300. The West Stands were double-decked and the press and photo levels rebuilt in 1967, with an elevator to the upper levels included in the renovations. New scoreboards with an electronically controlled message board were added prior to the 1982 season.

Another change for the facility was the installation of All-Pro Turf prior to the 1988 season, replacing the Astroturf. The new surface includes the GT logo in the center of the field and the nickname Jackets in the endzones, all of which are completely inlaid with contrasting colored turf rather than painted, the first time that this procedure has been utilized in an outdoor stadium. The field was originally surfaced with Astroturf in 1971 and then resurfaced in 1979.

Tech has hosted numerous crowds which have exceeded capacity, the biggest of which was the 60,316 spectators who watched the Georgia game in 1973. ■

Wardlaw Center Houses Impressive Strength Complex, Executive Suites

One of the cornerstones of the Georgia Tech campus, the William C. Wardlaw Center in the South end zone of Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field serves many purposes for Tech athletics and the Institute.

Until the conclusion of the 1985 season, the South end of the stadium was enclosed by a 12,000-seat grandstand. The South Stands were torn down following the 1985 football season to make room for the Wardlaw Center, a multi-million dollar facility that became fully occupied during the 1988 football season.

The 70,000 square-foot, six-level, multi-use facility was built at a cost of $12 million. Work on the project began in the summer of 1986, after the South Stands were razed in March of 1986.

The Wardlaw Center serves as the gateway for the campus at North Avenue. The building is dedicated to 1928 Tech alumnus William C. Wardlaw, Jr., a long-time associate of the Georgia Tech Athletic Association as a member of the Athletic and Alexander-Tharpe Fund boards. He was also the past president of the Investment Committee of the Georgia Tech Foundation.

The ground floor of the building houses Tech's ultra-modern strength and conditioning complex, widely regarded as one of the top facilities of its kind in college athletics. It was moved in the summer of 1988 from the Edge Center and consolidated with new equipment. A locker room for visiting football teams is located in the same area, moved from its former location in the Northwest corner of the stadium. The Tech News Bureau is located here as well as a television studio.

Two levels of parking with approximately 100 spaces are located on the second and third floors.

The fourth floor, entered through an attractive plaza on North Avenue, houses the Georgia Tech Foundation offices along with the Frank Gordy Room, a large banquet facility which can be used to accommodate Foundation and Athletic Association functions. On this level, large windows and a terrace along the back side of the building allow guests to look out on Grant Field.

The fifth floor houses the Tech Development Office, and the sixth level is divided into 12 executive suites for viewing Rambling Wreck football. ■

Gorgia Tech's athletic facilities have undergone many improvements during the 1980s, and the process is ever-continuing. Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field is no exception.

The first major facelift to the football stadium since 1967 began after the 1985 season when the South stands were razed to make way for the new William C. Wardlaw Center (Phase I). A multi-purpose facility for athletic and institutional use, the Wardlaw Center houses Tech's new strength and conditioning complex and has become the focal point of the stadium with its private boxes and private dining room.

Now, plans are being formulated to address needs at the North end of the stadium and in the West stands.

Slated for completion for the 1992 football season is the West stands renovation (Phase II), in which the Knowles Building will be connected to the stadium and transformed into the Bill Moore Student Success Center.

The Student Success Center will house Georgia Tech's departments of Admissions, Student Recruiting, Student Financial Services and several activities of the Placement Center, providing a centralized location for prospective students as well as those already enrolled at the Institute.

Tech officials say that to the best of their knowledge, the integration of the Success Center and existing and renovated athletic facilities is the first of its kind anywhere in the United States. It will allow Georgia Tech to utilize all facilities 365 day a year.

Plans call for new enclosed executive suites for the club level, with each box repeating the quality existing in the Wardlaw Suites. The President's Box will be expanded and directly integrated into the Success Center.

The press box will be renovated and expanded in the areas of support and food service facilities for the working press, executive suites, stadium operations, coaches booths, photo deck and television broadcast positions. The remainder of the stadium will be completely renovated in the areas of support facilities, structural and concrete coatings and the completion of aluminum seat installation. A "stadium underground" theme will be used in the design of the concourse areas.

In a feasibility study recently completed, the North end of the stadium, including the Heisman Gym, football meeting complex, the old Athletic Association building and North stands, will be replaced by a new multi-purpose athletic building which will house practice facilities for football, track, and other varsity sports. Under this Phase III, the North stands would be replaced by a new grandstand, which would connect the East and West stands. Also part of the study is the renovation of the West Stands, including refurbishing the existing structural support system and revamping the club and press level.

The North end zone complex would involve, first of all, connecting the East and West stands, thus closing in the stadium.

Behind the grandstand, a four-story athletic complex would be built as an extension of the present Arthur B. Edge Center and the North stands. The complex would house an 80-yard artificial turf football practice field and a 200-meter track with 1,300 spectator seats. It would also serve as a practice facility for baseball and softball—with batting cages, etc.—in the event of inclement weather.

The ground level would have the ca-

- 1913 Original West stands, seating 5,600, are built by Tech students.
- 1924 Concrete East stands are constructed, bringing seating capacity to 18,000.
- 1925 The familiar old U-shaped South stands are built, closing the North Avenue end of the stadium and raising seating capacity to 30,000.
- 1948 The West stands are rebuilt and enlarged, and Grant Field now seats 40,000. A new press box, the largest in the South, is also constructed on the West side.
- 1958 The present all-steel stands are erected in the North end zone, bringing capacity to 44,105.
- 1962 A second deck is added to the East side of the stadium, and the stadium now seats 53,300.
- 1967 The West side is double-decked, the press and photo levels are rebuilt along with the club level, topping Grant Field capacity at 58,121.
- 1971 The natural grass playing surface is replaced by AstroTurf.
- 1979 Playing field is resurfaced with new artificial turf.
- 1982 New scoreboards, one with message capability, are installed.
- 1986 The 60-year-old South Stands are torn down following Tech's 20-16 victory over Georgia to close the 1985 season, making way for the new William C. Wardlaw Center. Stadium capacity is now 46,000.
- 1988 Stadium is renamed Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field, in honor of the legendary Tech coach Bobby Dodd, who coached the Rambling Wreck from 1945-66.

pability to be converted into a practice facility for court sports such as basketball and volleyball, and would be available for use by Tech faculty and students. Racquetball courts and a multiple-use, multi-media conference center will be on this level.

The building will also house a 300-meter jogging track suspended from the roof and 30,000 square feet of office space for athletic staff and student-athletic services. ■

Georgia Tech will play North Carolina on Oct. 26 in this year's Homecoming Game. The Yellow Jackets have compiled a 30-11-1 record in Homecoming contests, which is a winning percentage of .726. Tech has played the Tar Heels twice previously, winning both times, including a 17-14 decision in 1989.

Duke has been Tech's most frequent Homecoming opponent with 19 games between the two schools, including a 48-31 Rambling Wreck victory last season.

Tech has played 15 different Homecoming opponents and here are the series totals: Air Force 1-0; Alabama 0-1; Clemson 1-0; Duke 12-6-1; Florida 2-0; Kentucky 0-2; Navy 1-0; North Carolina 2-0; Notre Dame 1-0; Penn State 1-0; Tulane 6-1; Vanderbilt 1-0; Virginia 0-1; Wake Forest 1-0; and Western Carolina 1-0. ■

Georgia Tech's nickname comes to life on Homecoming in the annual Rambling Wreck Parade (above), in which Tech students race outlandish contraptions that they have conceived and constructed. Another Homecoming tradition, the Mini 500 (right), has students racing tricycles around Peters Parking Deck.

SCOTTISH RITE

"Strong Legs Will Run That Weak Legs May Walk"

The annual Georgia Tech/Georgia Scottish Rite Junior Varsity football classic is the largest single fundraising activity for Atlanta's Scottish Rite Children's Medical Center, and in more than 50 years of existence, it has contributed more than three million dollars. This season will mark the 57th anniversary of the jayvee game, which will be played on Thanksgiving morning.

The Scottish Rite Children's Hospital was founded more than 70 years ago to provide medical care to more than 38,000 children throughout the State of Georgia, regardless of their financial circumstances.

Today, the Scottish Rite Children's Medical Center annually treats over 19,000 children through its 43 specialty clinics, full service pediatric emergency department, special intensive care unit and many other facilities.

Although there is a rivalry between Tech's and Georgia's junior varsity teams, the real winners of the game are the children of Scottish Rite. Support of this event has made a reality out of Ralph McGill's slogan, "Strong legs will run that weak legs may walk."

The charity game has been played by either the freshman or junior varsity players from Tech and Georgia. In 1930, the original idea was fostered when an all-star game was played for the benefit of the hospital by teams representing the Northern and Southern Divisions of the old Southern Conference. The quarterback that day for the Northern team just happened to be Bobby Dodd.

In 1933, Tech coach William Alexander and Georgia coach H.J. Stegeman asked a group of Atlanta businessmen to form a football committee to sell tickets to the freshman game and give the proceeds to Scottish Rite. The tradition has continued ever since, and along the way players from Billy Lothridge to Fran Tarkenton have participated. ■

Derrick Hamilton rolled up 215 yards rushing on 29 carries and scored four touchdowns to lead the Georgia Tech jayvees over Georgia, 38-24, in the 1990 Scottish Rite Football Classic at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field. Tech quarterback Jeff Howard passed for 155 yards and two TDs, including scoring strikes to Hamilton and Chuck Warbington.

State of the Art Strength Complex Is One of the Nation's Finest

An integral component of Georgia Tech's 16-sport athletic family is the strength and conditioning program, and a new era has begun at Tech with the Wardlaw Strength and Conditioning Complex, regarded as one of the finest facilities of its kind in college athletics.

The legacy of Dave Pasanella, Tech's former Director of Player Development, lives each day in the work ethic of the athletes in the strength complex.

The "Strongest Man in the World" and the holder of 14 world weightlifting records, Pasanella died tragically in an automobile accident in June of 1990. His dedication to Tech's player development program was evident last season as the Rambling Wreck offensive and defensive lines were among the strongest in the ACC, and his influence continues as the designer of the strength complex.

The new strength complex is a 10,000-square-foot weightlifting facility located on the ground floor of the William C. Wardlaw Center, located at the South end of Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field. It houses the finest free weight and machine equipment, custom-designed and built to the needs of the strength and conditioning staff by Universal, and also contains a fitness circuit with Nautilus and Eagle equipment.

In addition to the weight equipment, top-of-the-line audio-visual instruments have been incorporated to assist in technique instruction and for use in seminars, and a computer system assists in handling data and developing weight programs.

A 3,000-square-foot exercise room is also a part of the complex, complete with an Astroturf surface for plyometric, flexibility and agility drills.

Tech's Director of Player Development is Jim Lathrop, entering his second year in that capacity and his fourth year on the Rambling Wreck staff. Lathrop is assisted by Jim Schulze, Lynne Stoessel and graduate assistant Mike Armstrong.

The strength and conditioning staff also oversees five other workout areas on campus. These include the men's and women's basketball weight rooms in Alexander Memorial Coliseum, along with the multi-purpose weight room beneath the North stands, the DP Wreck room under the East stands, and the new baseball weight facility at Chandler Stadium, which allow all Tech student-athletes outstanding facilities to aid in their development.

The aim of the Tech strength program is to aid the student-athlete's performance by improving his strength and conditioning level, thus allowing him to better perform his particular sports skills.

The strength program is based on three major exercises—squat, bench press and power cleans. These exercises allow athletes to increase cardiovascular endurance, flexibility, explosiveness, muscular strength and endurance.

INCENTIVE PROGRAM

Part of Georgia Tech's strength training endeavor is an incentive program, devised to recognize the achievement of outstanding strength levels by Yellow Jacket student-athletes, who undergo periodic tests to determine the superlative status of "Wreckers," "Iron Jackets," and "Stingers."

The football players are tested three times a year—after the football season, at the conclusion of spring quarter, and upon their return from summer vacation. The tests involve the three major lifts (squat, bench press, power cleans) along with the 12-minute run, chin-ups, vertical jump, the 40-yard dash, flexibility, the cone run and 60-second sit-ups.

"Wreckers" are the interior linemen, "Iron Jackets" include linebackers, tight ends and fullbacks, and the "Stingers" are the running backs, defensive backs, quarterbacks, wide receivers and kickers. The top three performers in each division are honored along with a "Top 20 Most Improved" award to the players who have shown the most improvement, and one player is recognized each week for his efforts by naming him "Iron Man."

1991 Strength Award Winners

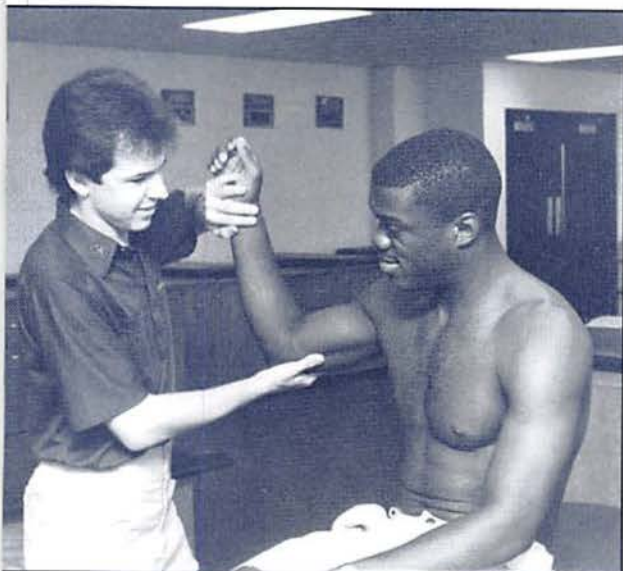

Top Wreckers: Coleman Rudolph, DT
Bryan Baxter, DT

Top Stingers: Ken Swilling, SS
David Hendrix, SS
Shawn Griggs, CB

Top Iron Jackets: Darrell Swilling, ILB
Tom Johnson, OLB
Michael Smith, FB

There's more to the training program than just the physical results. In conjunction with the "Total Person Concept," Tech student-athletes are educated on staying healthy through aerobics, proper nutrition and understanding the cardiac risk factors.

Each Rambling Wreck athlete is challenged and assisted in discovering his own physical fitness formula. With the help of Tech alumnus Andrew Hearn, a computer software program has been developed which facilitates the planning of workout sessions. The program establishes individual maximums for each major lift, and then supplemental strength exercises to provide a well-rounded program. ■

Quality Care for Student-Athletes

Preventing, treating and rehabilitating injury is the basis for the work that goes on in Georgia Tech's sport medicine department, and one important aspect of the trainer's job is to educate student-athletes against the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

"Drug and alcohol education is part of the Total Person Program at Georgia Tech," says Jay Shoop, Tech's Associate Athletic Director for Sports Science.

"We have two mandatory seminars each year, and there is also a course offered through the Health Science Department. We also distribute posters and flyers—anything we can do to deter the use of drugs and alcohol."

Georgia Tech is also one of the first institutions in the country to initiate a drug screening program for its athletic department, a practice which has been followed by many other college programs.

"Our program is educational and rehabilitative in nature rather than punitive. First and foremost, we try to prevent problems, but if a problem occurs, we want to be in a position to help the athlete."

"The NCAA has put a real bite into their own program as far as testing at championship events," continues Shoop. "This has been a real plus because I've seen a reduction in the number of problems."

"The NCAA program in conjunction with our own institutional program certainly acts as a deterrent."

This is only one part of the many responsibilities today's trainer has. There is much more.

Georgia Tech offers a comprehensive quality care package for its student-athletes in the prevention, treatment and rehabilitation of injuries. All 16 varsity sports fall under the jurisdiction of Shoop and his staff, which attends every home contest and many of the away games.

Shoop, an active member of the National Athletic Trainers Association, has 21 years of experience on the professional and collegiate level. His immediate staff includes three full-time assistant trainers, Crandall Woodson, Arnold Gamber and Vicky Gamber, who handles Tech's women's sports, and two part-time assistant trainers in Mark Albert and Walter Smith. Albert is also a registered physical therapist, and the staff is assisted by a group of 12 or more student trainers.

Atlanta offers Tech a number of facilities available 24 hours a day for emergency care, most of them within blocks of the Tech campus. Along with the Student Health Service on campus, directed by Dr. J. Nicholas Gordon, emergency hospital service is available at nearby Crawford Long Hospital as well as several other highly-regarded medical facilities.

Tech student-athletes are treated by team physician Robert Lambert, M.D., orthopedic consultant Blane Woodfin, M.D., and team dentist Aaron King, D.D.S. These specialists attend all Tech football practices and games and are available on call for all other sports. In addition, Dr. King provides each Rambling Wreck football player with a custom-fitted mouthpiece.

The sports medicine department is located on the ground floor of the Arthur B. Edge Intercollegiate Athletic Center, the headquarters for Tech athletics. Tech has a $200,000 training room which houses the finest equipment available for the prevention and treatment of athletic injuries.

The facility includes Cybex testing equipment, used for evaluating and rehabilitating specific joint and muscle injuries; Nautilus rehabilitation equipment; Orthotron tables for rehabilitation of joint and muscle injuries; muscle stimulators; and hydrotherapy modalities such as whirlpools and saunas.

"We're very fortunate at Georgia Tech," Shoop says, "that we have an excellent staff, resources and facilities to do the best job possible. Georgia Tech, through the efforts of Dr. Rice, has done everything possible to give us the opportunity to provide the best care to our athletes."

"Our facilities rank with the best in the nation. There has been a big push in upgrading facilities in the past 10 years."

The most recent addition to the training facilities occurred when Tech's Nautilus weight training equipment, formerly located adjacent to the training room, was moved into the Wardlaw Center. This allowed all of the sports medicine department's rehabilitation equipment to move into the added space.

"It's always been our desire to upgrade and improve in order to have the best facility possible. Previously we've had equipment scattered around. Now we can combine all that and give continuous treatment in one facility and also better supervise it."

The trainer wears many hats, from emergency medical technician to travel agent, dietician, orthopedist and educator. Tech's sports medicine staff is constantly keeping its knowledge current through its attendance at seminars and clinics.

The role of the trainer has changed in the last 15 to 20 years, with expertise in many different areas. The paramount responsibility is still the prevention and rehabilitation of injuries, but the process has become more sophisticated with better techniques and equipment.

A big part of the trainer's job also is to educate athletes on how to improve their performance without being detrimental to them down the road. Athletes now have more questions about their health, and the trainer is responsible in educating them on how present actions may affect their physical condition in the future. ■

TOTAL PERSON

Unique Program Provides Comprehensive Support System

At Georgia Tech, the day the cheering stops will still be a time of celebration. Inevitably, a student-athlete's playing days will end, but with the Total Person Program, one will be amply prepared for the career and personal challenges ahead.

Through a series of voluntary seminars, Tech student-athletes have the opportunity to learn the elements of success beyond the classroom or playing field. Developed under Director of Athletics Dr. Homer Rice, Tech's high purpose is planning for the future.

"I think bridging the gap from college life and graduating with a job is a neglected area," says Associate Athletic Director for Sports Programs Bernadette McGlade, who handles the Total Person Program on a daily basis.

"That's been the incentive for Dr. Rice to implement this program. He saw so many student-athletes struggle after they got out of college after being so successful in their athletic endeavors."

Since his arrival in 1980, Rice has rebuilt the athletic fortunes of Georgia Tech with an emphasis not just in successful athletic programs, but in the development of the well-rounded student-athlete.

"I think this program will be a part of every athletic department at every major school across the country in the very near future," McGlade says.

"Students that we're recruiting are intelligent and concerned about academic performance. But there's also been an emphasis on the wellness area and on the skills necessary to compete in the business world."

Athletic departments are now in the position where they have to be doing more for their student-athletes to keep that competitive edge. Athletic programs and facilities are important but so are graduation rates and job placement.

About 10 Personal Growth Seminars Held Each Quarter

The Total Person Program encompasses personal growth that utilizes academic counseling, career placement, financial planning and fitness for life programs concerning nutrition, time/stress management, drug and alcohol education, aerobic fitness and mental health.

About 10 seminars are scheduled each academic quarter as Tech brings in experts in their fields such as Dr. Larry Dean, Dr. Phil Adler and Dr. Richard Fuller.

For example, the schedule of Total Person seminars last winter quarter included:

- Weekly Christian Fellowship meetings
- Player/Agent Seminar

- Writing A Winning Resume by Tech's Placement Office
- Student Advisory Board Meeting where each team has a player liaison to meet with the athletic administration
- Tax Reporting and Your Scholarship
- Networking Luncheon for Graduating Seniors with Local Businessmen

Other topics are drug and alcohol education, the only mandatory seminar, motivation and a winning attitude, dealing with the media and dressing for success.

"I think the program has really grown," McGlade says. "At the beginning, the student-athletes got the Total Person Program mixed up with an event. They thought it was a one-time seminar. It really is an environment, a way of life around here every single day from your freshman to your senior year."

"Today, the students are starting to understand that. It's fine if they go to the seminars. It's fine if they don't go. But the ones that go are finding that they gain a lot of experience while enjoying themselves and learning."

Program Evaluated in Five Areas

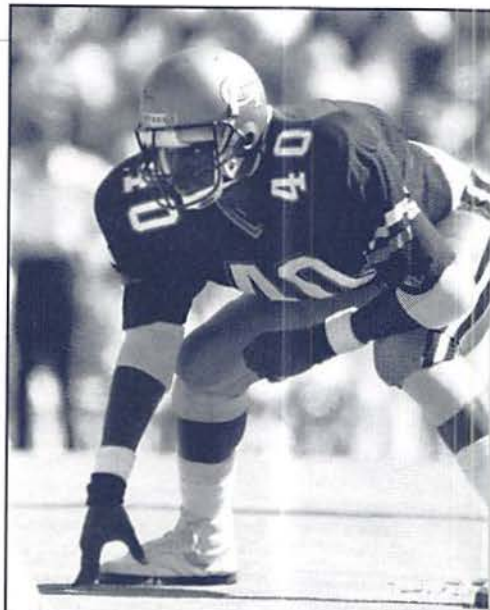

Since Rice started the Total Person Program in 1980, it has developed into the most comprehensive student-athlete support system in the country. Rice's dream of training students to become successful individuals and contributors to society within an educational institution in an athletic program has begun to take shape.

The program is divided into the five following categories:

1. Recruitment - In order to attract quality student-athletes, Tech has developed first-class facilities for proper training purposes. Multi-million dollar facilities have been completed at each of Tech's major facilities. A part of the Total Person Concept is good health and fitness, and proper facilities are a key ingredient.

2. Academic Programs - One reason for Tech's 80 percent graduation rate among its student-athletes is the Andrew Hearn, Sr., Academic Center. It contains the most modern educational and motivational aids, including nine IBM personal computers, five Macintosh computers, 44 individually partitioned work-study stations, tutoring facilities and several academic advisors to monitor a student's progress.

3. Sports Programs - Georgia Tech's 16-sport athletic program with nine men's and seven women's sports competes on the NCAA Division I level within the nine-member Atlantic Coast Conference. Tech is highly-regarded for its coaching staff that has received "Coach of the Year" honors at the conference and national level.

Stefen Scotton, an Academic all-America, received the 1991 Total Person Award

4. Plus Area - Planning for the "real world" begins during a student-athlete's freshman year. By exploring career opportunities through internships and counseling, Tech graduates have a highly marketable education. The Wellness Program through the sports medicine department teaches students about mental health, time/stress management, aerobic fitness, nutrition and drug and alcohol education.

5. Follow Up - "If they're successful, we're successful," Rice says. A perfect example is the case of Yellow Jacket all-America basketball player and first round NBA draft choice John Salley. After playing in the 1988 NBA Finals, Salley came back to summer school at Tech to earn his Bachelor of Science degree in Management.

"Those that have graduated have come to the realization of how much of an advantage they had coming out of Georgia Tech," McGlade says. "There were a lot of people that cared about them. They had their needs met that weren't necessarily discussed in the classroom or on the practice field." ■

Scholarship Support for Student Athletes

The Alexander-Tharpe Fund is Georgia Tech's fund raising arm and the major means of financial support for Rambling Wreck athletics. The A-T Fund is one of the nation's top 10 such fund-raising organizations, but many people don't realize just where those funds go.

The money raised by the A-T Fund makes it possible for young men and women like Jeff Howard to attend Georgia Tech.

"The A-T fund allows hundreds of student-athletes to attend one of the finest institutions in the country," says Howard, a junior quarterback from Rex, Ga., and an outstanding student-athlete who received the 1991 Tech Way award for his performance in academics and athletics.

"Because of the A-T Fund, student-athletes of all financial backgrounds are allowed the opportunity to earn a degree of the highest reputation and contribute on the field as well as off."

The primary goal of the A-T Fund is to provide grants-in-aid for Tech student-athletes like Howard. A full scholarship for an in-state student is $6,835.50 and $10,537.50 for an out-of-state student. The Fund is responsible for 91 percent of the scholarship cost for all of Tech's student-athletes.

In the fiscal year 1990, the A-T Fund provided funding for nearly 200 scholarships at a cost of more than $2,000,000. More than 40 percent of that budget was used for scholarship support, and as the cost of tuition increases, this burden rises. The A-T Fund also funds the Academic Center which provides tutoring, study aids, access to computers, counseling and simply a quiet place to study for the student-athletes.

"Thanks to the great Tech alumni and friends who support this fine program, we are now among the Top 10 in the nation and able to fund the quality program that Georgia Tech deserves," says Senior Associate Athletic Director Jack Thompson, who heads the overall development program for the Athletic Association and is the vice-president of the A-T Fund.

Thompson has been the driving force in the growth of the Fund. The grassroots work of the A-T Fund is accomplished through the work of over 60 Georgia Tech Clubs in 23 different states. Susan Phinney, who is in her eighth year as the A-T director, is in charge of the day-to-day operations of the Fund.

Jane-Ashley Everett is the Assistant Director of A-T as well as the Director of Georgia Tech Clubs. Carolyn York is the Director of Special Events, while Susan Allen serves as the Director of Records. Lorraine Oscher is the administrative assistant to Thompson, and Barb Dockweiler is the A-T receptionist.

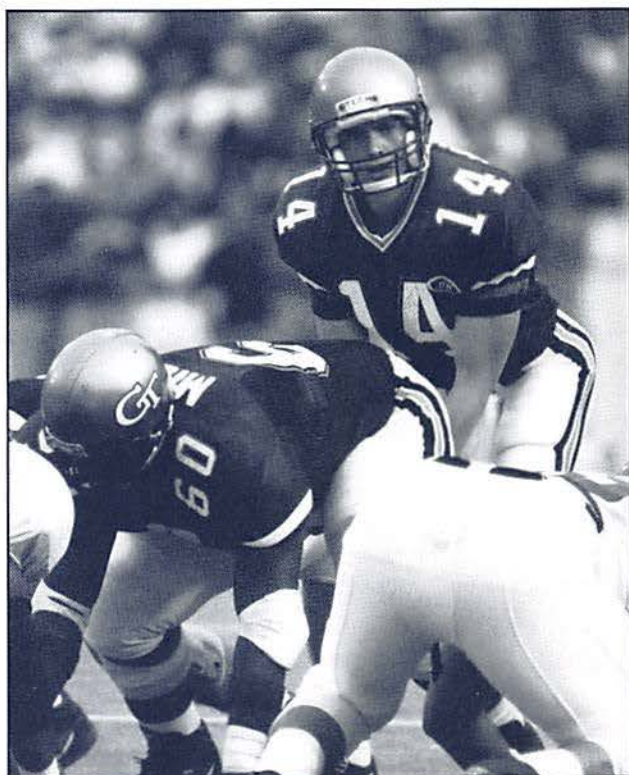

The giving levels for contributors have the following breakdown: Team Circle ($25-$49), Coaches Circle ($50-$99), Member Circle ($100-$249), Dodd Circle ($250-$499), Alexander Circle ($500-$999), Heisman Circle ($1,000-$2,999), Golden "T" Circle ($3,000-$4,999), Diamond "T" Circle ($5,000-$9,999), Athletic Director Circle ($10,000-$24,999), President's Circle ($25,000-$49,999), Centennial Circle ($50,000-$99,999), Life Membership ($100,000-$499,999) and Golden Life Membership ($500,000 and above).

The contributions made to the A-T Fund, and the work done by the Fund, make it possible for young women and men like Jeff Howard to represent the Institute. ■

SCHOLARSHIPS

Financial Aid for Deserving Student-Athletes

The named scholarship program at Georgia Tech offers the best of both worlds in providing financial aid to a deserving student-athlete. Your gift to establish a named scholarship provides current income to fund a scholarship each year and permanently memorializes you or any individual in whose honor the scholarship will be named.

Your gift is used to establish the permanent scholarship. The interest is used each year to provide financial aid to the student-athlete qualifying for the scholarship under criteria you determine when you establish the scholarship. Your original gift remains in the program forever.

Please contact Jack Thompson with the Alexander-Tharpe Fund at 894-5400 if you are interested in discussing this exciting concept.

THE BOBBY DODD SCHOLARSHIP

*1991 Recipients: Derrick Adkins (Track)
& Erika Lewis (Tennis)*

Georgia Tech was blessed with Bobby Dodd for more than 55 years. He is a legend in collegiate football. The name Bobby Dodd immediately brings to mind integrity, honesty, success and loyalty. The quality image that Georgia Tech has always epitomized is synonymous with the name Bobby Dodd. The legacy he left for Georgia Tech has never been equaled and will forever be the foundation of Tech's athletic program.

It is only fitting that we establish the Bobby Dodd Scholarship Fund to be given each year to outstanding young people who qualify as both superb athletes as well as exemplary students. Coach Dodd's most important priority was the education of his student-athletes. He knew the value of a quality education and believed that Georgia Tech gave young men and young women the opportunity to have both—successful athletics and quality academics. Coach Dodd's influence did not stop with the boundaries of the Georgia Tech campus and therefore, the young people receiving this scholarship should also be good citizens involved and concerned with their community and nation.

The Georgia Tech Athletic Association will select student-athletes each year based on these criteria. This young person can be a participant in any varsity level sport who qualifies on the basis of academics, athletic expertise and citizenship.

The 1991 recipients of the Bobby Dodd Scholarship are all-America hurdler Derrick Adkins, a Dean's List student in Engineering, and tennis standout Erika Lewis, who maintains a 3.2 grade point average in Management.

Focus On KEN SWILLING

"I got a lot of grief for saying that. People came up to me saying, 'You're crazy. It's not possible.' When we did it, the only person I went back to was Coach Ross. Right after the Georgia game, I just went up to him and said, 'Told you so.'"

Forgive Ken Swilling if he gloated just a little.

For it was Swilling who went out on a limb and predicted publicly way back in August that Georgia Tech would be undefeated in 1990.

And it was Swilling who endured countless doubters that thought perhaps the all-America defensive back had dished out one too many vicious hits.

"I got a lot of grief for saying that," recalled Swilling of his pre-season prognostication. "People came up to me saying, 'You're crazy. It's not possible.'"

"When we did it, the only person I went back to was Coach Ross. Right after the Georgia game, I just went up to him and said, 'Told you so.'"

Swilling made his bold forecast at a pre-season media gathering in August, but the 6-3, 236-pounder had seen the writing on the wall the previous Christmas as he spent the holidays at his home in Toccoa, Ga., watching bowl games.

"The main thing I was thinking is we were going to be there next year," said Swilling.

"I told my mom, 'I won't be home for Christmas next year.' And she was like, 'Why?' And I said, 'Because we're going to a bowl game on January 1.' She believed me and here we are."

With each Rambling Wreck victory, Swilling only became more convinced that he was right.

"I daydream of us going 11-0 and what it would be like to play in a major bowl. I think about that stuff deep in my mind," said Swilling after Tech had knocked off nationally-ranked South Carolina, 27-6, in the season's third game.

"We've got the potential. We've just got to go out every week and prove ourselves all over again."

On the field, Swilling was doing his best to make his daydreams a reality. An imposing presence at free safety, he lived up to his all-America billing by intercepting four passes in Tech's first four games.

Swilling's position coach, Chuck Priefer, said, "He was playing as well as any defensive back I've been around in a long, long time."

"His first four games, I shouldn't say he didn't have a flaw, but he was playing at an

All-American level."

Against Clemson, he was even called upon to return kickoffs, and that's when the dream turned nightmarish, for Swilling injured his ankle on the opening kickoff.

"I had four of the best games of my career the first four games, and then I came up with an ankle injury that hampered me the rest of the season," said Swilling.

"People say I had a good season, but I know deep down I didn't perform to capability. To blame it on my ankle would be a poor excuse and I'm not going to do that."

Still, Swilling earned consensus all-America honors and finished third in the balloting for the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's outstanding defensive back.

Through it all, despite missing two games with the injury, Swilling remained the consummate team player, delighting in Tech's accomplishments.

GEORGIA TECH 21, N.C. STATE 13

September 8, 1990

Bobby Dodd Stadium/
Grant Field • Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA—Utilizing a stingy defense and the clutch play of quarterback Shawn Jones, Georgia Tech scored 14 fourth-quarter points to grab a 21-13 come-from-behind victory in its season opener over N.C. State at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field.

Jones, who also connected with flanker Greg Lester for a 23-yard scoring strike in the second quarter, put the Yellow Jackets ahead to stay with an 8-yard toss to tailback William Bell with 12:32 left.

The scoring pass, which gave the Jackets a 14-13 advantage, capped an 85-yard, nine-play drive that erased some offensive frustration created earlier when the Jackets lost three fumbles—including two by Bell in the first nine minutes of the game—that led to 10 Wolfpack points.

Tech then put the game out of reach later in the final period as Jones engineered a 54-yard, 9-play scoring march that was culminated when freshman tailback Jeff Wright scored on a 9-yard run with just 2:49 remaining.

Tech's defensive unit, led by all-America free safety Ken Swilling, defensive tackle Jeremiah McClary and redshirt freshman outside linebacker Marlon Williams, limited State's offense to just 217 yards of total offense—including just 78 yards after intermission—and only three points.

Swilling was credited with 12 tackles and a touchdown-saving pass interception in the Tech end zone. McClary made 11 hits, including 5 solo tackles, and Williams had 11 tackles, one quarterback sack, one caused and one recovered fumble.

State jumped on top early as the Wolfpack capitalized on one of Bell's two fumbles for a 24-yard field goal by Damon Hartman just 3:18 into the game.

The Wolfpack boosted their margin to 10-0 early in the second quarter when defensive back Fernandus Vinson scooped up a Stefen Scotton fumble and returned it 11 yards for State's only touchdown.

Tech then got on the board, marching 80 yards in eight plays. Jones completed four straight passes on the drive for 41 yards, including the spectacular catch and run by Lester for the score with 7:19 remaining in the half. The Wolfpack, though, responded with their longest march of the day, 49 yards in nine plays to set up a 38-yard field goal by Hartman for a 13-7 halftime lead.

A crowd of 40,021 fans witnessed the game, the most to see a Tech-N.C. State game in Atlanta.

GEORGIA TECH 44, UT-CHATTANOOGA 9

Bobby Dodd Stadium/
Grant Field • Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA—Quarterback Shawn Jones threw for a career-high 265 yards and Georgia Tech's defense forced seven UT-Chattanooga turnovers as the Yellow Jackets captured their eighth straight home victory before a crowd of 32,911 at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field.

Jones, who completed 15 of 23 passes on the day, capped a 68-yard, eight-play drive on Tech's first possession of the game with a 3-yard touchdown run.

After a 36-yard Moccasin field goal by Rodney Allen, Jones connected with tailback William Bell for a 78-yard pass-run play for a score. It was the longest pass play in Tech history to a running back and the Jackets' eighth longest overall pass play ever.

The Jackets boosted their lead to 17-3 early in the second quarter behind three Jones completions in a 45-yard drive in seven plays that resulted in a 21-yard Scott Sisson field goal.

But UTC, behind the running of Robert Shamsid-Deen, who had a game-high 70 yards in 14 carries, and the passing of Vince Carelli narrowed the Tech margin to 17-9 after two more field goals by Allen from 39 and 40 yards out. Allen's third field goal of the half came with just 1:26 remaining before intermission.

Jones, though, guided Tech 65 yards in seven plays, completing four passes for all of the yardage and using but 60 seconds on the clock to set up a 32-yard field goal by Sisson with just 26 seconds remaining. It sent Tech into the locker room with a 20-9 halftime advantage.

The Jackets broke the game open in the early moments of the third quarter, taking the kickoff and driving 80 yards in nine plays with fullback Stefen Scotton scoring from two yards out at the 11:13 mark.

On Tech's kickoff, the Moccasins failed to cover the football and linebacker Scott Travis recovered the loose ball for the Jackets at the UTC 22. Three plays later, Bell, who rushed for 51 yards on nine carries, scored from seven yards out for a commanding 34-9 lead with 10:38 remaining.

Head coach Bobby Ross cleared his bench in the fourth quarter as backup quarterback Jeff Howard guided Tech to 10 final-period points, including an eight yard TD pass to tight end Derek Goshay and a 33-yard field goal from Sisson.

The win was Tech's sixth straight overall and its eighth straight at Dodd Stadium, the longest such home winning streak since the 1974-75 seasons.

Tech sealed the game late in the quarter when Kevin Peoples recovered a fumbled punt at the USC 43. The Jackets took two plays to score from there, the last a 20-yard touchdown run by backup tailback Jeff Wright with three seconds remaining in the period.

Sisson completed the scoring with a 42-yard field goal with 7:52 remaining in the fourth quarter.

Georgia Tech enters 1991 with a 12-game home winning streak. Tech's last loss at home was a 17-10 defeat by Virginia on Sept. 16, 1989.

ATLANTA—Georgia Tech utilized a relentless defense led by linebackers Jerrelle Williams and Marco Coleman, and clutch passing from quarterback Shawn Jones to upend 25th-ranked South Carolina, 27-6, in a nationally-televised (ESPN) game before 46,011 fans at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field.

Tech's defense limited South Carolina to just 196 yards of total offense, including only 40 yards on the ground, and extended a streak to 12 consecutive quarters of not allowing an offensive touchdown.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Jackets jumped out to a 7-0 lead marching 88 yards in 17 plays. Jones scored the go-ahead points on a 1-yard bootleg run on a fourth down play with 4:34 remaining in the period.

Tech boosted its margin to 10-0 on a 20-yard field goal from Scott Sisson with 1:24 remaining after marching 35 yards in eight plays.

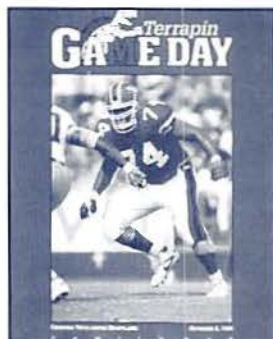

With 38 seconds remaining before intermission, South Carolina received a golden opportunity recovering a fumbled punt at the Tech 28. But two pass plays netted 16 yards and the Gamecocks had to settle for a 29-yard Collin Mackie field goal with time running out in the period.

The Jackets broke the game open on their first possession of the third quarter, marching 62 yards in nine plays. Jones completed passes of 23 and 29 yards to flanker Bobby Rodriguez on the drive which culminated with a 2-yard TD run by Stefan Scotton for a 17-3 advantage at the 7:12 mark.

College Park, Md.

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—Shawn Jones passed for a career-high 276 yards and Georgia Tech's defense had a school record 11 quarterback sacks, as the Yellow Jackets steamrolled Maryland, 31-3, before 31,941 fans at Byrd Stadium, extending their winning streak to eight consecutive games.

Jones, who completed 15 of 24 passes on the day, marched Tech 67 yards in 10 plays on its second possession, setting up a 29-yard field goal by placekicker Scott Sisson for a 3-0 lead just 4:06 into the game.

The Jackets then got all the points they would need later in the first quarter as Tech went 39 yards in just two plays and a penalty. Jeff Wright's 12-yard run put the Jackets ahead 10-0 with just 3:32 remaining in the opening stanza.

The Rambling Wreck defense, which did not allow a touchdown for the first 19 quarters of 1990, ranked 11th nationally in scoring defense, 14th in total defense, 13th in pass efficiency defense and 15th in rushing defense.

Maryland put together its longest march of the day on its very next possession behind quarterback Scott Zolak who connected with H-back Frank Wycheck for a 31-yard gain. The Terrapins' 55-yard drive stalled, though, when Tech's Marco Coleman recorded one of his five quarterback sacks on the afternoon—the most by a Yellow Jacket since Pat Swilling collected seven against N.C State in 1985—and Maryland settled for a 28-yard Dan DeArmas field goal, cutting the margin to 10-3.

The Terrapins, however, would get no closer as Tech promptly marched 71 yards in 11 plays on its next possession. Jones completed five straight passes and fullback Stefen Scotton scored from one yard out to make it 17-3.

Tech's defense, which held the Terrapins to a school-record minus-20 yards of rushing offense, continually kept Maryland at bay. Led by Coleman, Tech's pass rush kept constant pressure on Zolak, who completed 16 of 33 passes for just 192 yards on the day.

Tech broke the game open late in the third period when Jones marched Tech 94 yards in just six plays, the last a 40-yard TD strike to flanker Greg Lester for a 24-3 advantage.

On their very next possession, the Jackets went 65 yards in eight plays, with Wright scoring his second touchdown of the day from one yard out to make the final, 31-3, margin.

GEORGIA TECH 21,
CLEMSON 19
October 13, 1990
*Bobby Dodd Stadium/
Grant Field • Atlanta, Ga.*

ATLANTA—Eighteenth-ranked Georgia Tech used big plays, including a dramatic 87-yard kickoff return by sophomore walk-on Kevin Tisdell, and a tenacious defense to slip by 15th-ranked Clemson, 21-19, before a capacity crowd of 46,066 fans at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field, the largest at Tech since 1985.

In doing so, the Jackets moved to 5-0 for the first time since 1966 and extended its winning streak to the nation's longest current skein—along with Houston—at nine games. The victory was not assured until Clemson's Chris Gardocki fell seven yards short on a 60-yard field goal attempt with just 59 seconds remaining.

Tech broke on top early as quarterback Shawn Jones, who completed 10 of 17 passes on the day for 144 yards, capped a 72-yard, 6-play drive with a 22-yard touchdown strike to Emmett Merchant for a 7-0 lead with 7:12 remaining in the first quarter.

On the Tigers next possession, outside linebacker Chris Simmons broke through to sack Clemson quarterback DeChane Cameron forcing a fumble. Yellow Jacket defensive tackle Coleman Rudolph picked the ball off in mid-air at the Clemson 13-yard line.

After a running play resulted in a 4-yard loss, flanker Greg Lester made a spectacular grab of a 17-yard pass from Jones and with 5:23 remaining in the opening period Tech held a 14-0 advantage.

Clemson narrowed the margin on its very next possession, marching 52 yards in eight plays behind freshman running back Ronald Williams, who totalled 108 yards rushing in 17 attempts for the day. The drive stalled at the Tech 21 and Clemson was forced to settle for a 38-yard field goal from Gardocki, the first of four on the day for the Stone Mountain, Ga., native.

Gardocki missed a chance to cut the Tech lead closer on the final play of the first half, missing a 53-yard attempt that hit the crossbar and the Jackets went to the dressing room with a 14-3 lead.

In the third period momentum swung to Clemson. The Tigers ground out a 71-yard, 17-play drive on their first possession. But Tech linebacker Calvin Tiggie, who had 24 tackles on the day, made a key third-down stop of Cameron at the Tech three to force a 20-yard Gardocki field goal with 7:23 remaining.

Gardocki further trimmed the Tech lead to 14-12 with field goals of 45 and 44 yards, the last coming just 12 seconds into the fourth quarter.

The game turned, though, on Clemson's ensuing kickoff. Tisdell, a non-scholarship player from Columbus, Ga., took the kick in his end zone and headed down the west sideline behind good blocking. At midfield he cut diagonally across the field, avoided a lunge by Gardocki and raced 87 yards to the Clemson 13 where he was forced out of bounds. Three plays later T.J. Edwards scored from five yards out for a 21-12 advantage.

The Tigers then marched 78 yards to the Tech 1, where Tiggie keyed a dramatic goal line stand with a crucial fourth-and-one stop short of the goal. With only 8:04 remaining, it appeared Tech's defense had secured the outcome.

But two minutes later Edwards fumbled and Clemson's Robert O'Neal recovered at the Tech 41. It took the Tigers just seven plays to score against an exhausted Jacket defense which faced 58 second half snaps. Cameron's 3-yard scamper with just 3:27 remaining was the first offensive touchdown against Tech's defense in 19 quarters of play.

Tech made a first down on its next possession, but Scott Aldredge's 11-yard punt put Clemson in business at the Tech 49. Three plays, though, gained but six yards and Tiger coach Ken Hatfield opted to give Gardocki a chance to win the game with his toe. The kick, though straight, was short, making Tech 3-0 in the ACC for the first time in its history.

yards, but two fumbles and a pass interception resulted in all of North Carolina's points.

The 13-point underdog Tar Heels got on the board early in the first quarter. On Tech's second possession of the day, tailback William Bell fumbled after a 3-yard gain, UNC's Doxie Jordan recovered at the Tech 29. Five plays later, UNC's Clint Gwaltney booted a 32-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead with 11:06 remaining.

Tech took the lead early in the second quarter, marching 86 yards on just six plays. Quarterback Shawn Jones, who totalled 246 yards of total offense on the day, accounted for 59 yards of the march, including a 26-yard run around right end for the score with 12:21 remaining in the half.

On the Yellow Jackets' next possession, Tech marched 83 yards in 11 plays. Jones scrambled 36 yards from the Tech 11 to start the drive which finally stalled at the UNC 3. Scott Sisson came on to kick a 20-yard field goal to give the Jackets a 10-3 halftime advantage.

UNC cut the margin to 10-6 late in the third quarter on a 25-yard Gwaltney field goal that was set up by a pass interception and return to the Tech 32 by UNC defensive back Cookie Massey.

SEASON REVIEW

The Tar Heels took the lead early in the fourth quarter after Tech's Willie Clay muffed a UNC punt and the Tar Heels' Reggie Clark recovered at the Tech 7.

Two plays later, UNC's Natrone Means scored from five yards out and with 13:18 to play, UNC held a 13-10 advantage.

On its next possession, the Jackets march 85 yards to the UNC 1-yard line behind the running of Bell, who had a game-high 123 yards in 21 carries on the day. But on a fourth-and-1 play from the Carolina 1, UNC's Eric Gash stopped Stefen Scotton short of the end zone.

Tech was not through, however, and the Jackets promptly marched to the North Carolina five on its next possession, using a 38-yard pass play from Jones to tight end Tom Covington. Three plays, though, lost five yards and Tech was forced to settle for three points on a 27-yard Sisson field goal with 1:01 remaining.

The tie snapped Tech's winning streak at nine straight games, but continued the Jackets non-losing skein to 10 games.

GEORGIA TECH 48, DUKE 31

Bobby Dodd Stadium/
Grant Field • Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA—William Bell rushed for 166 yards and Kevin Tisdell's 85-yard kickoff return for a touchdown in the third quarter provided the spark for Tech's 48-31 Homecoming victory over Duke before 44,061 at Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field.

Bell put Tech in front with a 17-yard touchdown run, capping a 63-yard four-play drive on the Yellow Jackets' first possession of the game. He also set up the Jackets' second touchdown with a 52-yard run to the Blue Devil two midway in the second period. One play later, fullback Stefen Scotton scored from one yard out for a 17-6 advantage.

Duke, though behind the passing of quarterback Billy Ray, came back with a 71-yard, eight-play drive with Chris Brown scoring from six yards out with 32 seconds remaining in the half. Ray, who completed 19 of 32 passes on the day for 220 yards, then connected with Walter Jones for the two-point conversion and at intermission, Duke had narrowed Tech's advantage to just 17-14.

After a 37-yard kickoff return by Tisdell at the start of the second half, Tech marched to the Blue Devil four where they were stopped on fourth and two. But after forcing a Duke punt, the Jackets put together a 40-yard, nine-play drive with Scotton scoring from one yard for a 24-14 lead.

Ray, though, drove the Blue Devils 69 yards in 11 plays on Duke's next possession, connecting with tailback Randy Cuthbert for a three-yard TD pass in the right flat to bring the Devils back within three at 24-21.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Tisdell contributed his gamebreaker, breaking eight tackles en route to an 85-yard return that gave the Jackets a 31-21 advantage with just 2:08 remaining in the third quarter.

Duke marched to a 45-yard field goal by Randy Gardner on its next possession to cut the Jacket lead to 31-24. But Tech sprung another long kickoff return, this one 52 yards by Jeff Wright to the Duke 30 on the final play of the third quarter. It took the Jackets just five plays to score, with Jones tallying from one yard out for a 38-24 lead.

On the Blue Devils next possession, Tech defensive back Willie Clay aborted a fake punt attempt, recovering a fumbled snap at the Duke 20.

Two plays later, Jones, who rushed for 77 yards on 12 carries, scored from 20 yards out and Tech had a commanding 45-24 lead with 11:26 remaining in the game.

Duke, though, would score one more time. With Tech again marching, Blue Devil linebacker Travis Pearson intercepted a Jones pass at the Tech 45 and returned it to the Jacket five. Two plays later, quarterback Dave Brown connected with tight end Aaron Shaw for a two-yard TD pass and with 8:22 left, Tech still led 45-31.

GEORGIA TECH 41,
VIRGINIA 38
November 3, 1990
Charlottesville, Va.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.—In one of the most historic victories in Georgia Tech annals, sophomore placekicker Scott Sisson's 37-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining capped a dramatic comeback and gave the Jackets a stunning 41-38 upset over No. 1-ranked Virginia before a record crowd of 49,700 fans at UVA's Scott Stadium and a national television audience (CBS-TV).

The victory put the Jackets in the drivers' seat for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and into the national championship picture.

Sisson's field goal came after a 56-yard drive over the final 2:26 of the game, engineered by quarterback Shawn Jones, who completed three passes for 44 yards on the march.

Virginia, which fell to 8-1 on the year, had just tied the game on a 23-yard field goal by Jake McNerney with 2:34 remaining. The Cavaliers managed a first and goal at the Tech one. But a Nikki Fischer run resulted in no gain. UVA was then penalized five yards for illegal procedure. A pass from Shawn Moore, who was 18 of 28 on the day for 344 yards, to Herman Moore put the ball back on the one.

But Virginia was again whistled for illegal procedure with just six men on the line of scrimmage wiping out an apparent TD pass to Aaron Mundy. And on third down from the six, linebacker Calvin Tiggie batted away an attempt to H. Moore forcing UVA to settle for three and a 38-38 tie.

The Cavaliers broke on top early and threatened to make a runaway of the game in the first half. S. Moore capped a 68-yard drive in 8 plays with a one yard run just 3:49 into the game for a 7-0 lead.

Field goals of 27 and 51 yards by McNerney stretched the Wahoo advantage to 13-0 early in the second quarter.

Tech got on the board with 9:43 remaining in the second quarter, when Jones, who completed 17 of 29 passes for 257 yards on the day and two scores, capped a 75-yard drive with a 23-yard scramble for the score to narrow the margin to 13-7.

Virginia, though, answered on its next possession with S. Moore hooking up with his favorite receiver H. Moore, who had 9 receptions for 234 yards, for a 44-yard gain to the Tech 15. Four plays later S. Moore sneaked in from one yard out, then connected with H. Moore for a two-point conversion pass and a 21-7 lead.

Jones guided the Jackets back down the field, completing three straight passes for 64 yards, the last a 43-yard TD strike to Jerry Gilchrist to make it 21-14 with 5:22 before intermission.

The Wahoos, behind S. Moore and the running of tailback Terry Kirby, then marched 62 yards in 11 plays, with S. Moore scoring from six yards out with just 41 seconds remaining before intermission for a 28-14 halftime lead.

On its first play of the second half, S. Moore fumbled and Tech's Tiggie recovered at the UVA 28.

Four plays later, Gilchrist crossed the goal line on a 12-yard flanker reverse and the Jackets were once again within seven points at 28-21.

Tiggie struck again three minutes later, stopping a UVA drive by intercepting a S. Moore pass at the Tech 10 and returning it 38 yards.

After an exchange of punts, Jones guided the Jackets on 47-yard, six-play march, hitting Emmett Merchant with a 26-yard TD toss with 4:34 remaining in the third quarter and for the first time, the game was tied at 28-28.

S. Moore, though, untied things quickly, connecting with H. Moore on a 63-yard TD pass play at the 3:08 mark for a 35-28 lead.

Again, the Jackets marched up the field, going 74 yards in seven plays with tailback

William Bell, who rushed for 97 yards on 22 carries, scoring the game-tying touchdown on an eight-yard run with just two seconds remaining in the third quarter.

Tech grabbed its first lead of the game midway through the final quarter, with Sisson connecting on a 32-yard field goal, capping a 57-yard, 11-play march with 7:17 remaining for a 38-35 advantage, setting up his own late-minute heroics.

The win pushed Georgia Tech's unbeaten string to 12 games and was its first victory against the Cavaliers since 1986.

GEORGIA TECH 6, VIRGINIA TECH 3
November 10, 1990
Bobby Dodd Stadium/
Grant Field • Atlanta Ga.

ATLANTA—Scott Sisson booted a game-winning field goal for the second straight week, hammering home a 38-yarder with just eight seconds remaining in the game to give the Jackets a come-from-behind 6-3 victory in its first ever meeting with Virginia Tech before 43,011 fans at Bobby Dodd Stadium.

Sisson's deciding kick capped another last-minute winning drive engineered by sophomore quarterback Shawn Jones.

With the score tied at 3-3, the Jackets began their winning march at their own 16-yard line with just 1:10 remaining in the game. Jones, who managed to complete 19 of 33 passes for 199 yards on the afternoon, hit four passes on the march, good for 57 yards. Three of those completions went to split end Emmett Merchant for 42 yards, including an 18-yarder that gave the Jackets a first down at the Virginia Tech 23. After two incomplete passes, tailback William Bell, who led all rushers with 88 yards on 23 carries, managed just two yards on third down. Sisson then entered the game, and after a pair of Virginia Tech timeouts, calmly booted the 38-yarder into the face of a 20-25 miles per hour wind.

The two teams had battled through three scoreless quarters in the defensive minded contest. Sisson missed field goal attempts of 42 and 44 yards in the second quarter while Virginia Tech's Mickey Thomas missed on a first quarter effort from 32 yards out and the Yellow Jackets' Keith Holmes blocked a 38-yard attempt by the Hokies' Brian Reaves with 4:42 remaining in the third quarter.

Virginia Tech broke on top midway in the final period, marching 53 yards in seven plays to the Yellow Jacket four. Quarterback Will Furrer hooked up with tailback Tony Kennedy for a 38-yard pass play to the Jacket 19-yard line on the first play of the drive. Six plays later, Thomas connected on a 22-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead with 8:17 remaining in the game.

The Jackets responded on their next possession, marching 55 yards in nine plays to the Hokie 15. From there, Sisson booted a 33-yard field goal with 5:09 remaining. Virginia Tech drove to the Yellow Jacket 39 on its next possession, but Chris Simmons recovered a mishandled exchange. After trading punts, Tech then took over on its own 16, setting up Jones' and Sisson's last-minute heroics.

The victory pushed Tech's record to 8-0-1 on the season and left it as the nation's only remaining unbeaten team. Tech extended its unbeaten string to 13 games.

GEORGIA TECH 42,
WAKE FOREST 7
November 17, 1990
Groves Stadium
Winston-Salem, N. C.

ATLANTA—Quarterback Shawn Jones threw for 108 yards, including a 54-yard touchdown strike to Bobby Rodriguez, and ran for 78 more to key a potent Tech attack as the Yellow Jackets downed Wake Forest, 42-7, winning its first-ever Atlantic Coast Conference championship at Groves Stadium before a crowd of just 13,493 fans.

Jones, who completed 8 of 13 passes in less than three quarters of action, guided Tech 86 yards in 11 plays on its first possession with William Bell scoring from one yard out for a 7-0 lead with 5:31 remaining in the first quarter.

After a Wake Forest punt, Jones found Rodriguez alone behind the Deacon secondary and lofted a 54-yard TD strike, giving the Jackets a 14-0 lead with 3:35 remaining in the quarter.

The Jackets took complete control of the game in the second period, scoring twice for a 28-0 halftime lead. First, fullback Carl Lawson capped a 57-yard, eight-play drive with a one-yard run with 14:30 remaining in the second.

On Tech's next possession, the Jackets marched 80 yards in 12 plays with Rodriguez scoring from 22 yards out on a flanker reverse.

Wake Forest threatened early in the third quarter after recovering a Jones fumble at the Jacket 32. But all-America safety Ken Swilling stripped Deacon receiver Todd Dixon of the ball at the Tech five and cornerback Willie Clay fell on the ball in the Jacket end zone.

Midway through the third quarter, the Jackets marched 59 yards in just four plays, including a 35-yard run by Jones to the Wake four. One play later, Bell, who was the game's leading rusher with 95 yards on Georgia Tech's offense heated up over the final six games of the season, scoring 40 or more points against five its last six foes, including Duke (48-31), Virginia (41-38), Wake Forest (42-7), Georgia (40-23) and Nebraska (45-21).

just 14 carries, fumbled into the end zone and senior offensive guard Jim Lavin recovered for a 35-0 advantage with 8:44 left in the period.

Wake finally got on the scoreboard on its next possession as backup quarterback Keith West connected with Dixon on a 69-yard touchdown pass play against the second team Jacket defense.

Tech's front line defenders—led by defensive tackle Coleman Rudolph and Clay—departed at the beginning of the fourth quarter after allowing the Deacons no points and 171 yards of total offense in three periods of play. In all, Tech's defenders recovered three Deacon fumbles and forced four interceptions.

Tech reserve cornerback Mike Williams completed the scoring with an 83-yard interception return with 7:34 left in the final quarter.

The victory clinched Tech's first conference championship since the 1952 team were SEC titlists, a span of 38 years. The victory also boosted Tech to 9-0-1 on the season and extended its unbeaten streak to 14 games. Placekicker Scott Sisson snapped the school record for PAT's without a miss, extending his streak to 66.

GEORGIA TECH 40,
 GEORGIA 23
 December 1, 1990
 Sanford Stadium
 Athens, Ga.

ATHENS, Ga.—Shawn Jones tied his career high with four touchdown passes, including two in the pivotal second quarter, as Georgia Tech rallied from a 9-0 deficit and claimed its second straight win over its arch-rival Georgia, a 40-23 victory before 82,122 fans at Sanford Stadium.

With the win Tech finished the regular season as the nation's only unbeaten team with a 10-0-1 mark. The Jackets became the 9th team in Tech history to finish the regular season unbeaten and only the 6th Yellow Jacket squad to win 10 games in a season.

But Georgia, a 13-point underdog, entertained early thoughts of an upset, marching 49 yards for a touchdown on its second possession of the game. The Bulldogs recovered a Tech fumble on its next possession which led to a 49-yard field goal by John Kasay, and with 3:35 remaining, Georgia held a 9-0 advantage.

The Jackets chopped the margin to two points, marching 49 yards in seven plays with William Bell, the game's leading rusher with 128 yards on 24 carries, scoring from three yards out to make it 9-7.

On Tech's next possession, the Jackets took the lead for good marching 74 yards in two plays. Bell's 26-yard run set up a 48-yard TD pass from Jones to Rodriguez. Jones then connected with Greg Lester in the end zone for a 15-9 advantage with 6:04 left in the half.

Jones, who completed 15 of 20 passes on the day for 225 yards including a string of 12 straight completions, boosted the margin to 23-9, capping a 59-yard drive with a 21-yard TD toss to split end Emmett Merchant. Jones ran for the two-point conversion on a quarterback draw and with 1:23 to go, the Jackets were in full control.

Georgia, with help of a roughing the kicker penalty, added a 37-yard field goal by Kasay on the final play of the half to make it 23-12 at intermission.

The Bulldogs put together a short drive on their first possession of the second half, but all-America free safety Ken Swilling stripped Larry Ware of the football and linebacker Jerrelle Williams recovered at the Georgia 48. From there, the Jackets took nine plays to score with Jones hitting tight end James MacKendree with a six-yard toss for a 30-12 advantage.

The Jackets blew out the game on their very next possession after an 18-yard punt. Tech drove 50 yards in just three plays, scoring on a 25-yard Jones toss to Rodriguez, his second score of the game.

Georgia, though, came right back on its next possession, going 53 yards in six plays with backup quarterback Greg Talley hitting Andre Hastings with a 31-yard scoring pass. Mack Strong ran in for two and with 3:01 remaining in the third, Tech led 37-20.

With Tech unable to drive, Georgia, with Talley completing six of 10 passes for 77 yards, marched 56 yards for a Kasay field goal of 49 yards and with 10:47 still left in the game, the margin had shrunk to 37-23. But the Jackets put together a 75-yard, 15-play drive that took 8:06 off the clock and resulted in a 22-yard field goal by Scott Sisson for the final 40-23 margin.

GEORGIA TECH 45,
NEBRASKA 21
Florida Citrus Bowl
January 1, 1991
Orlando, Fla.

ORLANDO, Fla.--Head coach Bobby Ross took his Georgia Tech squad to Disneyworld and capped an unbeaten season with a convincing 45-21 win over perennial power Nebraska at the Florida Citrus Bowl before a full house of 72,328.

As the nation's only undefeated team at 11-0-1, the Jackets were crowned UPI national champions, marking the first time a wire service had ever bestowed that honor on a Tech team.

Quarterback Shawn Jones earned Offensive MVP honors by passing for a career high 277 yards and two touchdowns while totaling 318 yards in total offense. Running back William Bell scored three touchdowns and rushed for a game-high 127 yards. Strong safety Thomas Balkcom took home Defensive MVP recognition.

Tech's trip to the Florida Citrus Bowl as the ACC champions completed several milestones.

- Tech made its 24th bowl appearance in school history and played in its first New Year's Day game since the 1967 Orange Bowl.

- For the first time since 1952, a Tech team finished the season unbeaten.

- The Jackets extended their streak in the last 20 games to 18-1-1 and an unbeaten streak of 16 games in a row.

Entering the game ranked second in the country, Tech bypassed the 40-point threshold for the sixth time this season behind the play of Jones, jumping to a 21-0 lead midway through the second quarter.

Jones's 46-yard scramble on Tech's first possession set up a two-yard touchdown run by fullback Stefen Scotton at the 11:45 mark. Nebraska fumbled the ball on its first offensive play of the second quarter and defensive tackle Coleman Rudolph recovered at the 22 yard line.

Two plays later, split end Emmett Merchant made a spectacular 22-yard reception in the back of the end zone for a 14-0 advantage. Two big plays set up a third touchdown when Jones hit Brent Goolsby for a 27-yard strike and then connected with Bell on an 18 yard screen pass. Jones then capped the drive on a two yard touchdown pass to Bell at the 7:50 mark in the second quarter.

The Cornhuskers made their first dent in the Tech defense when quarterback Tom Haase teamed with tight end Johnny Mitchell for a 30-yard scoring strike. Nebraska struck again with just 1:50 in the half on a 50-yard run by I-back Derek Brown down the sideline.

When Nebraska fumbled a punt return and Tech's Jay Martin recovered, Tech was able to stem the Huskers' momentum before halftime when Scott Sisson booted a 37-yard field goal for a 24-14 lead at intermission.

Nebraska threatened immediately in the third quarter, but cornerback Keith Holmes blocked a field goal attempt. Jones hit flanker Jerry Gilchrist on a key third down conversion for a 23-yard gain and then Bell dashed 19 yards up the middle to set up Jones one-yard touchdown run for a 31-14 lead.

By the end of the third quarter, Nebraska had climbed within 10 points again at 31-21 when Haase connected with tight end William Washington for a 21-yard touchdown strike.

But the fourth stanza belonged to Tech. Bell pounded away at the Cornhusker defense scoring on a six-yard run for a 38-21 lead at the 9:43 mark. Later, Bell had a remarkable 57-yard touchdown run breaking away from several tacklers for the final Tech score.

Tech got strong defensive performances from Balkcom, who had two quarterback sacks, inside linebacker Calvin Tiggie, who had a team-high 10 tackles, and outside linebacker Marlon Williams, who had a sack and pass broken up.

Focus On CALVIN TIGGLE

"I had a feeling he was looking for (Herman) Moore. I was nervous in checking him, but I thank the defensive line. They did a great job rushing (Shawn) Moore, and that's why I had a good chance of knocking the ball away."

Calvin Tuggle had earned a reputation for making big plays, and appropriately enough, he saved his biggest play for the biggest moment of the biggest game.

With the seconds ticking away in the fourth quarter and Georgia Tech clinging to a 38-35 lead over No. 1-ranked Virginia, the Cavaliers stood knocking on the door, threatening to thwart a dramatic comeback that saw the Yellow Jackets rally from deficits of 13-0 and 28-14.

Virginia managed a first-and-goal at the Georgia Tech one-yard line, but a Nikki Fischer run resulted in a no-gain, and then UVa was penalized five yards for illegal procedure. After a Shawn Moore to Herman Moore pass put the ball back at the one, an apparent touchdown was wiped out as the Cavaliers were again whistled for illegal procedure.

Then, on third and six, the Cavaliers all-America combo of Moore to Moore tried again, but Tuggle managed to bat away a pass in the end zone that was intended for the 6-5 Herman Moore. Virginia was forced to settle for a game-tying field goal with 2:34 left.

yard drive that was capped by Scott Sisson's game-winning 37-yard field goal with just seven ticks on the clock, giving Tech one of the most thrilling victories in its storied football history.

"I had a feeling he was looking for (Herman) Moore," said Tuggle, who was selected the "Player of the Game" by CBS-TV.

"I was nervous in checking him, but I thank the defensive line. They did a great job rushing (Shawn) Moore, and that's why I had a good chance of knocking the ball away."

Tech safety Ken Swilling said, "I don't know where he came from. He just arrived there, knocking down that pass."

Tuggle's heroics in the end zone were an exclamation point on what had already been an outstanding game for the 6-2, 242-pound senior from Fort Washington, Md.

With an offense that at times appeared unstoppable, the Cavaliers jumped to a 28-14 lead at halftime and were looking for more as they received the opening kickoff of the second half. But on the first play from scrimmage, Shawn Moore fumbled and Tuggle pounced on the loose ball. Five plays later, Tech had a touchdown, and Virginia's advantage had been cut to 28-21.

"Coleman Rudolph made a great hit, said Tuggle, "and I just fell on it. I was in the right place at the right time."

Tuggle was once again in the right place at the right time on Virginia's very next possession, which saw the Cavaliers march down the field to the Georgia Tech 15-yard line. Moore tried to hit Nikki Fisher at the 10, but the ball bounced off Fisher, and into the hands of Tuggle, who raced 38 yards to the Tech 48.

"I wasn't expecting him (Fisher) to miss the ball," remarked Tuggle. "I thought he would catch it. I was going to make the hit, but the ball popped up."

Tuggle, who capped the season by earning first-team all-Atlantic Coast Conference honors, had foreshadowed his big-play performance four weeks earlier in Tech's 21-19 victory over Clemson.

With Tech holding a 21-12 advantage with eight minutes remaining in the game, the Tigers had driven 80 yards down the field to the Yellow Jacket one-yard line. On fourth down, Tuggle once again denied a touchdown, stopping Clemson's Derrick Witherspoon for no gain. ■

Focus On JOE SIFFRI

"A lot of it seems unrealistic because you don't go from the bottom to the top just by working hard. But that's just what we've done. It's really exciting for us because we've gone through all the hard times, and it makes it that much sweeter."

The roller coaster ride that was Joe Siffri's career at Georgia Tech would rival any that Disney World has to offer.

The offensive lineman from nearby Doraville, Ga., arrived on the Flats in the fall of 1986, when Tech was coming off its best season in recent years, a 9-2-1 campaign in 1985.

From there it was all downhill, seemingly with no relief in sight, as Siffri endured 2-9 and 3-8 seasons in 1987 and '88.

But finally the roller coaster took a turn for the better and headed uphill in 1989, when the Rambling Wreck rebounded from 0-3 start to win seven of their final eight for a 7-4 finish.

And then came the glory of 1990.

"A lot of it seems unrealistic because you don't go from the bottom to the top just by working hard," said Siffri, an all-Atlantic Coast Conference guard on Tech's national championship team. "But that's just what we've done. It's really exciting for us because we've gone through all the hard times, and it makes it that much sweeter."

Siffri's career at Tech was also an up-and-down affair on a more personal level. When Bobby Ross arrived at Tech in 1987, Siffri was an outspoken critic of the new coach's style, almost to the point of being a trouble-maker.

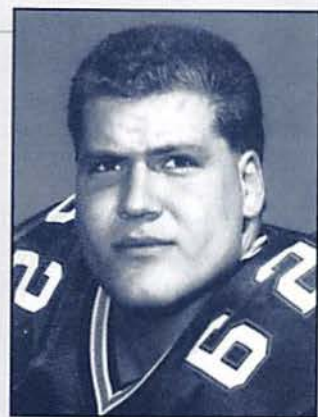

Not only did Siffri survive that initial adjustment period, but he was transformed into a well-respected team leader who served as President of Georgia Tech's Student-Athlete Advisory Board.

"I think Joe epitomizes the concept of the student-athlete," said Ross. "First of all, Joe is a very good person. He's a very giving person. Joe's a very good team player, one of the better team players I've ever been around."

"He's come as far as any kid I've ever coached in terms of being a productive player."

Siffri reciprocated the complement to Ross, saying, "He's developed me tremendously. He's changed me all the way around."

"I know all the success I'm having now on the field, in the classroom and in job-hunting are largely attributed to him, because he helped me grow up when I had to grow up."

Siffri had one final obstacle to deal with, the biggest of all.

After a lengthy battle with spinal cancer, his father, Charles Siffri, passed away on Dec. 1, just hours after Tech completed its regular season with a 10-0-1 record by defeating Georgia 40-23.

"He knew exactly what was going on up until the last day," said Siffri of his father. "He would talk to you about it and he watched all the games on TV. Thank God we got to be on TV a lot. He saw all the games that were on TV and watched all the Bobby Ross Shows."

Throughout the season, Siffri spent a lot of time with his father up until his death. Even during the rigors of two-a-days, while most of his teammates used their few free hours to catch an extra nap, Siffri was at his father's side.

"A lot of people think it was tough, but I think that's what you have to do in the real world," he said.

"Whatever goes on personally, you have to handle that, but also be able to pursue other things. I think it helped me grow up in that sense." ■

BOWL GAMES

Georgia Tech has the No. 1 Winning Percentage in College Football History

With its convincing 45-21 win over Nebraska in the 1991 Florida Citrus Bowl, Georgia Tech has the best winning percentage in the nation in bowl games. Tech has won 16 of its 24 bowl games (.667) in its distinguished history. Nationally, the Jackets also rank in a tie for fifth place in victories with 16 and 11th in bowl appearances with 24.

Tech is also one of the few colleges to have appeared in all four major bowl games—Rose, Cotton, Orange and Sugar—and one of only four to have won all four contests. Alabama, Georgia and Notre Dame are the others. The Yellow Jackets have a 9-3 record (including a 4-0 Sugar Bowl slate) in the Big Four bowls and the best record by percentage (.750) in such bowls. Only four schools have won more major bowl games than Georgia Tech—Alabama, Oklahoma, USC and Texas.

The Jackets also had the distinction of compiling six bowl victories in six consecutive years from 1952-56.

1929 ROSE BOWL Georgia Tech 8, California 7

The Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech completed a perfect 10-0 season by stunning the California Golden Bears, 8-7, in one of the strangest Rose Bowl games ever.

Each team scored a touchdown, but the margin of victory for Tech was provided when California center Roy Riegels scooped up a Stumpy Thomason fumble and raced 66 yards—in the wrong direction—to his own 1-yard line. On the next play, Tech's Vance Maree broke through the line and blocked a punt for the winning safety.

Statistically, the game was as close as the score with each team gaining 165 yards, Tech mainly on the ground and California through the air.

1940 ORANGE BOWL Georgia Tech 21, Missouri 7

The Yellow Jackets made their first of five trips to the Orange Bowl a successful one, defeating Missouri, 21-7, behind the heroics of 147-pound Johnny Bosch, who outran and outpassed the Tigers' all-America Paul Christman.

After an early Tiger score, Howard Ector completed a long, determined drive to knot the score at 7-7. Rob Ison raced 59 yards for a second-quarter Tech touchdown to give the Jackets the lead for good. Earl Wheby went around end for 34 yards and another Tech TD in the third period.

Missouri drove once to the Jackets' 1-yard line in the fourth quarter, but Tech snuffed out the attack and finished its season with an 8-2 record and a 16th-ranking by the Associated Press.

1943 COTTON BOWL Texas 14, Georgia Tech 7

A gallant comeback effort fell three yards short for the Yellow Jackets as Texas held on to win the Cotton Bowl, 14-7, marking Tech's first loss in three bowl appearances.

The Longhorns took a 14-0 advantage into the fourth quarter, with the help of a 60-yard punt return, when Tech began to make its move. Davey Eldredge scored for Tech on a fourth-down Statue of Liberty play, and Tech drove to the Texas 3-yard line in the closing seconds, but threw three incomplete passes.

The Yellow Jackets completed their season ranked fifth in the nation by the Associated Press with a 9-2 record.

The 13th-ranked Yellow Jackets made their first trip to the Sugar Bowl a memorable one by overcoming an 18-7 Tulsa lead in the second half to complete an 8-3 season. The Golden Hurricane of Tulsa used a fake field goal and a 75-yard run to open its lead.

Tech, which shut out the Hurricane in the second half, was led by the brilliant play of all-SEC halfback Eddie Prokup, who ran for 199 yards, threw a touchdown pass to all-America Phil Tinsley and booted two

For the second straight year, Tech faced Tulsa in a bowl game, but this time the Golden Hurricane turned the tables in the Yellow Jackets' second trip to the Orange Bowl, avenging its 20-18 Sugar Bowl loss to Tech the year before.

Quarterback Frank Broyles' 304-yard passing attack was not enough for Tech as Tulsa limited the 13th-ranked Jackets' ground game to 43 yards. Tulsa opened a 20-0 lead behind Ed Shedlosky's two touchdowns and easily held on to win. The Yellow Jackets scored on a 51-yard pass from Broyles to Johnny McIntosh and a two-yard run by Rumsey Taylor to complete an 8-3 season.

The Yellow Jackets added another bowl title to their collection by polishing off the St. Mary's Galloping Gaels in the third annual Oil Bowl in Houston, Tex. Tech opened a 27-7 lead at the half and cruised to the victory.

Tech's relentless defense picked off eight St. Mary's passes in the rain and mud of Rire Field, including one which W.P. McHugh returned 73 yards for a touchdown. Standout end George Brodnax caught two touchdown passes to lead the scoring parade for the Jackets.

Tech finished its season 9-2 and ranked 11th by the Associated Press.

1952 ORANGE BOWL Georgia Tech 17, Baylor 14

Georgia Tech made its first bowl appearance in four years and closed out an 11-0-1 season by edging Baylor, 17-14. The Yellow Jackets, ranked fifth by the Associated Press and United Press, broke a 14-14 deadlock in the fourth period on Pepper Rodgers' six-yard field goal for the victory.

The game slipped away from the Bears despite the fact that they piled up 299 yards and 17 first downs to only 191 yards and nine first downs for the Jackets.

Tech came back twice in the game, the first time on Leon Hardeman's three-yard run which tied the game, 7-7, in the first quarter. Quarterback Darrell Crawford threw a touchdown pass to Buck Martin with six minutes remaining in the fourth quarter to knot the game at 14-14.

The Jackets' pass defense also had a hand in the victory, shutting out the Bears in the second half and intercepting all-America quarterback Larry Isbell three times.

1953 SUGAR BOWL Georgia Tech 24, Mississippi 7

Georgia Tech (12-0) extended its winning streak to 26 games without a loss and was named national champion by the International News Service after beating Mississippi, 24-7, in its first Sugar Bowl appearance since 1944.

The powerful Tech defense, which had allowed its opponents less than five points a game during the regular season, allowed the Rebels to score on their first possession for a 7-0 lead, but shut them out the rest of the way behind the play of George Morris and Sam Hensley.

Quarterback Pepper Rodgers was the hero for the second straight year, throwing a touchdown pass and kicking a field goal

1954 SUGAR BOWL Georgia Tech 42, W. Virginia 19

Georgia Tech, playing in a major bowl game for the third consecutive year, unleashed a record-breaking aerial attack to down the Mountaineers. The Jackets, 9-2 and ranked eighth by the Associated Press, set Sugar Bowl records for pass attempts (35), pass completions (20) and passing yardage (268), and rolled up 438 yards in total offense.

Pepper Rodgers, always at his best in bowl games, again was the central figure in the offensive attack, accounting for 23 points with his kicking and passing. He completed 16 of 26 passes for 195 yards, threw three TD passes and kicked one field goal and two extra points.

Sam Hensley led the Tech receiving corps with four catches for 76 yards and one touchdown. Dave Davis had four catches for 43 yards, and Henry Hair caught three passes for 29 yards and one TD.

1955 COTTON BOWL Georgia Tech 14, Arkansas 6

Appearing in a major bowl for the fourth straight year, Georgia Tech (8-3) completed a rare "grand slam" by winning the Cotton Bowl, 14-6, over Arkansas. It gave the Yellow Jackets a victory in each of the major bowl games.

Again, the Yellow Jackets had to come from behind as they so often had done in the past, with Paul Rotenberry providing the touchdown which tied the game. His four-yard run around end in the third quarter and Wade Mitchell's PAT put Tech ahead 7-6. Mitchell got the final points with a one-yard plunge and kicked the point after with seven minutes remaining in the game.

Tech amassed 285 yards on the ground, led by George Humphreys who picked up 99 yards on 19 carries and Jimmy Thompson who gained 63 yards on 12 tries.

1956 SUGAR BOWL Georgia Tech 7, Pittsburgh 0

Georgia Tech won its fifth consecutive major bowl game in five seasons and ran its record to 4-0 in the Sugar Bowl with its shutout of Pittsburgh. The Yellow Jackets completed a 9-1-1 season ranked seventh in the nation.

Tech Hall of Fame quarterback Wade Mitchell sneaked over from the one-yard line early in the game for the only score, taking advantage of a Panther fumble at the Pitt 32-yard line. The Jackets netted all of their offense—142 yards—on the ground, led by Dickie Mattison (27 yards) and Paul Rotenberry (25).

All-SEC guard Franklin Brooks was named the game's outstanding player, leading a brilliant Tech defensive effort which allowed Pitt 313 yards in offense but no scores. The Panthers mounted only two threats, one to the one-yard line late in the first half and to the five as the final gun sounded.

Georgia Tech (10-1) and Pittsburgh met in bowl competition for the second time in less than a year, and the fourth-ranked Yellow Jackets won their sixth consecutive bowl game in six seasons, a college record which would stand for 17 years.

The decisive score again came after a Pittsburgh fumble, this time on the second half kickoff, as Paul Rotenberry scored from five yards out to give Tech a 21-7 lead. The Panthers again collected 313 yards in total offense but were hurt by two fumbles and two interceptions.

Wesley Gibbs recovered the fumbled kickoff for Tech to set up a 37-yard drive, and the Panthers never reached closer than the Jackets' 32-yard line (at the closing gun) after that.

Ken Owen scored the first Tech TD on a two-yard dive with 8:39 left in the opening period. George Volkert took a pitchout from quarterback Toppy Vann and hit Jerry Nabors for the second score with 2:02 in the half. Stan Flowers led Tech's ground attack with 63 yards on just four carries, setting up the second TD with a 34-yard jaunt.

Tech returned to the bowl circuit for the first time in four years and found life not as pleasant as before, falling to the Razorbacks behind the running of Jim Mooty and Lance Alworth in its second Gator Bowl appearance.

Ex-Yellow Jackets' star Frank Broyles coached Arkansas to the victory, while all-America Maxie Baughan led the Tech defense. Tech finished the season 6-5.

Penn State came back from a 9-0 deficit in the second quarter to down Georgia Tech, 30-15, in the first bowl meeting between the two football powers. Nittany Lions' quarterback Galen Hall passed for 175 yards and three touchdowns, completing 12 of 22 aeriels.

Joe Auer, who rushed for 98 yards on 10 carries, did his best to keep the 13th-ranked Jackets in the game, racing 68 yards for a second quarter score and going 14 yards for a third-quarter TD which brought Tech to within 20-15. Billy Lothridge completed eight of 17 passes for 154 yards.

Tech, which finished with a 7-4 record, scored its other points on a first-quarter safety when Hall was called for intentional grounding in the Penn State end zone.

The Missouri Tigers handed Georgia Tech its third consecutive bowl loss, downing the Yellow Jackets, 14-10, in their first Bluebonnet Bowl appearance.

Halfback Bill Tobin ran for 117 yards to lead a Tiger offense which amassed 258 yards—all on the ground. Tobin scored the winning touchdown on a 77-yard sprint with 5:54 left in the third quarter.

Joe Auer scored Tech's only touchdown and led Tech's rushing attack with 62 yards on 10 carries. Quarterback Billy Lothridge kicked a 26-yard field goal for Tech's other points, but was hurt by four interceptions in the game.

Tech finished its season 7-3-1.

1965 GATOR BOWL Georgia Tech 31, Texas Tech 21

Georgia Tech went to its fourth bowl game in six years and evened its Gator Bowl record at 2-2 by downing Texas Tech, 31-21, sparked by quarterback Jerry Priestley.

but his one-yard keeper for a touchdown put the Yellow Jackets ahead to stay, 24-21, with 13:07 left in the game.

Halfback Lenny Snow rushed for 138 yards on 33 carries, then a Tech and Gator Bowl record, and scored a touchdown in earning Most Valuable Player honors. Tech collected 364 yards rushing in the game. The Yellow Jackets also set Gator Bowl marks for runs from scrimmage (79) and first downs rushing (23).

Texas Tech quarterback Tom Wilson completed 22 of 40 passes for 283 yards, but the Jackets (7-3-1) held on by recovering three fumbles and intercepting two passes.

Eighth-ranked Georgia Tech's fifth appearance in the Orange Bowl also was its last game under legendary coach Bobby Dodd, as the Yellow Jackets fell to the Gators, 27-12.

Tech trailed but 7-6 late in the third quarter and was threatening when quarterback Kim King was intercepted. Florida's Larry Smith raced 94 yards on the ensuing drive for the back-breaking touchdown.

Lenny Snow starred again for Tech, rushing for 110 yards and hauling in a 52-yard pass reception. Tech finished its final season under Dodd with a 9-2 record.

1970 SUN BOWL Georgia Tech 17, Texas Tech 9

Georgia Tech met Texas Tech in a bowl game for the second time and again defeated the Red Raiders, 17-9, buoyed by an outstanding defensive effort which shut out Texas Tech in the first half.

The 13th-ranked Yellow Jackets built a 10-0 halftime lead behind a one-yard touchdown plunge by Rob Healy and a 21-yard field goal by Jack Moore. Texas Tech closed the gap to 10-9 in the third quarter with the help of a blocked punt safety.

The Red Raiders missed a 24-yard field goal attempt which would have given them the lead in the fourth quarter, and Bill Flowers recovered a Texas Tech fumble at the Raiders' 25-yard line to set up the clinching touchdown. Third-string tailback Kevin McNamara bulled in from two yards out for the score.

Quarterback Jack Williams completed 11 of 14 passes for 123 yards, and Healy led all Tech rushers with 59 yards in a balanced offensive attack. Brent Cunningham added 42 yards for Tech, which finished the season 9-3.

Mississippi, which lost to Tech in the Sugar Bowl in 1953, coasted to the win this time after building a 38-6 halftime lead in the Yellow Jackets' first Peach Bowl appearance.

Despite near equality in total offense (317 for Tech to 318 for Ole Miss), the Jackets suffered from five turnovers, including two interceptions by quarterback Eddie McAshan. Rob Healy scored all three Tech touchdowns, and rushed for 27 yards on 17 carries. McAshan completed 13 of 26 passes for 151 yards.

Tailback Greg Ainsworth of Ole Miss was the game's top rusher with 119 yards on 28 carries, and Jimmy Porter rushed for two scores. The Yellow Jackets finished the season 6-6.

1972 LIBERTY BOWL Georgia Tech 31, Iowa State 30

Backup quarterback Jim Stevens completed 12 of 15 passes for 157 yards and three touchdowns and was named the game's Most Valuable Player as Georgia Tech won a thriller over Iowa State in its first Liberty Bowl.

Stevens was nearly the goat, however, when Iowa State recovered his errant pitchout and drove 33 yards for a touchdown with 1:36 left in the game. But Cyclone quarterback George Amundson threw a two-point conversion pass away under pressure, leaving his team trailing by a point.

Tech's Mark Fields recovered the ensuing onside kick, and the Yellow Jackets ran out the clock to preserve the win.

The Yellow Jackets, ranked 20th in the nation, struck first after recovering an Iowa State fumble with a 32-yard field goal by Cam Bonifay. But the Cyclones scored twice after that for a 14-3 lead at the end of the first quarter. Tech rallied on a Stevens-to-Jimmy Robinson pass and a Gary Faulkner interception return to trail at the half, 21-17.

Stevens passed to Rob Healy for a TD in the third quarter to give Tech the lead again, 24-21, then hit Kevin McNamara for a score in the fourth period for Tech's final points.

The Boilermakers led 34-7 at the half, mainly behind quarterback Mark Hermann, who completed 12 of 24 passes for 166 yards and two scores.

Reserve quarterback Todd Rampley, sophomore tailback Malcolm King and a stingy Tech defense made this a New Year's Eve to remember in Birmingham, Ala., as the Rambling Wreck won a 17-14 come-from-behind game over Michigan State and its outstanding tailback Lorenzo White.

King ran for 122 yards on 16 carries, including the decisive touchdown with just 1:50 remaining in the game to complete the comeback. King's five-yard burst completed his finest game of the season, and his 56-yard jaunt in the second quarter set up Tech's other TD, a one-yard sneak by Rampley.

Rampley, a sophomore making the first start of his career in place of regular quarterback John Dewberry, completed 12 of 23 passes and scored a TD, while David Bell connected on a 40-yard field goal in the fourth period, his eighth consecutive successful attempt.

Meanwhile, Tech's defense allowed White, the nation's leading ground gainer, to his due with 158 yards, but limited the rest of the Spartans offense to just 75 yards as the Rambling Wreck rallied.

The victory gave Tech a 9-2-1 record, the best since the Bobby Dodd Era, and gave the Rambling Wreck a No. 18 ranking in the final national poll.

1991 FLORIDA CITRUS BOWL Georgia Tech 45, Nebraska 21

Underdog Georgia Tech clinched the UPI national championship with a dominating 45-21 win over 13th ranked Nebraska in Orlando, Fla., on New Year's Day as MVP Shawn Jones totalled 318 yards in total offense and running back William Bell collected 127 yards on the ground. Tech completed a storybook season as the nation's only undefeated team at 11-0-1.

"This is the greatest team I've ever coached," said National Coach-of-the-Year Bobby Ross. "To me, they'll always be national champions."

Jones, who threw for a career high 277 yards and two touchdowns, directed Tech to a 21-0 lead with scoring tosses to Bell and Emmett Merchant in the second quarter. A Scott Sisson 37-yard field goal gave the Jackets a 24-14 halftime advantage.

Nebraska threatened on its first possession of the second half, but Keith Holmes blocked a field goal attempt which led to a one-yard touchdown run by Jones. Tech held the upper hand the remainder of the game as Bell added two touchdown runs, including a brilliant 57-yard jaunt. The 45 points by the offense was the most points ever by Tech in a bowl game.

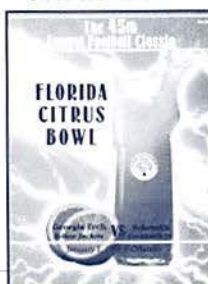

Strong safety Thomas Balkcom was voted the defensive MVP with two sacks as the Jackets turned in an outstanding defensive effort behind inside linebacker Calvin Tiggie, outside linebacker Marlon Williams and cornerback Willie Clay.

SCORES

Beginning its 99th season of intercollegiate football, Georgia Tech's all-time record is 537-352-43, a winning percentage of .599. For the years when the Rambling Wreck has had a full-time football coach to guide its fortunes, the record is even more impressive. After 1904, when John Heisman became the school's first permanent football coach, the Institute has racked up a 528-320-38 mark for a winning percentage of .617.

Georgia Tech has had just eight full-time football coaches in the school's history: John Heisman, 1904-1919; William A. Alexander, 1920-1944; Bobby Dodd, 1945-1966; Bud Carson, 1967-1971; Bill Fulcher, 1972-1973; Pepper Rodgers, 1974-1979; Bill Curry, 1980-86; and Bobby Ross, 1987-Present. Prior to 1904, Tech teams were "coached" by professors on the school staff, interested townspeople, or one of the players.

Professor Ernest E. West, a Naval College graduate, directed Tech's first football team in 1892. In 1893 and 1894, the team was coached by volunteers Frank O. Spain, a professor in the Mathematics Department, and by Lt. Leonard Wood (who later became famous as the colonel in command of Roosevelt's Rough Riders and as Governor General of Cuba), then stationed at Fort McPherson in Atlanta. The rules were rather lax in those days, so both Spain and Wood also played on the team. The next volunteer coach of record was R.B. "Cow" Nalley in 1898, a "Mr. Collier" in 1899, Dr. Cyrus W. Strickler in 1901 and John McKee in 1902.

To these men listed, and to others of whom we have no record, should go much of the credit for intercollegiate football's beginning at Georgia Tech. The record of Tech teams from 1892 through 1903 was nine victories, 32 defeats and five ties.

THE GRAY FOX Tech's Winningest Football Coach

A popular legend in Southern football lore and a beloved figure in Georgia Tech history, Robert Lee "Bobby" Dodd guided the Rambling Wreck program to national prominence as Tech's winningest head football coach in his 22 seasons on the Flats. He also served as athletic director for 26 years from 1950-76.

Described as "the gentleman coach of college football" by his final 1966 squad, Dodd coached Tech to its most illustrious gridiron history from 1945-66 as the Rambling Wreck won 165 games, lost 64 and tied eight for a 71.3 winning percentage.

His success included a 31-game winning streak in 1951-53. The Yellow Jackets compiled a perfect 12-0 season in 1952 en route to the International News Service national championship, and Dodd was named national "Coach of the Year" in a poll by the New York Daily News.

Now, the national "Coach of the Year" award given by the American Sportsmanship Council is named after Bobby Dodd. The citation is in "recognition of a higher and more noble aspect of college coaching . . . a style that emphasizes something more than winning the game . . . a belief that the game of football should be kept in perspective with college life in general."

Dodd started his 36-year coaching career directly out of college, coming to Atlanta in 1931 as an assistant coach. Dodd became Tech's third head coach in 1945 following Hall of Famers John W. Heisman and William A. Alexander.

Using the T-formation offense, a system of specialization and a "football for fun" philosophy, Dodd particularly found good fortune in bowl games winning nine of 13 post-season games.

His teams captured six straight victories in major bowls including the 1952 Orange (17-14 over Baylor), 1953 Sugar (24-7 over Missis-

Stephenson, Maxie Baughan, Rufus Guthrie, Billy Lothridge, Billy Martin, Gerry Bussell, Jim Breland and Lenny Snow.

Known as the "Gray Fox," Dodd prospered in an era that included some of the South's most famous football coaches in Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant, Clemson's Frank Howard, Georgia's Wallace sippi), 1954 Sugar (42-19 over West Virginia), 1955 Cotton (14-6 over Arkansas), 1956 Sugar (7-0 over Pittsburgh) and 1956 Gator (21-14 over Pittsburgh). For many years, Tech exclusively held the records for most bowl wins and most bowl victories in consecutive seasons.

Dodd is a member of the National Football Hall of Fame as a player and the Helms Football Hall of Fame as a player and coach. He also is an inductee into both the Tennessee and Georgia Sports Hall of Fames.

Butts, Tennessee's Gen. Robert Neyland and Auburn's Ralph "Shug" Jordan.

Dodd retired from coaching in February 1967 but continued as Tech's athletic director. At that time, the American Football Writers Association awarded him a "Citation of Honor" for his contributions to football.

In 1976, he retired from the athletic association and moved to a consulting position with the Georgia Tech National Alumni Association. During his retirement, Dodd could usually be found fishing for largemouth bass or playing tennis at the Bitsy Grant Tennis Center. He continued to make appearances on behalf of Georgia Tech's Alumni and Athletic Associations, and he co-authored his autobiography, "Dodd's Luck."

Bobby Dodd

Dodd's expertise as a coach followed his prowess as a player. As a quarterback, Dodd led Tennessee to a 27-1-2 record from 1928-30. He was named all-Southern in 1929 and 1930, and he was tabbed to Collier's All-American team by Grantland Rice after his senior season. He also played basketball at Tennessee and served as team captain.

Named for the civil war general for whom his father admired, Dodd was born on Nov. 11, 1908 in Galax, Va., as the youngest of four children. His parents were Edwin Dodd and Susan Nuckolls Dodd. The family also lived in Bluefield, Va., where they operated a furniture factory.

Dodd was a schoolboy sports star as a single wing quarterback at Kingsport (Tenn.) High and led his team to the mythical Tennessee state championship in 1923 with an 8-1-1 record. In his six prep school years, Dodd passed for 37 touchdowns, rushed for 30, kicked 51 extra points and seven field goals for a total of 252 points. Dodd was simply a natural athlete although his lanky build and bowleggedness lent credence otherwise.

Dodd died on June 21, 1988, at the age of 79 from cancer. He was married to the former Alice Davis, and they had a son, Robert E. Dodd, Jr., a former University of Florida safety and quarterback, and a daughter, Mrs. Linda Thompson plus six grandchildren. ■

"Saturday Magic"

by Furman Bisher, Atlanta Constitution

To understand the electricity of a Saturday afternoon of football at Grant Field when Bobby Dodd coached at Georgia Tech, you would have had to be there. The times were so different, not necessarily "good ole days," but they were good times because they were the best we had. Atlanta was still a surrey town riding a trackless trolley. Georgia Tech was its one major-league franchise.

Football held the stage in autumn. To hold a ticket to watch the Yellow Jackets play was better than holding inside straight. The West Stand was high society. Tickets to the Masters were easier to come by. Visiting coaches quivered at the sight across the field. They were limited to a handful of meek voices cheering their team, and there sat that casual man in a folding chair at a card table, rarely ever standing or showing vigorous interest in the game, and those thousands worshipping him like a Buddha.

That was Dodd's style. He took his seat and left the pacing to his lieutenants, Frank Broyles on offense, Ray Graves on defense in the heyday. When a crisis arose, out from under that hat came the plays to be run and the designated players to run them.

Dodd sometimes made the strangest substitutions, as on a

Saturday in Athens when Georgia Tech was about to be upset. He sent in a stubby little halfback who had been ardently recruited and so often injured his career was mostly spent in splints. He broke to the right faking a run, stopped, flung a pass for a touchdown and returned to the bench. Thus Chappell Rhino became known as "One-Play."

Grant Field had its magic. John Heisman had coached there. Bill Alexander had coached there. What Dodd brought to the old place was a kind of unbribing football other coaches couldn't understand, runty halfbacks, lightweight linemen, rarely, if ever, a classic quarterback. His quarterbacks were trained to get the ball from here to there, to think offense and direct traffic.

At first, Dodd didn't care for platoon football. He was afraid it would bankrupt athletic departments, and he would have been right except that the sugar daddy television came along. Once free substitution came in, no one made capital of it more than Dodd. He could adjust.

Before all that, one of his early teams laid a heavy upset on Duke. Both teams were unbeaten. It was a major national game. Wallace Wade was crushed, but always the gentleman, so he said, "Today's victory was a Dodd victory. Today I would say there is no finer living coach in America than Dodd."

This was spoken at a time when Wade was a mountain among molehills of American football. I hate to tell you this, but Georgia Tech lost the next three games.

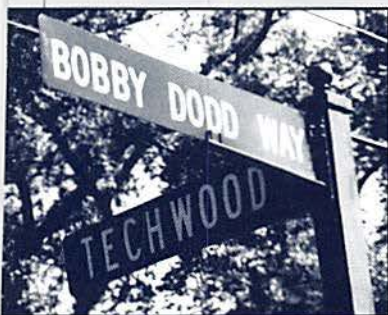

Grant Field was Bobby Dodd's domain. That was his stage. There he was regal. He was the man in command. Bobby Dodd, Bobby Jones and Coca-Cola—they were Atlanta in those days. An afternoon on The Flats was excitement in White and Gold. He felt lucky and transmitted it to the atmosphere. Atlanta hasn't felt that lucky since.

Grant Field would now be joined with Bobby Dodd Stadium, and the descendants of the Grants would surely be pleased. John W. Grant donated $15,000 in 1914 for a combination football-baseball field to be built in memory of a son he had lost, and a year later put up $20,000 more to have the first cement stands completed. Grant was a major landholder whose home is now the Cherokee Town Club. Yankees laughed at such a visible place in Atlanta named "Grant," with Ulysses in mind. Hugh Inman Grant was the original name, but Hugh Inman became lost in time.

Dodd came to Georgia Tech in 1930 as an assistant coach, and he is still there, head coach in 1945, athletic director, and a fixture in alumni relations to this day.

"I don't believe in all the history of college football any other coach has come and stayed 58 years on the same campus," Homer Rice, only Georgia Tech's third AD since Heisman, said.

Many a time he could have left for richer connections, but it seemed that Dodd and Georgia Tech belonged together. Now it is done, it is official and they are forevermore—Georgia Tech and Bobby Dodd Stadium, the place he made magic on Saturday afternoon. ■

THE WIZARD

Guided Tech to its First National Championship

College football's most prized individual award is a two-foot bronze reproduction of a runner stiff-arming a tackler. Called the Heisman Trophy, the award is named after one of the most prized individuals in Georgia Tech's football history—John Heisman.

Johann Wilhelm Heisman, a young Pennsylvanian of German extraction, journeyed to Auburn in 1895 to coach a new-fangled game called football. Historians report Auburn beating Vanderbilt that year on a trick play 9-6.

The play was the hidden ball trick. Heisman instructed his quarterback, Reynolds Tichenor, to tuck the ball under his jersey and bend down to tie his shoelace while his teammates scattered, each faking the carry. After the play piled up, Tichenor simply trotted to the touch-down. At its next meeting, the football rules committee banned this play.

No doubt, Heisman was an innovator with his wide-open and colorful brand of football. He campaigned vehemently for the forward pass to be legalized. He invented the direct snap from center, the jump shift or the Heisman shift (the inspiration for latter day "T" and "I" formations, the spin play), double laterals, and the first scoreboard that showed downs and yards.

Heisman has been credited with introducing the vocal signal for starting a play, usually a 'hep' or 'hike,' and for campaigning to reduce games to quarters instead of halves.

Heisman moved from Auburn to Clemson and finally agreed to come to Georgia Tech after the 1903 season where he was the first paid coach in the country. His salary was $2,250 plus 30 percent of the net gate receipts.

Heisman guided the Rambling Wreck from 1904-1919, compiling a 102-29-7 record as Georgia Tech consistently fielded one of the best teams in the nation. Heisman's greatest teams came in the early days of World War I when he went 33 games without a loss.

His 1917 team won Tech's first national championship as only 17 points were scored against the Jackets in nine games. In a stunning intersectional upset, Penn was routed 41-0 that year. Heisman never lost more than three games in any season. Under Heisman, Tech recorded the highest score in college football annals, a 222-0 triumph over Cumberland in 1916.

His coaching earned him a spot in both the National Football Hall of Fame and the Helms Football Hall of Fame.

On Saturdays when Tech wasn't playing, he covered a top Southern football game for an Atlanta newspaper. His opinion was respected in the selection of the all-Southern teams at the end of the season.

During the summers, Heisman had his own theatrical groups, appearing in five or six Georgia cities. Often he took lead roles, with his deep voice and stage presence.

In 1919, Tech claimed the Southern championship again. But school authorities were concerned about the disclosure that he and his wife had decided to get a divorce. Heisman agreed with his wife that wherever she wished to live, he would live in another place. Mrs. Heisman chose Atlanta and so he left Tech after 16 seasons.

WIZARD'S WISDOM

During his coaching career, Heisman formulated his ideas about football and had typed them up for distribution to members of his football squad. One of his players still had his list which read:

DON'TS

- Don't lose your head.
- Don't fumble the ball.
- Don't tackle high.
- Don't stop running because you are behind.
- Don't hesitate about falling on the ball.
- Don't let a runner escape you after you have him.
- Don't lose the game.

ALWAYS

- Always play with your head.
- Always listen for signal.
- Always block your opponent at any cost.
- Always start as fast as you can.
- Always be where the ball is.
- Always win the game.

CAN'TS

- You can't play football without brains.
- You can't play too aggressively.
- You can't afford to waste time talking.
- You can't play ball with a swelled head.
- You can't win without using these principles.

NEVER

- Never drop the ball.
- Never get excited.
- Never give up.
- Never forget a football player may be a gentleman.

An outstanding athlete himself at Pennsylvania, Heisman returned there as head coach in 1920 as William Alexander succeeded him at Tech. Later Heisman coached at Washington & Jefferson and Rice University. He was the Director of Athletics at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York at the time of his death. ■

"Bill Alexander's life was eloquent illustration of the phrase: 'It matters not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game.' He played it always on the level and with all he had."

—Ralph McGill

The immortal Knute Rockne once said that Bill Alexander could get more out of less than any football coach he'd ever known.

Countless coaches echoed Rockne's praise, but William Anderson Alexander did not become a legend at Georgia Tech because of what he got out of his players. He was more famous for what he instilled in them. The Old Man, as his players fondly called him, always believed that the man was more important than the game.

A demanding disciplinarian on the field, Coach Alex never gave up on a boy who tried.

For example there once was a highly heralded high school star who flunked the varsity test at Tech. Assistants wanted to take the player off the scholarship list.

"Every one of us coaches overestimated this boy's ability as a player," Coach Alex said. "He never will be anything but a B-team man, but he does his best on the field and in the books. He never whines. He never quits. I want him tutored like he was a first-string player. I want him given an extra summer school course, if necessary for him to graduate."

W.A. Alexander was always for the underdog. Though he retired as head coach at Georgia Tech in 1945 revered as one of the game's great names, Coach Alex never forgot his humble start.

When he came to Tech from Mud River, Ky., in 1906, John Heisman was in his third term of a miracle career at the Flats. He never made the varsity, but he never quit trying. Heisman was impressed with the football knowledge and desire of the young man who came to play and couldn't. He named Alexander "Captain of the Scrubs."

Heisman also asked Alexander to serve as a student assistant. He received a degree in civil engineering and joined Heisman's staff as an assistant in 1912. He also taught math at Tech and held a full professorship.

When Heisman completed his 102-29-7 record at Tech, alumni said he could not be replaced. An immediate search was launched for a big name successor. But D.M. Smith, Chip Robert, Col. Bob Jones and others were aware that Tech had a worthy successor on the campus.

They won a hard battle for Alexander and, in 1920 at the age of 30, Coach Alex launched his famous regime as Tech head coach. He promptly justified the faith and directed Tech to 8-1 campaigns in his first two seasons.

Despite a long losing siege during the depression years, Coach Alex logged a career record of 134-95-15. He became the first coach to score a major bowl grand slam, taking teams to the Rose, Sugar, Orange and Cotton Bowls.

His undefeated 1928 team beat California, 8-7, in the never-to-be-forgotten Rose Bowl game in which Roy Riegels ran the wrong way.

Alexander earned every honor his profession offered: first coach to play in the four major bowls, Coach of the Year, president of the Football Coaches Association, long-time member of the rules committee, and a member of the Football Hall of Fame. He also established a model intramural program at Tech, and his football teams supplied funds to build a fine athletic complex.

No one knew Alexander, who died in 1950, better than Bobby Dodd.

When Alexander Memorial Coliseum was dedicated in his honor in 1956, Dodd said: "William Anderson Alexander was the finest man I have ever known. As a student, athlete, teacher, coach and athletic director, he devoted 40 years—his entire adult life—to Georgia Tech.

"He taught me to treat athletes as men not boys, to never use their failings as an alibi for a loss. I never heard him alibi for a defeat."

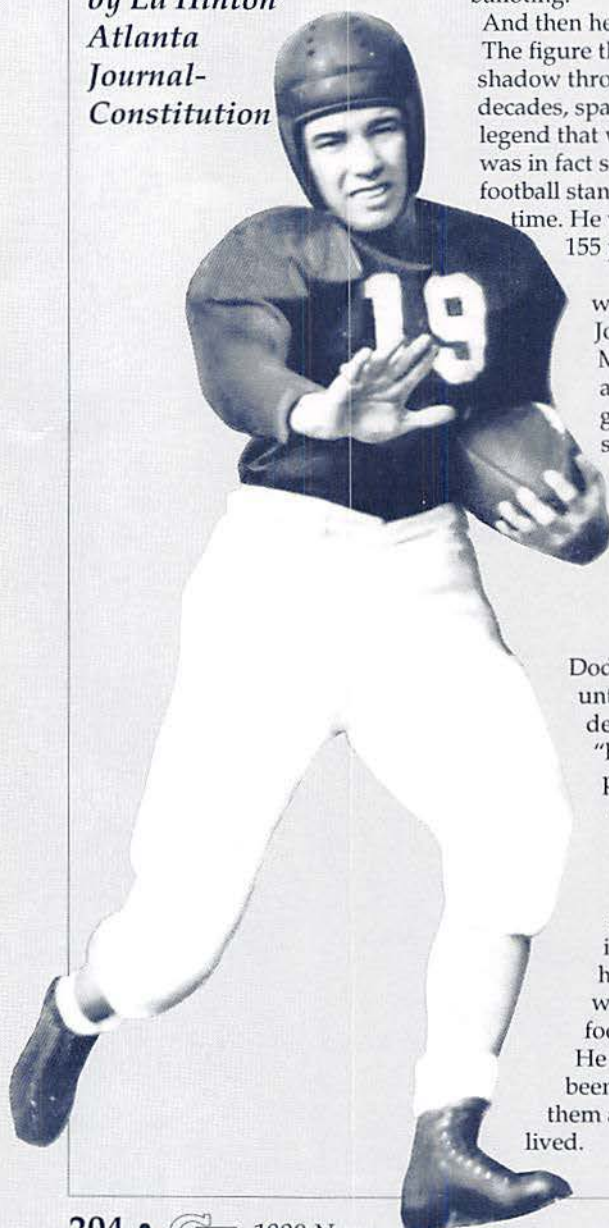

After 44 years at Georgia Tech, his enduring contribution to sport and life lives as a supreme memorial. ■

"COACH ALEX" One of Three Tech Coaches in the National Football Hall of Fame

The Mystery of a Lost Legend

by Ed Hinton
Atlanta Journal-Constitution

He flashed across the fields at Notre Dame and Navy that fall of '42, leading Georgia Tech's shocking onslaughts, while Sir Bernard Montgomery flashed across North Africa in pursuit of Erwin Rommel, and the Russians made their goal-line stand at Stalingrad.

He had played only one college football game when Notre Dame scout Wayne Millner warned coach Frank Leahy that "the most dangerous runner in America" would invade South Bend.

As a freshman, he finished third in the Heisman Trophy balloting.

And then he was gone. The figure that cast the tall shadow through the decades, spawned the legend that will not rest, was in fact small, even by football standards of the time. He was 5 feet 9, 155 pounds.

But he was, wrote the Journal's Ed Miles in that autumn of gathering storm, "a crazed jackrabbit."

HAD CLINT Castleberry lived, Bobby Dodd maintained until his own death in 1988, "he'd have probably been an All-American for three years and been the greatest back in Georgia Tech history . . . He was a great football player. He might have been the best of them all, had he lived.

"But what is more important is this: He was a great boy—gentle and brave, manly yet sweet."

And in that other time, of good boys and great unselfishness, there was no thought—none—that a football career, however glorious, however destined for Heisman acclaim, amounted to a hill of beans any more than the problems of Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman did when they stood on that runway.

And so within six weeks after playing sparingly, hurt, in the Cotton Bowl, Clint Castleberry was in the Army Air Corps.

"When he joined, there was no question about it" in the family, says his brother, Jimmy. "There was no discussion. That was just the thing that you did. Everybody was anxious to get in. It was a given. You'd have to have lived in that time to know that the only thought was beating the Germans.

His progress in flight school flashed word-of-mouth through the service. Howard Ector, off the 1939 Tech team that would see 10 of its 33 players killed in World War II, had transferred from Army artillery and was just behind Castleberry in flight school.

At every station, at every training stage, men from across the nation—the Midwest, where Castleberry had stormed Notre Dame; the East, where Castleberry had devastated Navy—would learn that Ector was a former Tech player and tell him proudly, "Castleberry was here."

ON NOV. 7, 1944, VOTERS AT home overwhelmingly sent Franklin Delano Roosevelt to an unprecedented fourth term in the White House.

Hours before the polls opened, at 2:20 a.m. Atlanta time (7:20 a.m. in West Africa), two B-26G "Marauder" bombers took off from Roberts Field, Nigeria, continuing their ferrying run up the coast toward Dakar, Senegal.

The co-pilot of one was Lt. Clinton Dillard Castleberry Jr. of Atlanta, Ga.

The bombers were never heard from again.

Jimmy Castleberry, by then also enlisted, arrived by train in San Francisco and telephoned the family, which included Clint's pregnant wife.

"The first thing they told me was, 'We've just received a wire that your brother is missing in action,'" says Jimmy Castleberry.

American planes, aided by the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force, searched off the West African coast for six days.

Atlanta and the college football world waited.

Tech coach Bill Alexander and Dodd, his top assistant, were among the regular visitors to the Castleberry household.

O.B. Keeler chronicled the watch in barely veiled obituary form for The Atlanta Journal, but injected a glint of hope from Castleberry's old coach at Boys High, Shorty Doyal, who said that "if Castleberry had any sort of chance at all, he'll come through."

"My father never gave up hope that he was alive—that somehow they'd gone down close enough to land, and Clint was somewhere in Africa," says Jimmy Castleberry. "For many, many, many years, he held on to the barest hope."

The hope died with Clinton Castleberry Sr. in 1961.

At first Clint Castleberry's young wife Shirley held hope: "Certainly. Yes," she says now, though she is very reluctant to talk about that long-ago sadness in her life, now that she has been Mrs. Fred Avey of St. Louis for these many years.

The U.S. War Department

gave up hope on Nov. 23, 1944, changing Castleberry's status from "missing" to "killed," though the only evidence was a blotch of unidentified wreckage spotted on the ocean by an RAF plane.

ATLANTA, THE FOOTBALL world and most of the Castleberry family accepted the War Department's opinion.

And so Clint Castleberry became a memory.

O.B. Keller wrote: "The football achievements of Clint Castleberry very naturally were focused nationally on his performances against Navy and Notre Dame in 1942, especially the former game, when he ran 95 yards to a touchdown after intercepting a pass . . ."

A living Frank Merriweather, he had risen as a perfect model in Atlanta's eyes.

A straight-A student at old Boys High, he never played in a losing football game in three varsity seasons there.

A younger boy, George Brodnax, who later played at Tech, saw Castleberry of Boys High "play against Charlie 'Choo-Choo' Justice's high school team, Central of Charlotte. Clint scored five touchdowns the first five times he touched the ball."

In that time of the platoon system, Castleberry usually played less than half of each game. Yet in his senior year, he averaged 171 yards per game rushing and scored 102 points.

Both Navy and Notre Dame had considered recruiting him, but backed off after learning his size.

Besides, "he was either going to Georgia or Georgia Tech," says his brother. "He elected to go with Coach Aleck, and the major reason was that he was in love and wanted to stay in Atlanta."

Because the war was already draining rosters, the Southeastern Conference ruled freshman eligible to

For one fleeting season in 1942, Clint Castleberry blazed across the football field like a 'crazed jackrabbit.' Some said he could have been the greatest Tech player in history—if it weren't for World War II and a plane that disappeared off the West African coast without a trace.

By the week before the opening game against Auburn, ranked eighth in preseason polls, the sports writers of Atlanta were pounding out predictions that it would be next to impossible for Alexander and Dodd to keep this tiny freshman out of the starting lineup as a single-wing tailback.

He did not start, but after the game, the Journal's Ed Miles noted that "Tech's Old Guard on the shelves of the west stands hailed the freshman Castleberry as the fanciest runner to hit the Flats since they have forgotten when."

And Millner left Grant Field and boarded a train for Chicago and South Bend to warn Leahy, in preparation for Saturday's game, of this "most dangerous runner in America."

Yet, on Wednesday evening, when the travel squad was posted for the trip to Notre Dame, Castleberry was surprised and elated to see his name on the list.

IT WAS FROM SOUTH BEND that the nation would learn what Atlanta already knew.

Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's star back and punter, was ordered by Leahy from the outset to direct his punts away from the little Tech freshman, and most of them sailed out of bounds.

In the third quarter, Bertelli fumbled, Castleberry (who played both offense and defense) recovered at the Irish 27, and Tech pounded quickly in to score on Castleberry's pass from the 8 as he sprinted outside.

In the fourth quarter, one of Bertelli's punts was fielded at last by Castleberry, who returned it 18 yards to set up the winning touchdown.

The final score was Tech 13, Notre Dame 6—the first time the Yellow Jackets had ever beaten the Irish in South Bend. And that Sunday's Atlanta papers divided their excitement between the hand-to-hand fighting at Stalingrad and little Castleberry's romps at Notre Dame.

A Tech team which in the preseason had been expected to fare poorly was 4-0 by mid-October, ranked sixth by the Associated Press poll and bound for Annapolis. NBC and CBS would broadcast the game to the nation, Armed Forces Radio to the world.

And so it was that American troops just-landed in North Africa under Eisenhower and Patton, and sailors and pilots who'd recently turned the tide in the Pacific at the Battle of Midway, and Marines in their death grip with the Japanese on Guadalcanal, would hear, live . . .

Second quarter, still 0-0. Navy in an obvious passing situation. Long pass. Intercepted by Castleberry at the Georgia Tech 5.

And then what the troops around the world heard, mostly, was the anxious roar of thousands of Midshipmen urging their players to stop him somehow . . .

They did not stop him. It was 7-0. It would end 21-0 Tech, and even with that final score on the board, Castleberry would run out the clock with a 51-yard run.

GEORGIA, WITH CHARLIE Trippi and Frank Sinkwich, was ranked No. 1 in the polls, and Tech was climbing through the top five. The situation boiled toward what promised to be a national championship confrontation between No. 1 Georgia and No. 2 Georgia Tech.

But one game short of their meeting, Georgia was upset by Auburn and Castleberry suffered a knee injury during a tough win over Florida. The great showdown was spoiled.

Early in the game at Athens, Sinkwich intercepted a Castleberry pass and returned to the Tech 36 to set up a Georgia score. But on Georgia's next possession, it was Castleberry who intercepted Sinkwich. And it was Castleberry who moved Tech quickly to the Georgia 41 before reinjuring his knee and leaving the game.

The exhausted, over-achieving Tech team was finished without Castleberry. Georgia won 34-0 and went to the Rose Bowl.

After the Georgia game, a bold but broken-hearted worshipper of Clint Castleberry, 10-year-old Franklin Cullen "Pepper" Rodgers of Atlanta, felt compelled to telephone his hero.

"I told him, 'I'm sorry you lost that game,'" says Rodgers, a former Georgia Tech coach. "He was so nice to me on the telephone. He was my hero . . . Ty Cobb, Jeb Stuart, Clint Castleberry—only heroes I ever had." ■

The Legendary Cumberland Game

GEORGIA TECH 222, CUMBERLAND 0. The most lopsided game of all time actually happened on Oct. 7, 1916 in Atlanta.

In the previous spring, Cumberland's baseball team had trounced Tech, and the Tech students and alumni howled for revenge on the gridiron. So head coach John Heisman offered Cumberland a $500 guarantee to come to Atlanta.

On the Pullman ride from Lebanon, Tenn., the 16-man Cumberland team stopped in Nashville to recruit some Vanderbilt players to join the crusade. Not only were there no takers, but three Cumberland players were left in Nashville by the train.

During that era, Cumberland had fielded championship football teams in 1903 and 1904, but in 1916 the school was more renowned for its law school than gridiron record. Meanwhile, Tech was building a national powerhouse under "The Wizard."

In one of the greatest understatements, David

Harsh, who played on the Cumberland line, once said, "We never should have taken on Tech. They had us somewhat outclassed."

It took about one minute before Everett Strupper scored Tech's first touchdown. That was only one of nine touchdowns in the first quarter. Tech also scored nine touchdowns in the second quarter. Cumberland, since it was losing yardage faster than it was gaining real estate, began to kick the football back to Tech immediately after Tech kicked off to them.

With the score 126-0 at halftime, Heisman still gave an impassioned speech to his squad: "You're doing all right, team. We're ahead. But you just can't tell what those Cumberland players have up their sleeves. They may spring a surprise. Be alert, men! Hit 'em clean, but hit 'em hard!"

In the Cumberland dressing room, the coach was working feverishly to revive his players. In the second half, Tech scored 54 points in the third quarter and 42 in the final stanza. The Cumberland

THEY SAID IT

David Harsh, who played for Cumberland in their 222-0 loss to Georgia Tech: "We never should have taken on Tech. They had us somewhat outclassed."

battle cry was reduced to "Hang on, boys! Remember that $500 guarantee."

In the game, Tech scored 32 touchdowns, averaged 3.8 points per minute, carried the ball for 978 yards—and never threw a pass. Cumberland's offense accounted for minus 45 yards in rushing. Amazingly, Georgia Tech scored within its four downs on every possession.

In an on-the-spot account of the game by famous sportswriter Grantland Rice, he reported tongue in cheek, "Cumberland's greatest individual play occurred when fullback Allen circled right end for a six-yard loss."

To make matters worse, Heisman had agreed with the alumni to split his squad into two platoons and alternate quarters. The squad that rolled up the biggest score would be awarded with a steak dinner.

At the game's conclusion, Heisman blew his whistle and put his team through a hard, half-hour scrimmage. Then, acknowledging that Tech had played a "fairly good game," Heisman gave everyone a steak dinner. Meanwhile, Cumberland collected its $500 and proceeded to see the sights of Atlanta. ■

REPLAY!

Ivery Sets NCAA Record with 356 Yards

"On a day when ice skates would have been more appropriate footwear than cleated shoes and when an agitated stomach threatened his very presence in Georgia Tech's lineup, senior tailback Eddie Lee Ivery made college football history..."

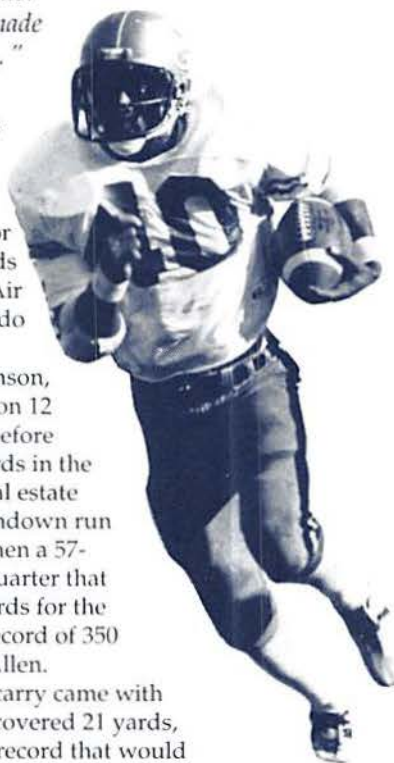

David Davidson
Atlanta Journal-Constitution

ON NOV. 11, 1978, Eddie Lee Ivery rushed for an NCAA-record 356 yards on 26 carries against the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The senior from Thomson, Ga., picked up 122 yards on 12 attempts in the first half before breaking loose for 234 yards in the final two quarters. His real estate included an 80-yard touchdown run in the third quarter and then a 57-yard jaunt in the fourth quarter that brought him up to 309 yards for the day, just 41 short of the record of 350 held by Michigan's Eric Allen.

The record-breaking carry came with five minutes to play and covered 21 yards, giving Ivery 356 yards, a record that would stand until 1984.

Tech won the game, 42-21. ■

Riegels' Wrong Way Run Right for Tech

THE MOST STUNNING SINGLE play in the history of the Rose Bowl propelled Georgia Tech to its first bowl victory when Roy Riegels' infamous wrong way run turned out right as the Rambling Wreck beat California, 8-7, in the 1929 Rose Bowl.

Early in the second quarter, Tech halfback Stumpy Thomason fumbled, and Riegels grasped the bounding ball at the Tech 36-yard line. For Riegels, a center and captain of his California team, fate had sent him running free and clear. He got a good block from a teammate, slipped off a tackler and spun around.

But something was wrong. "Stop, Roy! Stop, you're running the wrong way," yelled teammate Bennie Lom. Riegels heard but did not understand. He thought the speedier Lom was asking for a lateral.

Tech's Vance Maree blocked a punt for the deciding safety after Riegels' gaff.

"Get away from me," he yelled back. "This is my touchdown."

At the 10-yard line, Lom grabbed Riegels but he shook him loose. Again, at the three-yard line, Lom pulled Riegels down amid a wave of Tech players. Riegels had run 64 yards into immortality.

California still had the ball. On the first play, the Golden Bears attempted to punt the ball out of the end zone with Riegels snapping to Lom. However, the left side of the California line collapsed, and Tech's Vance Maree blocked the punt, which rolled out of bounds for a safety.

Those two points turned out to be the winning margin as both teams traded touchdowns in the second half and the Rambling Wreck prevailed, 8-7, in one of the strangest games ever played. At the time, the impact of Riegels' wrong way run had not yet taken shape. All he said was, "Now why did I do something like that?"

Of course, the play attracted national attention. It was said that 450,000 column inches of newspaper space was written on Riegels' gaff. He received mountains of mail with sympathetic letters, offers of marriage and money, editorials in the papers and sermons from the pulpit.

Riegels got over his fluke play, but he was never allowed to forget it. He again served as captain of the California team as a senior and even made a few all-America teams.

Tech's Rose Bowl victory capped a perfect 10-0 season, the first undefeated campaign for head coach William Alexander. ■

Lights! Camera! Action!

GEORGIA TECH HAS HAD NOT only its stars, but its starlets. Rose Bowl Field, where Tech holds its practice sessions, has been like a Hollywood movie lot with visits from Sandra Dee, Annette Funicello and Ann-Margret.

Even part of the movie "Bear" starring Gary Busey as Alabama head coach Paul "Bear" Bryant was filmed at Rose Bowl Field.

The starlets visited stars such as Billy Lothridge and Billy Martin in the 1950s and '60s when they came to Atlanta to perform in the Fox Theater. The manager of the Fox was a Tech fan who would hang the team pictures in the lobby. The movie stars would stay at the Biltmore Hotel, which was near the Tech campus.

One such starlet even graced the cover of the Georgia Tech football media guide. In 1952, publicist Ned West, trying to make a big impression in his first year on the job, managed to get a picture of Marilyn Monroe. Her agent said she was too busy to come to Atlanta. So West sent a Tech sweater and pennant to New York, where the photo was taken.

Of course, the Jackets went on to have a perfect 12-0 season in '52 and won the Sugar Bowl. West wanted to use the same photo on the cover in 1953, but head coach

Bob Hope watches a game at Grant Field.

Bobby Dodd thought West was pushing his luck. So began a streak where Dodd appeared on the cover of the media guide every year until his retirement in 1966. ■
